A history of the Ironton church prepared by Mrs. Sass and read by Mrs. Bridge contained many items of interest as that church was organized soon after the one at Charlevoix. There have always been very close ties between the two churches, one pastor having served both for many years.

Dr. Mattson offered the opening prayer and later gave a short address appropriate to the occasion. Rev. Knopman brought greetings and good wishes from the Atwood Reform Church and pronounced the benediction.

A photograph of the church interior showing the decorations on the first Children's Day also some pictures of the Ironton Church and parsonage were exhibited.

Mrs. Harsha's sketch identified the portraits on the lecture room walls as Rev. LeRoy Warren and Rev. Chauncey Van Auken. The former was agent of the Congregational Home Missionary Society in Michigan when the church was organized and was present and assisted on that occasion. Rev. Van Auken was the first pastor.

Extracts From Mrs. Harsha's Historical Sketch.

The First Congregational Church of Charlevoix was organized Sept. 19, 1882 and incorporated Dec. 26, 1882. There were six charter members, viz. Mr. and Mrs. Brice Suffield, Mrs. Sophia E. Lawrence, E. M.

THE SENTINEL FOR PRINTING

LOCAL LEGION POST SECOND

IN DISTRICT IN AERIAL ROUND-UP MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

In the recent aerial roundup for membership, staged by the State Department of the Legion, Leslie T. Shapton Post placed second in the number of paid membership out of fourteen posts of the Lower Eleventh District. Algona came first with 52. Charlevoix second with 31, the newly formed post at Bellaire third with 19 and Petoskey fourth with 18 paid memberships. These membership cards and the money were picked up by aeroplane on November 12th and carried to Department Headquarters at Detroit.

Onaway post has definitely consented to play host for the next district meeting, which is to be held on December 11th thwng to the lateness of the season the parade will be omitted.

Among the coming events which the local post will sponsor during the winter season are a dance, scheduled for Thursday, December 8th, which will be a fifty-fifty welfare work and Legion post benefit affair at 25 cents per couple. There will be another stag card party on Tuesday, December 13th, the largest county meeting (at Charlevoix) on December 20th and another "Turkey" party on December 23rd.

SEQUANOTA PIONEER TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. Mary J. Thompson, wife of John Winter Thompson, passed away last week at her home in Galesburg, Ill., after an illness of two years following a very severe operation. She has however been able to spend the summer with her husband at Sequanota resort on Lake Charlevoix. Since her return in September the failure has been more marked and the past two weeks the decline has been more rapid. With her at the time of her departure were her husband and two daughters, Miss Helen Thompson, of the high school faculty of Kalamazoo, and Miss Edith Thompson, teacher of voice in Wilson College at Chambersburg, Pa.

Mrs. Thompson was the daughter of Reece and Charlotte Moon and was born near Streator, Ill., Aug. 28, 1870, which was her home until her marriage to Mr. Thompson, June 11, 1891. Since that time she has been a resident of Galesburg, Ill. She accompanied her husband to Europe in the late fall of 1892 and for two years, he pursued his musical studies, remained there. She was an active member of the Central Congregational Church to which she rendered great service. She was a charter member of the Chu Club and an associate member of the Galesburg Musical Union. She enjoyed participation in the great musical productions and was always among the singers.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were pioneers at Sequanota where she was much beloved.

The funeral services were held on Thursday, November 17th, at 2:30 p. m., Dr. William Lampe of Saint Luke assisting and paid a very high tribute to Mrs. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cruss expect to leave on their motor trip to Florida Saturday morning where they will remain during the winter.

Gilbert Saltonstall, who has been a student in the Medical Course at Ann Arbor for several years, will enter as interne at the Grace Hospital in Detroit, July 1st, 1933.

Married, last Saturday evening, by Rev. W. W. Hurd, at the Methodist parsonage, Mr. Charles Louse, and Miss Ruth Hammond, both of East Jordan. The groom is a brother of Mr. Fred Loose, well known resident of this city.

ADJOURNED MEETING OF W.C.T.U. HELD FRIDAY

At the adjourned meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union held last Friday afternoon in the Community Room, the following officers were elected to serve for 1933.

President, Mrs. Annie E. Sallonstall, vice president, Mrs. Gladys Palmer, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ella Lisker; recording secretary, Mrs. Bonnie Pearl, Treasurer, Mrs. Celia Kelderhouse.

A request from the state president to have the year begin October 1st instead of January 1st was received and left open until the December meeting.

The Million Signature Campaign committee reported that 165 names had been secured in Charlevoix and forwarded to the National Council of Women.

The literature committee reported 1,500 pieces of literature were distributed during the recent campaign; that 23 packages were sent to women in other communities and 24 local women made a house to house canvass.

Ella Beebe, national president has announced the new slogan is "Advance, Not Retreat." She says further "The war is still on. We have lost a battle. That does not mean we have lost the war."

The program for the coming year as announced by Mrs. Beebe includes an educational campaign to promote voluntary total abstinence from alcoholic liquors as a beverage, the enlistment of the younger generation in the warfare against alcohol, in the interest of health, efficiency, public safety and good citizenship; a study of the benefits of prohibition in connection with child welfare, poverty and crime and a publicity campaign which will tell the truth about alcohol.

It was reported that Mrs. Harsha's research through old records in preparing a history of the Congregational Church revealed the fact that in April 1886 the W. C. T. U. had been organized here at least three years. Anyone who has any records or recollection concerning the early days of the local union will please communicate with Mrs. Saltonstall.

HENRY W. COOK DIES IN EAST JORDAN FRIDAY EVENING

Mr. Henry W. Cook, of East Jordan, passed away last Friday evening after a lingering illness.

Mr. Cook was born in Niagara county, N. Y., 54 years ago, and at the age of ten years was located in South Arm township with his parents. He attended the Chaddock school, where the late David Vaughn was also a student.

For the past twenty-five years he has held the positions of Chief of Police, at East Jordan, Deputy Sheriff of Charlevoix County the first three years, and for the following eighteen years Under Sheriff. He has been a very efficient officer.

His physical infirmity reached the point about a year ago, while made it necessary for him to procure a leave of absence.

He is survived by his wife; son Howard of Cleveland; daughter Dorothy, of Washington, D. C., and two young daughters, Ruth and Betty; two brothers, Walter and Frank, of East Jordan, and sister Lydia Cusoin, of Lansing.

The funeral service was held at his home in East Jordan, Monday at 2 p. m., conducted by Rev. C. W. Sidebotham, of the Presbyterian Church, during which time all business places were closed in his honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bergeon were favored with an addition to their family, a son, Michael Taylor, born Tuesday, November 22nd.

Carl Russell who was employed by the Highway Superintendent on a road job, was injured last Monday, and was taken to the hospital where he underwent an abdominal operation by Dr. McMillan.

POLAR BEARS ROMP AWAY

WITH CENTRAL LAKE, CUBS ARE NOSED OUT BY PETOSKEY

Thursday evening at the High School Gymnasium, before a packed house, the Charlevoix Polar Bears opened the season by running away with the Central Lake team by a score of 33 to 10. The Polar Bear Cubs were not so fortunate and were nosed out in the last two minutes of their game with the Petoskey Indies by a score of 15 to 14.

The Cubs were tied at the end of the half at 6 all and during the third quarter run up their score until lead by 9 points However, to the 6-foot 2 of the Petoskey quintet came back strong holding the Cubs while coming from behind to tie and in the last minute of the game sink a basket for two points and the game.

The Polar Bears outclassed the game lads from Central Lake and in the first half run the score up by 19 to 3. In the last half they did not by so well registering only 14 points while their opponents garnered seven.

The games were closely played and interesting in spite of the last contest Admission was free and in the spirit of the day, the house was packed and the kiddies enjoyed the treat

MISS MARION SEARS WEDS F. M. GLASSFORD

Miss Marion J. Sears, daughter of Mrs. Ida Sears of this city, was married to Frank M. Glassford, also of this city, Saturday morning at 8:30, at the home of the bride's mother, 103 W. Dixon Avenue.

The Rev. G. R. Parker, pastor of the Congregational church performed the ceremony. Immediate relatives attended the ceremony as well as a wedding breakfast, served in the evening, rooms decorated with American beauty roses.

Miss Sears has for several years held the position of dietician in the Bethesda Hospital at Zanesville, O.

COUNTY UNEMPLOYMENT COMMITTEE MEETING

The Charlevoix County Unemployment Committee met at the Court House Tuesday evening, November 22nd, when they decided to have supper for one who wants to investigate at the information bureau. Mr. Fred Loose in charge.

The work will be principally on the Edmonton of M-31 north of Boyne Falls.

CLUB THANKSGIVING TEA

The Historic Tea served last Thursday afternoon at the Methodist Church by the Women's Club of that church, was largely attended. The dining room was charmingly decorated with rugs, floor lamps, small tables, and chrysanthemums for floral decorations. The literary program was given which included a history of the church by Mrs. P. D. Campbell, Mrs. Chas. Arnold, and a few brief remarks by Miss Colter, honored as the only charter member of the church left. Music by the Misses Hirksen, Belding, Meggison, and Tyler, was much enjoyed, and a fine Thanksgiving poem by little Miss Audie Jean Trimble.

Marlborough Nixon, of Marion Center, fell and broke his knee cap Tuesday afternoon and Dr. McMillan has him in charge at the hospital.

The local Board of Education has awarded the contract for carrying the children to and from school, to the Fowler Bus Line, which goes into operation December 1st.

Mr. Cooper was born April 19th, 1860, at Eastwood, Canada, and came here with his parents in 1880, and the family were located in Marion township for many years, since which time he has resided in many places all over the country. He had been in Traverse City for several years until six years ago, when failing health brought him to Charlevoix, where he has since resided at the home of his sister.

He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Adah Bostwick and Miss Minnie Cooper, of this city and Mrs. A. C. Fessenden, and a brother, O. A. Cooper, both of Cadillac, who are here to attend the funeral services, which will be held at the residence of Miss Cooper at 2 p. m. Friday, November 25th, Rev. Mr. Hurd, of the M. E. Church officiating.

KRYL'S BAND RARE TREAT

SUNDAY'S EXHIBITION ENTHUSIASTICALLY RECEIVED

Charlevoix residents had a rare treat on Sunday afternoon when they were privileged to hear Kryl's Concert Band. The audience was very enthusiastic in the reception of the various numbers. The opening selection was Tannhauser, Others that were especially enjoyed were "Second Hungarian Rhapsody" by Liszt and "Caprice Indian" by Luthardt. The harp solos by Miss Hopkins were greatly appreciated. Lois May, vocalist, charmed the audience with her selections, the first accompanied by the band, the second by the harp. Mr. Kryl himself gave two very beautiful selections—"Cleopatra" and "Cardinal Vesper."

A very unique number was the one in which each member of the band came forward to play, all the way from piccolost to bass drums. The Kryl band also contains a string bass which gives the qualities of a symphony orchestra, which explains the term "Symphonic Band."

Mr. Magee was quite taken by surprise when Mr. Kryl asked him to conduct the last number, "March Slav." Mr. Magee, a self taught musician and played under Mr. Kryl several years ago. The audience applauded Mr. Magee long and loudly when he took his place before the band.

Mr. Kryl himself is quite a character. He makes it a practice to rest before every concert. He eats very lightly and never smokes. He is one of the few directors who uses no baton but instead directs very beautifully with his hand and fingers. It might be interesting to know that when Mr. Kryl directed the Army band he dropped his baton in the audience and had none until the close.

When a boy, Mr. Kryl was a sculptor and worked on the well known soldiers monument in Indiana. He is also an authority

THE G. O. P. FUTURE

The immediate future of the Republican party was well summed up on the night after the election by Everett Sanders, the party's national chairman, when he said:

"What of the Republican Party? It will become the minority party. It repudiates none of its policies, abandons none of its principles. It apologizes for none of its traditions of the party throughout its 75 years of existence. But as a minority party it will not nullify; it will not obstruct any Democratic legislation or executive proposal merely because it bears the stamp of the Democratic Party."

That the Republican party will come back and come back rapidly there can be little doubt. Those who remember the days of 1912, when the party seemed permanently disorganized by the great split, but came back miraculously, will not have any doubt about this. The ability of political parties to recover rapidly is evidenced by the fortunes of the Democracy four years ago. Let it not be forgotten that in 1928 its ranks were demoralized and its political enemies had split the solid South for the first time in post-Civil war history.

The duty of the minority in the coming Congress is clear. It must and will support all sound and constructive measures put forward in the interest of efficiency, economy and the defeat of the depression. Its duty will be to obstruct only when measures are proposed which are contrary to the principles of sound economics and American traditions.

That the Republican as a temporary minority part will aid the majority in constructive measures can be judged by its record of the past. In the Wilson administration it gave heroic and needed help on critical occasions during the World War. It fought an obstructive battle only when an effort was made to overthrow time honored American principles and place us in European political entanglements and subsequent history has proved that both in its support of the administration, and in its obstruction to European entanglements it fought wisely and well.

CUT THE EXPENSES

Now that the national election is over, we are apt to hear more and more about economy in our national, state and local units of government. Both the great political parties have been pledged to a program of economy. Now that the Democrats have won an sweepingly it is to be expected that they will take the lead in reducing the budget in every way possible. It is also to be expected that the Republican leaders in Congress will assist them. There will have to be more budget balancing in the future and this cannot be done entirely by levying new taxes. What ought to be done is not so much to find new sources of raising revenue, but new sources of cutting down expenditures.

What is true of the national government is equally true of the state and local governments. The way to reduce taxes is to economize and the way to economize is to pare costs and reduce budgets in every way possible. The investment bankers of New England recently struck the heart of the matter when they said:

"Economy consists not in raising more money but in spending less. The problem of municipal expenditures in New England is primarily that of reducing current operating costs, for with few exceptions our communities are not heavily bonded, and debt service charges do not constitute a large proportion of the budget. On the other hand, maintenance costs of Massachusetts cities are higher than for cities of corresponding population throughout the United States."

While it is up to the national government to economize in every way possible for the purpose of reducing taxes it is not to be forgotten, as we have repeatedly said, that the average man's burden of taxes comes to him not from the national government nor even from the state, but generally from city and municipal local taxes. Take the situation in the state of Indiana for example. The Hoosier commonwealth is out of debt. It has one of the finest highway systems in the country and the roads are paid for. The state has no bonds outstanding and in addition to being out of debt and paying its way as it goes, has cash and good securities in its state treasury in the sum of fifteen millions of dollars. And the state tax rate has been steadily reduced during the past few years.

Yet the people of Indiana like the people in other states are groaning under a burden of taxes. What is the answer? It is simple. The people have been piling taxes on themselves in their local units of government. They have been steadily building and improving, adding to public buildings and to the number of public officials which must be maintained and paid for by the counties, townships and municipalities. As a result, the taxes have mounted steadily higher, despite the fact that little of the burden is piled on by the state or national government.

Fortunately the people of the country are becoming tax conscious. In Indiana it is predicted that next year in many localities the taxes on farms and other real estate will be little more than half of the total this year. In other states, too, there will be retrenchment with lessened tax burdens. This must come about if we are to continue our present system of popular government. Unless the people can manage their own affairs and keep themselves out of public bankruptcy, sooner or later they will find some sort of a dictator doing it for them. But we do not believe this is going to happen. It is more likely that an aroused public opinion will bring the desired results. This is not a matter for partisan politics but one for earnest cooperative effort on the part of all citizens who have the interests of their country, their state and their city at heart. As the Boston Transcript well puts it: "The way to economize is to economize." Let us start the job as soon as is humanly possible.

POLITICAL LANDSLIDES

In every part of the country there are Republican office-holders casting final looks over their jobs and wondering "where do we go from here." All the fat places will be taken over by Democrats and only the smaller salaried positions will be protected by the Civil Service. There will be a big sweep in Washington, just as there was at the beginning of the Wilson administration twenty years ago, and at the beginning of the Republican regime under Harding twelve years ago. The House of Representatives remains unchanged in the hands of the Democrats, but there has been a veritable slaughter of Senators. The Democrats have a clear majority and it remains to be seen whether they will reward the Republican bolters who helped them win the election with fat committee chairmanships. They don't have to unless they want to and it is not likely that Democratic Senators will relish the prospect that faces them of taking back-seats in order that men like Norris, labeling themselves Republican, shall control important committees that will shape a "new deal" under Roosevelt, when he becomes President.

The voters of the Nation went in for the "new deal" which so far is only a nebulous phrase which in some way or another it is hoped may be realized. But how? Echo answers 'how'. President-elect Roosevelt and President Hoover have agreed all along that the one big job that affects the people most and calls for the strongest sort of leadership is "economic recovery." Mr. Roosevelt will assume the responsibility of leadership in furnishing a new program next March. It will be along the lines of a "new deal," and the best brains in the Democratic party will be employed in the effort to invent ways and means to produce real relief. All Americans will wish them unlimited and unqualified success.

The good old U. S. A. has rocked a good deal but she's the best ship in the world, and all who have faith in themselves and their creator confidently expect that Uncle Sam will in due time pilot us into smooth sailing waters. We have had plenty of panics and depressions in the past and they have all run their courses and "passed out."

SAFETY REACHES ITS MAJORITY

The organized safety movement in America is coming of age.

It was born in 1912 to combat the appalling death and accident rates then prevailing in many industries. It has immensely expanded its usefulness so that it works not only to protect life in the factory, but in the home, on the highways, in the school—wherever the risk of accident exists.

Its achievements are its monument. Despite vastly increased industrial production, fatalities have been cut more than thirty per cent. Factories which were once known as "human slaughter houses" are now safer for the workman than is his home. Accidental deaths to children have been cut through the introduction of safety education into school curriculums. The number of children injured or killed by automobiles has dropped materially—but the adult toll of automobiles has jumped at a dizzying rate.

In this last field the safety movement has met its greatest obstacle. The highways are thronged with irresponsible, incompetent and reckless drivers that last year claimed 34,000 lives and were responsible for hundreds of thousands of accidents. Safety on the highway can come only when automobile operators—like factory workers and executives—realize their responsibility and become "safety conscious." Then organized safety movement will have conquered its greatest enemy.

FRIEND OF HARD TIMES

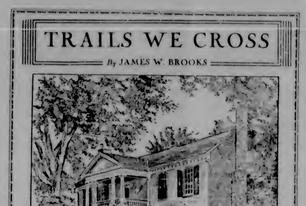
The best friend of "hard times" is a high tax rate.

Reasonable taxes encourage the investment of capital, the development and expansion of industry, the employment of labor. They encourage home building, savings and business activity of all kinds.

Excessive taxes, on the other hand, have precisely the opposite effect. They drive money into hoarding or into tax-free government bonds, thus depriving industry of revenue it sorely needs. They make for unemployment and for widespread economic distress. They discourage the home builder. They cause property to be taken over by the county or state for unpaid taxes, where it at once becomes unproductive.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS



IN LITERATURE AND STATECRAFT

In this sequestered home at Williamsburg, Virginia, known as Bassett Hall once lived John Tyler the president under whose administration the Republic of Texas was annexed to the United States. Here, as vice president, he received word by courier that he had become the Nations chief magistrate through the death of President Harrison. Here also Horace Mann, the Irish poet wrote the Firefly in 1809.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

The national election for 1932 has come and gone and it is now possible to get a fairly clear view of the causes bringing about one of the greatest Democratic landslides in the history of the country. There is a well known saying that coming events cast their shadows before them and with this in view it ought to have been easy to predict months ago just what was going to happen. The result is plainly a case of victory for the outs against the ins. The principal cause for bringing this about was the depression. The straws showing which way the wind was blowing constituted the elections which have been held in other nations since the world-wide depression engulfed civilization three years ago.

Elections since 1929 have resulted almost unanimously in favor of the outs, no matter where these elections were held. The Labor government lost out in Great Britain because of the depression. In Germany Herr Bruening was defeated because he could not bring back prosperity over night, while in France the conservatives were turned out of office because France could not finally escape the world-wide economic catastrophe. In many instances governments were overturned by force and violence. This happened in Spain and in several of the Latin-American countries, and in each instance the change of government, whether violent or otherwise, was caused by the hard times and the depression.

The only governments of importance which have not made a change are those of Soviet Russia and of Italy. In these two nations, the reins of authority are held in dictatorship and there is, especially in Russia, no adequate expression of the popular will through suffrage. Now the United States has no dictatorship and wants neither dictatorship nor revolution. As a result the people waited to express their discontent at the polls, and naturally the result was the turning out of the party in power. The best evidence that the American government is a thoroughly democratic one is that this change was made without violence. The losers accepted the result with good sportsmanship just as the result is always accepted by the losing party in the United States. The winners have assumed the responsibility in a sober and serious way, realizing the serious obstacles to be overcome. The losers have generously offered to cooperate with the victors in any constructive measures designed to help the economic situation in America. This is as it should be and reflects the true American spirit.

In congratulating Governor Roosevelt President Hoover said: "In the common purpose of us all, I shall dedicate myself to every possible helpful effort." In replying Governor Roosevelt said: "I join in your gracious expression of a common purpose in helpful efforts for our country." There is here no gloating by the victors and no sulking by the vanquished. In those expressions the two leaders typify the spirit of the rank and file of their followers. It gives us one of the reasons why America has grown so great and so secure in its political institutions of ordered liberty and free government.

Now that the election is over there will be a settling down to the serious business of pulling Uncle Sam out of the trough of depression. The first gains in that direction were made in mid-summer. There was a slackening a few weeks ago due to the uncertainties of the campaign, but now that the issues have been decided we ought to move forward again. Certainly we will move forward if the statements of the leaders of both parties are followed up specific conduct of the same kind, and those doubtless will be so followed. Business is now ready to go ahead. The losers are ready to help the winners. The philosophy of the Republicans was well summed up on the day following the election by Will H. Hays, former Postmaster General, now head of the great moving picture industry, when he said:

"The principal business of Republicans now is to help make good the promise of early employment and prosperity made by both parties. In a war the army is lost whoever is in command. The depression is on the run. We will finish the fight now. Everything else is only 'politics.' That is the right spirit. It is the American spirit which has won every battle in which the people of our country have been engaged, whether it was military or economic.

Hallowe'en must be a big help to the American soap industry.

If he could only sing wouldn't the giraffe make an ideal crooner?

It is now time for the statesmen of all parties to get together and bury Old Man Depression under a landslide forty feet deep.

A man arrested in Indiana had 20 watches in his possession. Shows how a person can get into trouble when he has too much time on his hands or in his pockets.

Investors in public utilities who are unable to get any of their money back now know what a "holding company is."

William Beebe, who went a half mile down into the sea, discovered that we on the surface cannot appreciate a real depression.

"Go after business," sounds like good advice, until you remember where business has gone.

The main Bridge street sewer is completed from the bridge to the Main street man-hole and work has begun on the side connections.

Don't think you will put Dallas Boudemann on a pedestal if you send him to the supreme court. He will be the same jolly Charlevoix chum when he comes to his Charlevoix cottage and will greet you with the same good fellowship. He will be just as mad if you fail to consult him about Charlevoix interests as he has ever been. Being a supreme judge he will be no less the genial, companionable gentleman.

The railroad company will put motive power on its Charlevoix bridge this winter.

We are thankful, but we will be more thankful when that confounded sewer is finished.

Upright and Hurlbut have sold 104 lots on their addition since June first, and sales are still lively.

Prof. J. B. Allen will enlarge and improve his residence on the corner of Main and State streets in the spring.

Union Thanksgiving Service will be held at the M. E. Church at 11 a. m. Rev. Mr. Van Auken will preach the sermon.

A. R. Upright and Oscar Upright of this place have formed a co-partnership for the transaction of a general real esate and insurance business. They have leased Bartholomew's new store on the corner of Bridge and Main streets which will be fitted up for their use, and for the County Clerk and Register's office.

The Charlevoix Shakespearean Club had a very interesting meeting at the Bridge St. House parlors, On Monday evening, Dec. 4th, at the residence of Willard A. Smith, the club will commence the reading of Hamlet.

The Charlevoix Social Club are perfecting arrangements for their grand ball on the evening of Thanksgiving, Nov. 30. The hall is being decorated, floors waxed and every arrangement made for a most successful and enjoyable occasion. All are invited.

Washburn, Ackert and Allen's machine shop can do anything that any mill in this country requires, and is now adding a foundry to the establishment.

The Charlevoix Cornet Band are preparing to give a grand masquerade ball at Lewis Hall on Christmas night. No pains will be spared to make the occasion an enjoyable one, and all who desire the success of the band are asked to patronize it. The band has a large selection of new music in rehearsal, and will play during the night in the ball and on the street if the weather permits. The music for the ball will be furnished by an enlarged orchestra, probably the best ever danced after in Charlevoix.

Banks has another valuable accession to its already intellectual and enterprising population, in the person of Rev. H. H. McCartney, formerly pastor of the M. E. Church at Cambria, Niagara County, N. Y. Mr. McCartney is the owner of a piece of land in Banks, and his removal to this region is due to failing health. If his health is regained he intends uniting himself with the Michigan Conference. His aged father, who accompanied him here from Ne w York died in Banks on the 6th, and was buried on the 8th, Rev. Mr. Kistler of Norwood officiating. The venerable gentleman has been faithful minister of the gospel in the Presbyterian Church for forty years and died firm in the faith to which he has devoted his life.

Sixty Years Ago

A Thanksgiving service will be held at the School House on Thursday, at 10:30 a. m. Sermon by the Rev. Geo. W. Wood. It is to be a day of National Thanksgiving, and every good citizen who realizes the great blessings that have been bestowed upon us as a nation and recognizes their source, ought by laying aside business and attending divine worship, to honor the proclamations of our rulers. All praise and thanks to the benificent Giver of our blessed prosperity!—for our peace and for our greatness.

School will commence at the new school building on Monday, the 9th, with J. M. Whitney as teacher.

Service will be held tomorrow at the new building, contrary to previous announcement. Rev. Mr. Wood in the morning and Rev. Mr. Cole in the evening.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

IT'S LONESOME WITHOUT A TELEPHONE

Trains could be no more thoughtful Christmas Gift for Father and Mother, or others dear to you, than the PROTECTION, convenience and comfort of telephone service.

In case of sudden sickness, fire or accident, a telephone will enable them to summon aid instantly.

It will help them to avoid dangerous exposure in stormy weather. It will keep them in constant touch with you, and with all the others for whom they care so much. And as it serves, year in, year out, it will remind them always of your affection for them.

Orders for telephone service to be installed in any city may be placed with the local Telephone Manager. Monthly charges will be billed to the giver as long as desired.

"CABIN IN THE COTTON" HAS DIXIE BACKGROUND

The South, grown-up and modernized, but still adhering to its old romantic color and living with its gallant traditions, is the background for the epic story of "The Cabin in The Cotton," Richard Barthelmess' latest First National film which comes to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday.

In the South of today, in the player, the share-cropper, the poor white and the negro, Harrison Kroll, who wrote the novel, and Paul Green—Pulitzer prize winner—who made the screen adaptation, have found a source of new and vital story material. Typically American, the lives of these people are filled with incidents little known and still less understood by their Eastern, Northern and West-ern brothers.

The class distinction, which is still such a vital part of Southern tradition, is shown in the love of the young "poor white" played by Barthelmess for the two girls, one a poor white like himself and the other a planter's daughter. His position in being placed between the two conflicting classes provides not only a novel romantic interest, but also the basis for a surge of events which makes the picture an innovation in film story material.

As novel and successful as most Barthelmess pictures have been to date, "The Cabin In The Cotton" is acclaimed as the greatest portrayal he has given in years, and topping in general interest his more recent "Dawn Patrol" and "Alias The Doctor" which have done much to secure his topnotch rank in filmdom.

The supporting cast contains a number of front rank names, and it is evident that the studio has found the story of great importance in its program for the casting of the characters was done with special care. Bette Davis and Dorothy Jordan share honors as leading ladies. Henry B. Walthall, the famed "Little Colonel" of "Birth of A Nation" fame, is once more transplanted to a Southern setting in this picture. Other capable players who contribute largely are Dorothy Peterson, Hardie Albright, David Landau, Tully Marshall, Berton Churchill, Russell Simpson, Edmund Breese, John Marston, Clarence Muse and many others.

The success achieved by Michael Curtiz in the direction of "Alias The Doctor" won him the directorial assignment of "The Cabin In The Cotton."

This sure-fire combination of story, cast and direction has placed this picture on every critic's "must" list.

As we look back over the week of our 50th Anniversary we say without hesitation that it was as successful a celebration as one could hope for in many ways it went beyond our expectations. The attendances were splendid. Over two hundred partook of the Anniversary dinner and a well filled house remained to hear the historical and musical program. Mrs. Harsha gave the historical sketch in a very pleasing manner and one could live with her again as she touched just the high spots. Mrs. Bridge gave a short sketch of the Junction Church. The music furnished by the Atwood Reformed Church was received with enthusiasm. That will not be the only time this community will hear these singers. Dr. Mattson brought greetings as a former pastor in his delightful manner Sunday morning. Mrs. Stelter presented a splendid musical program that drew many favorable comments and Dr. Mattson delivered the sermon for our final anniversary program.

Dr. Mattson held before us the thought "Ye have entered into their labors". Life and its institutions are too great to be controlled by one life, life's activities are shared by laborers of past, present and future generations. Fifty years is a considerable time, and there are many workers and all are sharers.

The challenge of today and tomorrow is "greater works than thou shalt ye do." With the advantages of today a live organization should be more successful, more serviceable today than five or fifty years ago. The Kingdom of God is not static but a growing life. The old Hebrew leaders did not obtain the promise they so much sought, nor do the leaders of today reach a total completion of their hopes but pass into the hands of coming generations their accomplishments who in turn will seek to obtain the hope. Dr. Mattson reminded us that the churches he had served in the past were all successful and he rejoiced in their success because they were only fulfilling the laws of living forces.

We wish to take this opportunity of thanking everyone who responded and tooverated in making the celebration so successful.

Regular services next Sunday with the pastor in the pulpit.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

A school activity program has been planned to take place for a half an hour each day from 11:30 until 12:00. This plan will begin this coming Monday. It will consist of an assembly program once a week, sing ing once a week, mass meeting once a week, and class meeting once every two weeks. There will also be activities two or three days a week presented by any of the following groups: Home Economics Club, Dramatic Club, Girl's Athletic Association, Boy's Club, Handicraft Club, Hi-Y Club, Girls Reserves Club, and Local History Club and any other clubs which the students are interested in such as Public speaking, newspaper and art. The aim of this plan is to have every student enter into at least one of these activities. The plan however is not yet completed but is expected to be running smoothly after the Christmas holidays. Everyone is looking forward with enthusiasm to Monday when this program will begin.

Home Economics Club

The members of the Home Economics Club enjoyed an especially interesting meeting on Monday evening if this week. The first number on the program was a short play "Invited Out", the scene was laid in a restaurant. John Winder and Lloyd Arnold were important characters in this ramification of good table manners and Naomi Block and Virginia Tay lor played the parts of two charming waitresses. Daisy Hutcher was program manager.

Interesting short talks following the dramatic play. Mary Louise Gallagher spoke on "Home is the Place to Practice Refinement and Fine Characters." Beverly Lasher continued the program with a discussion on "Hotel Etiquette," and Virginia Nickerson gave many helpful hints on the topic "Manners at a Social Gathering." Helen Chambers concluded the evening with the subject "Your Manners and You."

Drama Club

Members of the club have begun work on "The Other Ghost," a mystery play. The cast is as follows:

Hostess Thorpe—Daisy Hutcher.
Pauline Benney—Marjorie Partridge.
Sylvia Eckland—Ethel Powers.
Tabitha Moore—Doren Covatti.
Teenie Gordon—Martian Tyler.
Joyce Newman, Marguerite Chew Nancy Jerome—Janet Livingston.
Annette Sale—Margaret McLeno.
Grace Grimm—Juna Glazier.

The club's first presentation, "Quality Street", will be remembered by many. A play of equal charm is being considered for this year's offering. It is Allan Longdon Martins' "Smilin Through."

Assembly Program

Wednesday afternoon there was held in the gym a Junior and Senior High School assembly. The High School chorus presented a cantata "The Building of the Ship" by Longfellow. There was also assembly singing of Thanksgiving songs. Miss Reidel of the County Normal gave a reading "Mr. Thankful's Thanksgiving."

Mr. Soller of the University Extension will speak on the golfes o the Junior and Senior High on The day morning at 11:30. The public is invited to attend.

Personals

Where they will spend Thanksgiving:

Mrs. Sawyer plans to go to Detroit to spend the holiday at her home.

Miss Ferneau will be with her sister at Kingsley. She expects to meet the rest of her family there.

Mr. and Mrs. Kipke and Nancy Rae will journey to Manistique where Mrs. Kipke's parents live.

Miss Anderson will be a guest at he home of Mrs. Dowd.

Miss French is driving to her home in Quincy. It is reported that she is entertaining a guest on Thanksgiving Day.

Miss Dittmer will be in Scottsville, Mi and Mrs. North are going to their own turkey. It is expected hat Miss Eleanor will enjoy the drum stick.

Junior High News

Representatives from each class to the Student Council are as follows: 7th grade, Franklin Olmstead, Florence Palmer and Dorothy Olszewske. 8th grade, Harold Chew, Marjorie Miller, and Edward Hansen. 9th grade, Esther West, Margaret Gallagher, Darleen Williams and Rose Stold.

The Ninth grade were given a class say by Rena Belle Superman. Darleen Williams and Christine Wilbers at the gymnasium Friday night. The happenes were the sponsor, Mr. Mason, Mrs. Magee and Mr. Bingham. The evening was spent playing relay games. A treasure hunt was held in he Junior High Building. There were many clues which were very puzzling. Jeannie Foster and Wilma Kirby soon he first prize. Cider and doughnuts were served and a very enjoyable time was had by the forty who were present.

County Normal: "The class organized a tyrnum on Wednesday, October 1st. The following officers were elected: Bessie Hamilton, president; Irene Sherman, secretary. A short program was given as follows: A song by the class; dialogue by Lois Crites and Bessie Straw; recitation by Elizabeth Carne, solo by Ruth C. Ehrtzman; an original dialogue by Anna Ingalls and Lois Crites; recitation by Anna Ingalls; song by the class. After the program some games were played to celebrate Hollowe'en.

Do the same as Cook, Join the girls, Sam Rose will if you do.

This very interesting statement was found at the top of the Nov. 1 issue of the Charlevoix High School Bucther "Governor Warner is a subscriber for this paper. Are you?"

CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY

Clark, Mrs. Caroline Nichols and Mrs. A. J. McCloud. The records show there have been 720 accessions and 268 baptisms. The present enrollment is 206.

New members were received at almost every service in the early days. One of those who united with the church the first five years are still on the roll, viz: Mr. G. C. Gerkin (1884), Miss Hettie Bennet (1884), Miss Celia Nichols, now Mrs. A. P. Bridge (1885), Mrs. Margaret Harsha (1885), Mr. John Burns (1886), Mrs. Maggie Enos, now Mrs. A. A. Lamson (1886), Mrs. Hannah Irvin (1887), Mrs. Louise Holly, now Mrs. Elston (1887), Mrs. John Burns (1887).

The first annual meeting was held Jan. 7, 1883 at which Mr. John Nicholl, Mr. John Burns and Mr. J. L. Hurd were elected trustees. The first deacons were Elijah Hudson, Brice Suffield and E. M. Clark. Wm Kanaay was the first clerk and E. M. Clark the first treasurer. W. H. Miller and John Burns were elected deacons in 1891 and served in that capacity for many years.

Meetings were held usually in the school house or Barth house Hall until the church building was erected.

Dec. 11, 1882 a "society" of members and non-members of the church was organized and a compact with the church was adopted. Six trustees were appointed. Mr. R. W. Kane was elected clerk and Mr. C. Y. Cook was treasurer. All money was deposited in the Bank of Charlevoix to the credit of the First Congregational Church and Society. The deed to the church lot was made to the church and society. April 19, 1904, the property was deeded to the church and the compact between the church and so ciesp dissolved.

Mr. John Nichols secured the plans for the building in Wisconsin, Mr. Kirkpatrick was in charge of the carpenter work and Mr. Suffield of the excavating. Work was begun Oct. 1, 1883. The hardware was purchased from Stockman and Iddings and the Bartlehomes Co. The Marshall Heating company furnished the furnace at a cost of $200.00 and the Northville School Furniture Company the pews which cost $378.00. The windows were purchased from Misch and Brother of Chicago.

The church was dedicated Jan. 18, 1885, Rev. Penfield of Boston preaching the dedicatory sermon. The building was crowded to the doors, here were liberal subscriptions and it was a happy day both spiritually and financially.

The burial was the second next year (1886) at a cost of $201.00 and the pipe organ a few years later at a cost of $1200.00.

The first parsonage located on Michigan Avenue was purchased during Rev. Putnam's pastorate 1895-1897 and sold when the present parsonage was acquired in 1912.

There have been five church clerks, viz. Wm. Kanagy, who served two years, E. S. Harsha, ten years; F. N. Chapel, two years, E. A. Burnett, four years, Mrs. Margaret Harsha, thirty-two years.

Sixteen pastors have been called and their names follow with the number of years they served, viz.: Rev. Chauncey Van Auken (4); Rev. A. T. Waterman (1), Rev. O. A. Downey (2), Rev. Jno. S. Rood (1), Rev. W. L. McPherson (4), Rev. F. G. Ritzcrook (2), Rev. Jno McCallum (11), Rev. Jno. Allsworth (2), Rev. Jas. Hyslop (6), Rev. H. A. Putman (7), Rev. C. D. Taggart (7), Mr. Harold Van Kirk (1), Rev. Jas. A. Smith (11), Rev. Clarence Long (3), Rev. B. G. Mattson (5), Rev. G. R. Parker (2).

The Ladies' Aid Society and Sunday School were organized in 1882, the Y. P. S. C. E. in 1887, the Missionary Society in 1898 and the Junior Y. P. S. C. E. in 1917. The South Side Circle, Mary Brewster Circle, and Pilgrim Circle, Auxiliary to the Ladies' Aid, have functioned since 1921.

The names and dates here entered are but the skeleton of the history which Mrs. Harsha enlivened with many interesting and intimate experiences out of her own personal recollection.

THE "BONUS" UPHELD

(By James R. Moreland)

I am not given to newspaper discussions, but I feel that many people do not fully understand the "bonus" proposition and are unfair to the ex-service men. In 1922 the commutation of the soldiers was adjusted and certificates issued payable in 20 years. Against those certificates most service men have borrowed approximately 50 per cent, on which they pay interest, etc. We owe the money. The government has already issued certificates evidencing that indebtedness. It is only a question whether we pay now with nonin terest bearing negotiable paper, or wait 12 years and issue interest bearing obligations. In any event, whatever the form, the security back of the obligations is the same—the government's I. O. U. But it is not those shoes of the problem I wish to discuss.

Let me say here that I have no direct interest in this bonus issue, as I am not a service man and none of my sons were old enough to serve in the World War. My reason is solely an economic one. I believe it will have a great beneficial effect on present economic conditions. At present our country is upset by the destruction of values—commodity and all other kinds of property, including real estate. In the presence of plenty we experience a great depression. Merchants must readjust their prices and take large loses on their inventories of goods bought at the form-r values, but now worth much less. But those commodities are worth just as much as ever, though the price is down, because the exchange media (money) is up. A dollar now has the purchasing value of two. But by law in the United States it is worth only one hundred cents.

The per capita circulation of money today (including that which is hoarded and not circulating, and there is now money hoarded in Wall street and banks than by all private individuals) is $34 while 10 years ago it was $65. Under the law as enacted some years ago our circulation notes or paper money must be secured by at least 40 percent of gold. We now have in the U. S. treasury and federal reserve banks enough monetary gold for a 70 percent security. We have therefore on what many economists call the double gold standard assume it is almost doubly secured by gold. England, as the chief sufferer of the gold standard, through the Bank of England, maintained a corps of experts who were constantly alert to any deflation or inflation and for 10 years before she left the gold standard the value of gold varied a fluctuated but slightly. Neither France nor the United States has any such an organization. France revaluated her franc by making five francs worth one dollar; by reducing by approximately that percentage the gold content of a franc. (and their country was not ruined as some would have us believe this country would be by "refiation" of our money) We have rested comfortably in our supposed security of a federal reserve system which would save us from money panics. It could do so with such an economics organization as the Bank of England maintained, for under the present law the federal reserve board may issue nearly five billion of paper money with the present supply of reserve gold in its vaults as security.

With the issue of two billions two hundred millions of currency will not bring the per capita circulation back to where it was 10 years ago. Such issue will NOT BE FIAT MONEY because it will be secured by the requisite gold reserve. This issue will NOT INCREASE OUR NATIONAL OBLIGATIONS OR DEBTS, because we already legally owe it. And it will have admitted our obligation. This issue will restore to some extent the value of commodities and property of all kinds. It will turn some losses into profits. It will start commodity prices upward and encourage buying. No one ever stocks up coal, sugar or other necessities on a falling market. With such buying commenced, factories and mills and fields will be supply that increased demand, and prosperity will in fact be around the corner.

But care must be exercised not to repeat this dose. The currency must not be inflated beyond the point of inflation of five or 10 years ago. Our circulation per capita should not go beyond the $55 of 10 years ago. This bonus will not do that by a safe margin. We then had abundance of inflation, but that inflation became the standard because all values were established and debts contracted with reference to it. Years ago we heard of the "dishonest dollar," that it was dishonest to allow a man to pay his debts with 50-cent dollars. True—but is it any less dishonest to exact payment in 200-cent dollars?

Much more might be said. Let us forget the bonus feature as a "raid on the treasury", as some call it. Let us admit that it is unwise to pay our debts 12 years before due. Yet, with all that, is it not worth the price as a means of circulating the new money necessary to "reflate" the currency? This means of starting circulation will place it in circulation in all corners of the United States and not merely in Wall street. It will keep the money from flowing back into the treasury as feared. It will re-establish commodity values. It will start buying. It may save us fro disaster.

In addition to all this it will help save those who helped save us a short 15 years ago.

According to government estimates of an average of $500 for each adjusted compensation certificate, the immediate community of Charlevoix would receive through the veterans around $50,000 dollars. In times past how much effect has been spent by various organizations to bring a convention here that would leave only a fraction of that amount in the city?

Pleading for Health

It is to bring a smile to suf, whistl ?ures like this little boy—lifted from the sanatorium rut, his home for many long months—that the children on the 1932 tuberculosis Christmas seal are singing their song. They are said a pretty picture to think that 1,452 tuberculosis is a grim reality. Already in his only way he has learned to perform the acts of precaution taught every sanatorium patient that he may prevent his disease spreading to others.

Tuberculosis is the "great, big, black, bogey man" of the tales that much little children must hear until the "Good Fairy," Health, has sent the shadow of disease away. Happy endings to all their stories are hastened by the work done from funds which are built penny by penny, dollar by dollar, sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals.

THANKSGIVING DAY

The average person goes along from day to day, without much thought of the many privileges and blessings he enjoys.

Happiness is largely a matter of comparison and if you see some one who is a lot worse off than we are, it is not hard for us to be thankful.

The Charlevoix State Savings Bank can see many reasons for being thankful today and if anyone with the rest of our citizens, in a community that has enjoyed good business, good health and has good prospects for the future.

MEANS MILLIONS TO MICHIGAN

CARE OF DISABLED VETERANS BRINGS $24,000,000 TO STATE

Hundreds of thousands of dollars that now are coming annually into Michigan will be withheld from the channels of business, and instead, the burden of higher local and state taxes will occur if organized groups succeed in stopping various benefits now existing under the law for disabled veterans, according to Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion.

In a statement just issued, the national commander said in part as follows: "The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, through its (legislative, or illegitimate) delegate, Hyer, 'Nef', as the American Legion has come to know the National Economy League, are seeking through misrepresentation to unduly alarm the country regarding the cost of caring for disabled veterans. Admiral Byrd is the spear-head for 'Nef' in touring the country. He is the distinguished son of a distinguished family and I have always thought he was against him personally, I believe that unwittingly and unintentionally he is the stalking horse for that comparatively small group whose profits in one year (1928) were $6,309,000,000. (Sufficient to pay the "bonus" twice.)

"The opposition of this group to the care of the disabled has been traced to the fact that out of their huge profits they pay a large share of the federal income tax, and if the care of the disabled is curtailed their taxes can be reduced because the burden can then be shifted to the 'little fellow' or local tax payer, few of whom pay or know very much about any federal income tax. In the year of our greatest prosperity, 1928, this group of opponents paid a total federal income tax of $909,000,000, leaving $5,400,000,000 as a net income of $129,000 each out of their more than six billion dollars profits.

"If their scheme should succeed, it is easy enough to understand that Michigan would immediately lose several thousand disabled veterans thrown upon the mercy of the local communities. Many of these disabled men would have no means of support, and instead of spending federal payments for groceries, medicine, clothing, etc., would be objects of charity.

"Therefore, the channels of trade in the communities of Michigan would lose that income now coming to them; and in addition, the local taxes for the upkeep of local hospitals, county farms and other institutions would increase. This does not take into consideration the human misery involved, nor the fact that it is cheaper in the end to cure these men, and to restore them to self-support. How much wiser to 'cure' rather than 'curse.'

"The payments by the federal government for Michigan veterans, and the number of Michigan veterans receiving them for the 12 months ending June 30, 1932, follow:

"Disability compensation, 10,282 veterans, amount $5,206,862; disability allowance, 10,795, amount $2,134,031; death compensation, 2,564, $936,118; emergency officers retirement pay, 111, $203,105; military and naval insurance (term), 4,583, $3,833,112; adjusted service and dependent pay, $98,004; adjusted service certificates, matured by death, $788,026; pensions, 17,018, $9,871,583; veterans remaining in hospital, 1,325; administration, $1,416,446; hospital and domiciliary facilities and services, $241,780. Total disbursements $24,249,048."

The Progressive Club of Boyne City, will hold its regular meeting Tuesday, December 6th, at 7 p. m. The meeting will be held at the Wolverine Hotel and the principal address will be given by Prentiss Brow , newly elected congressman and the subject will be "Northern Michigan" and Business Conditions." Dinner 40 cents. Everybody invited.

FILM STAR STILL SUCCESS AFTER 14 YEARS ON SCREEN

Irene Rich Will Be Seen Here In Will Rogers Latest

Fourteen years ago a divorcee with two children to support bravely battled out as a film extra. Today she is one of the screen's best known players. Such is the record of Irene Rich, whose latest role is that of Will Rogers' wife in "Down To Earth," coming next Saturday and Sunday to the Palace Theater.

Her own persistence, plus the recognition given her by the late Adolph Zukor when he selected her as his leading lady in a series of silent pictures made back in 1920 and 1921 is responsible for her success, she avers.

"I always tried to get hold of something substantial," Miss Rich says, "instead of something for show. When the other players around me were spending all their salary on flashy cars, I saved mine until I had enough to make a down payment on a home. I didn't own a car until I was established as a 'star', and even then I only bought a flivver, much to the horror of my director.

"But as a result, it wasn't long before I could shed all worry about role. I could afford to wait and pick the good ones. There were Frances and Jane to be considered, and I wanted more than anything else to have a good home and a secure future for all three of us. So when I won those early roles with Will, I knew the policy was sound. Later, when some of those who had laughed at my caution and penuriousness had vanished from the limelight, my system was again confirmed. It isn't spectacular—but it works."

In "Down To Earth," which is rated as one of the funniest and most entertaining pictures of Rogers' career, Miss Rich and the star are again a wife and husband. Dorothy Jordan, Mary Kornman and Kenneth Carlisle have the romantic roles in this Fox production, with Theodore Lodi, Brandon Hurst, Clarence Wilson and Lucien Mackintosh in prominent parts. David Butler directed from the original story by Homer Croy.

RECENT DEATH OF IVAN R. GATES OF LOCAL INTEREST

Was Son Of Anna Bell Gates Formerly of Charlevoix

The death of Ivan R. Gates, who thrilled thousands as an automobile racer and later as an airplane stunt pilot, and recently plunged to his death from the window of his sixth floor apartment in New York, will stir the memories of some of the older inhabitants of this community.

His wife who seized his legs in an effort to restrain him, was almost carried to her death with him.

His action was accorded to the reverses he had suffered in the financial crash after he had amassed a fortune. He was born, in Rockford, Mich., about 43 years ago and was the son of Anna Bell Gates, who was a long time resident of Charlevoix and was married to Aaron B. Gates of Rockford, Mich, who was a traveling cigar salesman in this vicinity about forty-five years ago.

Rammed By Automobile While Moored At Local Dock

After buffeting the storms and braving the rigor of winter ice on the Great Lakes for years and emerging unscathed, the Conservation Department's Patrol Boat Number One has met with its first accident by being rammed by an automobile.

The boat was moored at the dock when a car at the top of the hill ran down the incline, across the dock and into the boat. The fact that the front wheels dropped between the boat and the dock saved the cabin.

DEATH TAKES A. I. CREAMER

MANAGER OF "THE INN" HERE FOR MANY YEARS

Dr. R. B. Armstrong received a telegram Wednesday morning from Damariscotta, Me., announcing the death of Andrew I. Creamer, which occurred Tuesday evening, the funeral to be held Friday forenoon.

Mr. Creamer has been a prominent summer resident of Charlevoix since April 1906, when he was assistant manager of the Inn for two years with Mr. Bailey as manager, at which time Mr. Bailey passed away, and from that time until two years ago, Mr. Creamer conducted the Inn and proved himself to be a decided ly efficient proprietor.

He returned here last spring and supervised the management of the Inn last summer, at which time he was in a very precarious physical condition

Mr. Creamer also owned and operated a very popular hotel known as the Highland Pines Inn at Southern Pines, North Carolina

Mr. and Mrs. Creamer returned to their home at Damariscotta, Me., at the close of the resort season, where Mr. Creamer's health has been rapidly failing.

EPWORTH LEAGUE FELLOWSHIP HOUR SUNDAY P. M.

Games, Refreshments, Devotional Services Feature

The Epworth League of the local M. E. Church plans to experiment with a novel idea this coming Sunday at the vesper hour. The regular League devotional service will be preceded by a Fellowship Hour. The two programs will be arranged to supplement each other. The affair will be held in the church dining room, and will begin at 5:00 p. m. All young people of the community who are not otherwise affiliated are invited to join in the meeting. The complete program follows:

5:00 to 5:30—Alphabetical Spelldown.
5:30 to 6:00—General Games.
6:00 to 6:20—Refreshments.
6:30 to 7:00—Playwriting Tournament.
7:00 to 7:30—Devotional Service.

If the League finds this idea is practical, the Fellowship Hour idea may be made a monthly feature of the League program.

DISTRICT MEET OF AMERICAN LEGION SET FOR DEC. 11TH

Onaway Place of Meeting; Other Activities Planned

Sunday, December 11th, is the date of the next meeting of the Lower Eleventh District, American Legion, at Onaway. The program includes the business meeting at 1:30 p. m., E. S. T., at the county court house, followed by a parade at 2:00 p. m. A banquet will be served at 3:30 p. m.

It is possible that the parade will be called off, due to the uncertainty of the weather.

Plans are proceeding for the dance scheduled for a week from today, December 8th the admission charge for which has been reduced to 25c per couple.

A week from next Tuesday night another of those popular Stag Card parties will be held. The usual admission and the usual good time will prevail.

The date of the turkey party originally designated for Friday evening, December 23rd, has been changed to Wednesday evening, December 21st.

The Maccabee Circle will meet Friday afternoon at 2:30 with Mrs. Phillips on Mason street. All members and friends are invited.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL CHAIRMAN THANKS PUBLIC

Amount of Subscriptions Is Greater Than Last Year

Dr. C. J. Winder, chairman of the local Red Cross Roll Call, wishes to thank the public for their wholehearted response in the recent membership drive which resulted in raising an amount exceeding that of last year and this in the face of the present economic conditions.

Also much commendation goes to the workers and solicitors who aided in any way in the success of the undertaking.

Additional funds are expected from sources that have not as yet reported and after these have been heard from a complete report will be made public.

PRENTISS BROWN WILL SPEAK HERE TO FISHERMEN

On Problem Of The Use of Submarine Nets, Etc.

R. F. Sloan and J. M. Foster, leading Charlevoix Democrats, made a friendly call last Saturday on Prentiss M. Brown, newly elected Congressman of this district at his home in Iron, St. Ignace.

Mr. Brown will be here December 6th, 4 p. m. at the Legion Home on E. Garfield, where he will discuss submarine fishing methods with Charlevoix County fishermen. Later in the evening he will deliver an address at Boyne City before the Progressive Business Men's Club.

Will the party who walked away with the weighing machine from in front of Dahlquist's store Saturday night please notify the owners where they may recover the same. No questions asked, no attempt at prosecution and they are welcome to the pennies if they enable us to recover the scales.—DAHLQUIST'S. 3241

MUSIC FESTIVAL FRIDAY EVENING

200 RURAL CHILDREN TO APPEAR IN MUSIC EVENT

A musical event unique in many respects is scheduled for the Charlevoix High School gymnasium on the evening of Friday, December 2, at 8 o'clock. The presentation is under the auspices of the local school music department and the training of the children and direction of the program is in the hands of Miss Esther Mary Atkinson.

Over 200 children from ten rural schools, McGeorgh, Lenk, Hoppyard, Marion Center, Bungess, Ironton, Barnard, Newland, Murray and Bay Shore, will take part in the festival. For the past month Miss Atkinson has spent some time each day in the rural schools mentioned and all of the children will come to the program prepared to sing the same numbers in massed chorus.

In addition to the large chorus composed of all the children from all the schools participating, each school is offering solo and ensemble numbers, vocal and instrumental, that will lend variety and interest to the program. The performance will be given without admission charge and the public is cordially invited to attend.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB MEETS AT THE PRESIDENT'S HOME

Place And Subject Same As It Was Fifty Years Ago

The Charlevoix Shakespeare Study Club met at the home of Mrs. Ira A. Adams, president, 208 Park Avenue, Monday afternoon. The subject was Hamlet, lead by Mrs. H. S. Harsha.

The program had been made out several months ago by the committee in charge and fifty years ago, on that day, the Shakespeare Club, Willard A. Smith, president, subject, Hamlet, met at his home then Main street, but now 208 Park Avenue, in the same room where the present club met, exactly fifty years ago to the day.

The remembrances was brought to light when Mrs. Adams, daughter of the president of the fifty year ago Shakespearean Club, was preparing the "Fifty Years Ago" news for the Sentinel.

The club was scheduled to meet with Mrs. Louis O'Neill, on that day but on accidental discovery existed the change.

MICHIGAN TO PROFIT FROM 1933 WORLD'S FAIR

Motorists Passing Through Will Spend Millions

Michigan is to the city of Chicago itself, stands to be one of the biggest gainers in an immediate financial way from the Century of Progress Exposition to be held at Chicago from June 1 to October 31 next year.

Members of the Michigan Century of Progress Commission point out that the shortest and most logical route for visitors from eastern Canada, New York and the New England states is across Michigan — with Sault Ste. Marie on the north and Port Huron and Detroit on the east being the points of entry.

So as to attract the maximum number of such visitors through Michigan the commission has designed a special stamp, an inch by an inch and a half, in attractive colors of black, red and blue. On the background of the stamp appears the outline of the state, across which in sweeping lines converging upon Chicago appears the slogan, "Through Michigan, the Playground of the Nation, to Chicago."

A campaign is now under way to get as many individuals and business firms as possible to use these stamps on all mail going outside the state—particularly on mail going east.

Not only will Michigan profit from

HOUSEHOLDERS RECEIVE SEALS THROUGH MAILS

Room For a Seal On Every Parcel Mailed Before Xmas

Remember Michigan householders that the time has come to think about Christmas and Christmas greetings. The Christmas seals were issued on 31,441 mail boxes Dec. 1st in letters mailed directly from the headquarters of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association at Lansing. Package shipments have been made to rural schools, local mail sale managers in some county museums and superintendents of county schools, with a grand total for the state of fifty-seven million seals.

Scarcely a Christmas gift package is received by anyone anywhere that does not have some place on its surface one of the tuberculosis seals. They serve then for all of their Christmas mail, letters and cards. That year the design of the seal shows two children singing "sail of a huge noisy book. But no matter what the seals picture there is included always the bubble barred cross in red, emblem of anti-tuberculosis societies, reminders of the great work done by them.

By interesting children were placed on the 1932 seal since the volume of work which they represent is now equal to the total. Early discovery of the disease for humane and economical reasons now gets the greater part of the earnings of the seal.

Seals sent through the mail in Michigan were accompanied by a letter from a high school boy whose life was saved through the discovery that he was a sufferer from tuberculosis in a high school survey made by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association. Many of the letters from pupils point out that the pennies earned by the seal go first for the saving of children's lives; second for education. There were 63 deaths from tuberculosis among Michigan children last year the Association states, and similarly, we can't let tuberculosis die in our children in 1933 what it did in 1932.

MAKES MISTAKE IN HIS STATEMENTS SO APOLOGIZES

J. M. Bartholomy, Boyne Falls Publicly Admits Error

Boyne Falls, Michigan
November 12th, 1932.

Mr. Herman Meyer,
Boyne Falls, Mich.

Dear Sir:

During the Primary campaign of 1932 I made the statement at various localities in Charlevoix County that you had been a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

I find that I was mistaken and that said statement was not true.

I herewith extend to you my most abject apology and express to you my sincere regret that any statement of mine may have caused you any injury of any kind.

This apology is made with the express purpose of righting the wrong which was caused you.

Sincerely submitted,
J. M. Bartholomy.

KEEPERS FOIL JAIL ESCAPE

HARRY CORLENTZ SLUGGED BY BOYNE CITY YOUTH

A jail delivery was narrowly averted at Boyne November night, when jailer Harry Corlentz was slugged by Arnold Thomas, age 19 year old prisoner from Boyne City.

The latter used grass in his hair to make it appear as though he was dead. Then he lay on the head with a sock loaded with a brass rack piece of iron pipe. The blow fairly knocked Mr. Corlentz senseless and his sock and belt to the floor. His cell for assistance brought his son Chester from upstairs who after a struggle returned Arnold to his cell.

Jeanne B. O'Donnell was a visitor on the mentioned in front of the week.

As we look back over the week of our 80th Anniversary we say without hesitation that it was as successful a celebration as one could hope for in many ways it went beyond our expectations. The attendances were splendid. Over two hundred partook of the Anniversary dinner and a well filled house remained to hear the historical and musical program. Mrs. Harsha gave the historical sketch in a very pleasing manner and one could live with her again as she breathed just the high spots. Mrs. Bridge gave a short sketch of the Ironton Church. The music furnished by the Atwood Reformed Church was received with enthusiasm. That will not be the only time this community will hear these singers. Dr. Mattson brought greetings as a former pastor in his delightful manner Sunday morning Mrs. Stelter presented a splendid musical program that drew many favorable comments and Dr. Mattson delivered the sermon for our final anniversary program.

Dr. Mattson held before us this thought "Ye have entered into their labors". Life and its institutions are too great to be controlled by one life, life's activities are shared by laborers of past, present and future generations. Fifty years is a considerable time, and there are many workers and all are sharers.

The challenge of today and tomorrow is "greater works than these shall ye do." With the advantages of today a live organization should be more successful, more serviceable today than five or fifty years ago. The Kingdom of God is not static but a growing life. The old Hebrew leaders did not obtain the promise they so much sought, nor do the leaders of today reach a total completion of their hopes but pass into the hands of coming generations their accomplishments who in turn will seek to obtain the hope. Dr. Mattson reminded us that the churches he had served in the past were all successful and he rejoiced in their success because they were only fulfilling the laws of living forces.

We wish to take this opportunity of thanking everyone who responded and cooperated in making the celebration so successful.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

A school activity program has been planned to take place for a half an hour each day from 11:30 until 12:00. This plan will begin this coming Monday. It will consist of an assembly program once a week, sing ing once a week; mass meeting once a week, and class meeting once every two weeks. There will also be activities two or three days a week presented by any of the following groups: Home Economics Club, Dramon Club, Girl's Athletic Association, Boy's Athletic Association, Pep Club, Handicraft Club, 4-H Club, Girls Reserves Club, and Local History Club and any other clubs which the students are interested in such as Public speaking, newspaper and art. The aim of this plan is to have every student enter into at least one of these activities. The plan however is not yet completed but is expected to be started smoothly after the Christmas holiday. Everyone is looking forward with enthusiasm to Monday when the program will begin.

Home Economics Club

The members of the Home Economics Club enjoyed an especially interesting meeting on Monday evening if this week. The first number on the program was a short play "Invited Out", the scene was laid in a restaurant. John Winder and Lloyd Arnold were important characters in the pantomination of good table manners and Naomi Hisek and Virginia Tayor played the parts of two charming waitresses. Daisy Butcher was property manager.

Interesting short talks following the short play Mary Louise Gallagher spoke on "Home is the Place to Practice Refinement and Fine Character." Beverly Looker continued the program with a discussion on "Hotel Etiquette," and Virginia Nickerson gave many helpful hints on the topic "Manners at a Social Gathering." Helen Chambers concluded the evening with the subject "Your Manners and You."

Drama Club

Members of the club have begun work on "The Other Ghost," a mystery play. The cast is as follows:

Hester Thorpe—Daisy Butcher.
Barbara Benneny—Marjorie Partridge.
Sylvia Kirkland—Ethel Powers.
Tabitha Moore—Ilene Covatti.
Tennie Gordon—Marian Tyler.
Joyce Peterman, Marguerite Chesney Nanny Jerome—Janet Livingston
Annette Sale—Margaret McLaren.
Grace Gibson—Julia Gladon.

The club's first presentation, "Quality Street", will be remembered by many. A play of equal charm is being considered for this year's offering. It is Allan Longdon Martins' "Smilin Through."

Assembly Program

Wednesday afternoon there was held in the gym a Junior and Senior High School assembly. The High School chorus presented a cantata "The Building of the Ship" by Longfellow. There was also assembly singing of Thanksgiving songs. Miss Reisel of the County Normal gave a reading "Mr. Thankful's Thanksgiving."

The Parent-Teacher's Association held a meeting on Tuesday evening with Reverend Fellow from Petoskey as speaker.

Mr. Sutter of the University Extension Service will speak on the golden rule in the Junior and Senior High on Tuesday morning at 11:30. The public is invited to attend.

Personals

Where they will spend Thanksgiving:

Mrs. Sawyer plans to go to Detroit to spend the holiday at her home.

Miss Ferrazo will be with her sister at Kingsley. She expects to meet the rest of her family there.

Mr. and Mrs. Kipke and Nancy Rae will journey to Manistique where Mrs. Lipke's parents live.

Miss Anderson will be a guest at the home of Mrs. Dowd.

Miss French is driving to her home in Quincy. It is reported that she is entertaining a guest on Thanksgiving Day.

Miss Dittmer will be in Scottsville.

Mr. and Mrs. North are going to cook their own turkey. It is expected that Miss Eleanor will enjoy the drumstick.

Junior High News

Representatives from each class in the Student Council are as follows: 7th grade, Franklin Olmstead, Florence Palmer and Dorothy Olszewski; 8th grade, Harold Chew, Marjorie Miller, and Edward Bassett. 9th grade, Esther West, Margaret Gallagher, Herbert Williams and Rose Judd.

The 8th grade were given a class activity by Rena Belle Superneau, Harleen Williams and Charmion Wilbert at the gymnasium Friday night. The chaperons were the sponsor, Mr. Mason, Mrs. Magor and Mr. Hughan. The evening was spent playing relay games. A treasure hunt was held in the Junior High Building. There were two clues which were very puzzling. Jeanine Foster and Wilma Kirby won the first prize. Cider and doughnuts were served and a very enjoyable time was had by the forty who were present.

Clark, Mrs. Caroline Nichols and Mrs. A. J. McCloud. The records show there have been 726 accessions and 268 baptisms. The present enrollment is 206.

New members were received at almost every service in the early days. One of those who united with the church the first five years are still on the roll, viz.: Mr. G. C. Gelkin (1864), Miss Hettie Bennet (1864), Miss Celia Nichols, nee Mrs. A. F. Bridge (1865), Mrs. Margaret Harsha (1865), Mr. John Harris (1866), Miss Maggie Enos, now Mrs. A. A. Denton (1866), Mrs. Hannah Irvin (1867), Mrs. Louise Hally, now Mrs. Elston (1867), Mrs. John Burns (1867).

The first annual meeting was held Jan. 7, 1868 at which Mr. John Nichol., Mr. John Burns and Mr. J. L. Hurd were elected trustees. The first deacons were Elijah Hudson, Brice Suffield and E. M. Clark. Wm Easterday was the first clerk and E. M. Clark the first treasurer W. H. Miller and John Burns were elected deacons in 1901 and served in that capacity for many years.

Meetings were held usually in the school house or Bethlehem Hall until the church building was erected.

Dec. 11, 1882 a "society" of members and non-members of the church was organized and a compact with the church was adopted. Six trustees were appointed. Mr. R. W. Kane was elected clerk and Mr. C. V. Cook was treasurer. All money was deposited in the Bank of Charlevoix to the credit of the First Congregational Church and Society. The deed to the church lot was made to the church and society. April 19, 1904, the property was deeded to the church and the compact between the church and society dissolved.

Mr. John Nichols secured the plans for the building in Wisconsin. Mr. Kirkpatrick was in charge of the carpenter work and Mr. Suffield of the excavating. Work was begun Oct. 1, 1882. The hardware was purchased from Stockman and Hidings and the Bartholomew Co. The Marshall Heating Company furnished the furnace at a cost of $200.00 and the Northville School Furniture Company the pews which cost $720.00. The windows were purchased from Musch and Brother of Chicago.

The church was dedicated Jan. 18, 1885, Rev. Fairfield of Boston preaching the dedicatory sermon. The building was crowded to the doors, here were liberal subscriptions and it was a happy day both spiritually and financially.

The bell was purchased the next year (1886) at a cost of $201.00 and the pipe organ a few years later at a cost of $1200.00.

The first parsonage located on Michigan Avenue was purchased during Rev. Putnam's pastorate (1905-1912) and sold when the present parsonage was acquired in 1912.

There have been five church clerks, viz.: Wm. Kanagy, who served two years, H. S. Harsha, ten years, F. N. Chapel, two years, E. A. Burnett, four years, Mrs. Margaret Harsha, thirty-two years.

Sixteen pastors have been called and their names follow with the number of years they served, viz.: Rev. Chauncey Van Aukin (5), Rev. A. F. Waterman (1), Rev. O. A. Downey (2), Rev. Jno. S. Bond (1), Rev. W. J. McPherson (4), Rev. F. G. Estabrook (2), Rev. Jno. McCallum (1), Rev. Jno. Allsworth (2), Rev. Jas. Hyslop (6), Rev. H. A. Putnam (7), Rev. C. E. Taggart (7), Rev. Edward Van Kirk (3), Rev. Jas. A. Smith (11), Rev. Clarence Long (3), Rev. B. G. Mattson (5), Rev. G. R. Park (2), (2).

The Ladies' Aid Society and Sunday School were organized in 1882, the Y. P. S. C. E. in 1887, the Missionary Society in 1898 and the Junior C. E. Soc. in 1917. The South Side Circle, Mary Brewer Circle, and Pilgrim Circle, Auxiliary to the Ladies' Aid, have functioned since 1921.

The names and dates here entered are but the skeleton of the history which Mrs. Harsha enlivened with many interesting and intimate experiences out of her own personal recollection.

THE "BONUS" UPHELD

(By James R. Moreland)

I am not given to newspaper discussions, but I fear that many people do not fully understand the "bonus" proposition and are unfair to the excessive men. In 1924 the compensation of the soldiers was adjusted and certificates issued payable in 20 years. Against those certificates most service men have borrowed approximately 50 per cent, on which they pay interest, etc. We owe the money. The government has already issued certificates evidencing that indebtedness. It is only a question whether we pay now with non-interest bearing negotiable paper, or wait 12 years and issue interest bearing obligations. In any event, whatever the form, the security back of the obligations is the same—the government's I. O. U. But it is not those phases of the problem I wish to discuss.

Let me say here that I have no direct interest in this bonus issue, as I am not a service man and none of my sons were old enough to serve in the World War. My reason is solely an economic one. I believe it will have a great beneficial effect on present economic conditions. At present our country is upset by the destruction of values—commodity and all other kinds of property, including real estate. In the presence of plenty we experience a great depression. Merchants must readjust their prices and take large losses on their inventories of goods bought at the former values, but now worth much less. But those commodities are worth just as much as ever, though the price is down, because the exchange media (money) is up. A dollar now has the purchasing value of two. But by law in the United States it is worth only one hundred cents.

The per capita circulation of money today (including that which is hoarded and not circulating, and there is now money hoarded to Wall street and banks than by all private individuals) is $44 while 10 years ago it was $65. Under the law as enacted some years ago our circulation notes or paper money must be secured by at least 40 percent of gold. We now have in the U. S. treasury and federal reserve banks enough monetary gold for a 70 percent security. We have therefore on what many economists call the double gold standard because it is almost doubly secured by gold England, as the chief adherent of the gold standard, through the Bank of England, maintained a corps of experts who were constantly alert to any deflation or inflation and for 10 years before she left the gold standard the value of gold varied or fluctuated but slightly. Neither France nor the United States has any such an organization. France revalued her franc by making five francs out of one—by reducing by approximately that percentage the gold content of a franc (and their country was not ruined as some would have us believe this country would be by "reflation" of our money). We have rested comfortably in our supposed security of a federal reserve system which would save us from money panics. It could do so with such an economics organization as the Bank of England maintained, for under the present law the federal reserve board may issue nearly five billions of paper money with the present supply of reserve gold in its vaults as security.

This sum of two billions two hundred millions of currency will not bring the per capita circulation back to where it was 10 years ago. Such issue will NOT BE FIAT MONEY because it will be secured and the requisite gold reserve. This issue will NOT INCREASE OUR NATIONAL OBLIGATIONS OR DEBTS, because we already legally owe it and have admitted our obligation. This issue will restore to some extent the value of commodities and property of all kinds. It will turn some losses into profits. It will start commodity prices upward and encourage buying. No one ever stocks up coal, sugar or other necessities on a falling market. With such buying commenced, idle factories and mills must begin to supply that increased demand, and prosperity will in fact be around the corner.

But care must be exercised not to repeat this dose. The currency must not be inflated beyond the point of inflation of five or ten years ago. Our circulation per capita should not go beyond the $55 of 10 years ago. This issue will not do that by a safe margin. We then had abundance of inflation, but that inflation became the standard because all values were established and debts contracted with reference to it. Years ago we heard of the "dishonest dollar," that it was dishonest to allow a man to pay his debts with 50-cent dollars. True, but it is any less dishonest to exact payment in 200-cent dollars?

Much more might be said. Let us forget the bonus feature as a "raid on the treasury", as some call it. Let us admit that it is unwise to pay our debts 12 years before due. Yet, with all that, is it not worth the price as a means of circulating the new money necessary to "reflate" the currency? This means of starting circulation will place it in circulation in all corners of the United States and not merely in Wall s reet. It will keep the money from flowing back into the treasury as feared. It will re-establish commodity values. It will start buying. It may save us fro disaster.

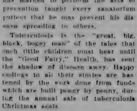
In addition to all this it will help save those who helped save us a short 15 years ago.

According to government estimates of an average of $500 for each adjusted compensation certificate, the immediate community of Charlevoix would receive through the veterans around $50,000 dollars. In times past how much effort has been spent by various organizations to bring a convention here that would leave only a fraction of that amount in the city?

Pleading for Health

It is to bring a smile to and, whilst here into this little boy's—lifted from the incantations cut, his honor for many long months—that the children on the 1932 Independence Centennial are singing their song. They are still a pretty picture to this child, but tuberculosis is a grim reality. Already he his safely way he has learned to perform the acts of prescription taught every sanatorium patient that he may prevent his disease spreading to others.

Tuberculosis is the "great, big, black, bogey man" of the tales that much little children must bear until the "Good Fairy," Health, has sent the shadow of disease away. Happy endings to all their tales are hastened by the work done from funds which are built penny by penny, during the annual sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals



THANKSGIVING DAY

The average person goes along from day to day, without much thought of being thankful for the many privileges and blessings he enjoys.

Happiness is largely a matter of comparison, and there are few same one who is a lot worse off than we are; it is not hard for us to be thankful.

The Charlevoix State Savings Bank can see many reasons for being thankful today and rejoices with the rest of our citizens, in a community that has enjoyed good business, good health and has good prospects for the future.

MEANS MILLIONS TO MICHIGAN

CARE OF DISABLED VETERANS BRINGS $24,000,000 TO STATE

Hundreds of thousands of dollars that now are coming annually into Michigan will be withheld from the channels of business, and instead, the burden of higher local and state taxes will occur if organized groups succeed in stopping veterans benefits now existing under the law for disabled veterans, according to Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion.

In a statement just issued, the national commander of the Legion declares that the payments by the federal government for Michigan veterans, and the number of Michigan veterans receiving them for the 12 months ending June 30, 1932, follow:

"Disability compensation, 10,252 veterans, amount $3,206,862; disability allowance, 10,795, amount $2,134,011; death compensation, 2,564, $956,118; emergency officers retirement pay, 111, $203,106; military and naval insurance (term), 4,583, $2,833,112; adjusted service and dependent pay, $98,004; adjusted service certificates, matured by death, $788,026; pensions, 17,018, $9,371,583; veterans remaining in hospital, 1,925; administration, $1,416,446; hospital and domiciliary facilities and services, $241,780. Total disbursements $24,249,048."

The Progressive Club of Boyne City, will hold its regular meeting Tuesday, December 6th, at 7 p. m. The meeting will be held at the Wolverine Hotel and the principal address will be given by Prentiss Brown, newly elected congressman and the subject will be "Northern Michigan" and Business Conducting." Dinner 40 cents. Everybody invited.

FILM STAR STILL SUCCESS AFTER 14 YEARS ON SCREEN

Irene Rich Will Be Seen Here In Will Rogers Latest

Fourteen years ago a divorcee with two children to support bravely started out as a film extra. Today she is one of the screen's best known players. Such is the record of Irene Rich, whose latest role is that of Will Rogers' wife in "Down To Earth," coming next Saturday and Sunday to the Palace Theater.

Her own persistence, plus the recognition given her by this same Will Rogers when he selected her as his leading lady in a series of silent pictures made back in 1926 and 1921 is responsible for her success, she avers.

"I always tried to get hold of something substantial," Miss Rich says. "Instead of something for show. When the other players around me were spending all their salary on flashy cars, I saved mine until I had enough to make a down payment on a home. I didn't own a car until I was established as a 'lead', and even then. I only bought a fivver, much to the horror of my director.

"But as a result, it wasn't long before I could shed all worry about role...I could afford to wait and pick the good ones. There were Frances and Jane to be considered, and I wanted more than anything else to have a good home and a secure future for all three of us. So when I won those early roles with Will, I knew the policy was sound. Later, when some of those who had laughed at my caution and penuriousness had vanished from the limelight, my system was again confirmed. It isn't spectacular—but it works."

In "Down To Earth," which is rated as one of the funniest and most entertaining pictures of Rogers' career, Miss Rich and the star are again wife and husband. Dorothy Jordan, Matty Kemp, and Mary Carlisle have the romantic roles in this Fox production, with Theodore Lodi, Brandon Hurst, Clarence Wilson and Louise Mackintosh in prominent parts. David Butler directed from the original story by Homer Croy.

RECENT DEATH OF IVAN R. GATES OF LOCAL INTEREST

Was Son Of Anna Bell Gates Formerly of Charlevoix

The death of Ivan R. Gates, who thrilled thousands as an automobile racer and later as an airplane stunt pilot, and recently plunged to his death from the window of an ninth floor apartment in New York, will stir the memories of some of the older inhabitants of this community.

His wife who seized his legs in an effort to restrain him, was almost carried to her death with him.

His action was accorded to the reverses he had sufferred in the financial crash after he had amassed a fortune. He was born, in Rockford, Mich., about 43 years ago and was the son of Anna Bell Gates, who was a long time resident of Charlevoix and was married to Aaron B. Gates, of Rockford, Mich, who was a traveling cigar salesman in this vicinity about forty-five years ago.

Rammed By Automobile While Moored At Local Dock

After buffeting the storms and braving the rigor of winter ice on the Great Lakes for years and emerging unscathed, the Conservation Department's Patrol Boat Number One has met with its first accident by being rammed by an automobile.

The boat was moored at the dock when a car at the top of the hill ran down the incline, across the dock and into the boat. The fact that the front wheels dropped between the boat and the dock saved the cabin.

DEATH TAKES A. I. CREAMER

Dr. R. B. Armstrong received a telegram Wednesday morning from Damariscotta, Me., announcing the death of Andrew I. Creamer, which occurred Tuesday evening, the funeral to be held Friday forenoon.

Mr. Creamer has been a prominent summer resident of Charlevoix since April 1926, when he was assistant manager of the Inn for two years with Mr. Bailey as manager, at which time Mr. Bailey passed away, and from that time until two years ago, Mr. Creamer conducted the Inn and proved himself to be a decidedly efficient proprietor.

He returned here last spring and supervised the management of the Inn last summer, at which time he was in a very precarious physical condition.

Mr. Creamer also owned and operated a very popular hotel known as the Highland Pines Inn at Southern Pines, North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. Creamer returned to their home at Damariscotta, Me., at the close of the resort season, where Mr. Creamer's health has been rapidly failing.

EPWORTH LEAGUE FELLOWSHIP HOUR SUNDAY P. M.

Games, Refreshments, Devotional Services Feature

The Epworth League of the local M. E. Church plans to experiment with a novel idea this coming Sunday at the vesper hour. The regular League devotional service will be preceded by a Fellowship Hour. The two hours will be arranged to supplement each other. The affair will be held in the church dining room, and will begin at 5:00 p. m. All young people of the community who are not otherwise affiliated are invited to join in the meeting. The complete program follows:

5:00 to 5:30—Alphabetical Spelling up.
5:30 to 6:00—General Games.
6:00 to 6:30—Refreshments.
6:30 to 7:00—Playwriting Tournament.
7:00 to 7:30—Devotional Service.

If the League finds this idea is practical, the Fellowship Hour idea may be made a monthly feature of the League program.

DISTRICT MEET OF AMERICAN LEGION SET FOR DEC. 11TH

Onaway Place of Meeting; Other Activities Planned

Sunday, December 11th, is the date of the next meeting of the Lower Eleventh District, American Legion, at Onaway. The program includes the business meeting at 1:30 p. m., R. S. T., at the county court house, followed by a parade at 3:00 p. m. A banquet will be served at 5:30 p. m.

It is possible that the parade will be called off, due to the uncertainty of the weather.

Plans are proceeding for the dance scheduled for a week from today, December 8th the admission charge for which has been reduced to 25c per couple.

A week from next Tuesday night another of those popular Stag Card parties will be held. The usual schedule and the usual good time will prevail.

The date of the turkey party originally designated for Friday evening, December 23rd, has been changed to Wednesday evening, December 21st.

The Maccabee Circle will meet Friday afternoon at 2:30 with Mrs. Phillips on Mason street. All members and friends are invited.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL CHAIRMAN THANKS PUBLIC

Dr. C. J. Winder, chairman of the local Red Cross Roll Call, wishes to thank the public for their wholehearted response in the recent membership drive which resulted in raising an amount exceeding that of last year and due to the fare of the present economic conditions.

Also much commendation goes to the workers and solicitors who aided in any way in the success of the undertaking.

Additional funds are expected from sources that have not as yet reported and after these have been heard from a complete report will be made public.

PRENTISS BROWN WILL SPEAK HERE TO FISHERMEN

On Problem Of The Use of Submarine Nets, Etc.

R. F. Sloan and J. M. Foster, leading Charlevoix Democrats, made a friendly call last Saturday on Prentiss M. Brown, newly elected Congressman of this district at his home in Saint Ignace.

Mr. Brown will be here December 6th, 4 p m at the Legion Home on E. Garfield, where he will discuss submarine fishing methods with Charlevoix County fishermen. Later in the evening he will deliver an address at Boyne City before the Progressive Business Men's Club.

Will the party who walked away with the weighing machine from in front of Dahlquist's store Saturday night please notify the owners where they may recover the same. No questions asked, no attempt at prosecution and they are welcome to the pennies if they enable us to recover the scales.—DAHLQUIST'S. 32t1

200 RURAL CHILDREN TO APPEAR IN MUSIC EVENT

A musical event unique in many respects is scheduled for the Charlevoix High School Gymnasium on the evening of Friday, December 2, at 8 o'clock. The presentation is under the auspices of the local school music department and the training of the children and direction of the program is in the hands of Miss Esther Mary Atkinson.

Over 200 children from ten rural schools, McGeagh, Loch, Hayyard, Marion Center, Burgess, Ironton, Barnard, Norland, Murray and Bay Shores, will take part in the festival. For the past month Miss Atkinson has spent some time each day in the rural schools mentioned and all of the children will come in the program prepared to sing the same numbers in unison chorus.

In addition to the large chorus composed of all the children from all the schools participating, each school is offering solo and ensemble numbers, vocal and instrumental, that will lend variety and interest to the program. The performance will be given without admission charge and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Additional funds are expected from sources that have not as yet reported and after these have been heard from a complete report will be made public.

HOUSEHOLDERS RECEIVE SEALS THROUGH MAILS

Reminding Michigan householders that the time has come to think about Christmas and Christmas greetings of the 1932 tuberculosis Christmas seals were found in 24,444 mail boxes 1,001 week of letters mailed directly from the headquarters of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association at Lansing. Package shipments have been made to rural schools, local social welfare managers of some communities and superintendents of schools in others, with a grand total for the state of fifty-seven million seals.

Scarcely a Christmas gift package is received by anyone anywhere that does not have some place on its surface one of the tuberculosis seals that have been distributed by the same mail, letters and cards. This year the design of the seal shows two children singing out of a huge song book. But no matter what the seal's picture there is included always the boldly barred cross in red emblem of anti-tuberculosis warfare, reminders of the great work done by them.

By mail children will be placed on the 1932 seal since the volume of work which they represent is now caused at the child-Early Discovery of the disease for humane and economical reasons now sets the greater part of the earnings of the seal.

Seals sent through the mail in Michigan were accompanied by a letter from a high school boy whose life was saved through the discovery that he was a sufferer from tuberculosis in a high school survey made by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, which tells his story. The Association points out that the pennies earned by the seal go first for the saving of children's lives, second for education. There were 434 deaths from tuberculosis among Michigan children of school age in 1931 what it did in 1932.

MAKES MISTAKE IN HIS STATEMENTS SO APOLOGIZES

J. M. Bartholomy, Boyne Falls Publicly Admits Error

Boyne Falls, Michigan
November 12th, 1932

Mr. Herman Meyer,
Boyne Falls, Mich

Dear Sir:

During the Primary campaign of 1932 I made the statement at various localities in Charlevoix County that you had been a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

I find that I was mistaken and that said statement was not true.

I herewith extend to you my most abject apology and express to you my sincerest regret that any statement of mine may have caused you any injury of any kind.

This apology is made with the express purpose of righting the wrong which was caused you.

Sincerely submitted,
J. M. Bartholomy.

P. T. A. MEET PLANNED FOR NEXT WEDNESDAY EVE.

Dr. J. P. Everett Will Speak; Cantata On Program

The Parent-Teachers Association will meet in the Senior High School Assembly room Wednesday evening, December 7th.

Dr. J. P. Everett, chairman of the Mathematics Department of Western Teacher's College will speak on the subject of "Slot Learning."

The High School infused chorus is on the program scheduled to present a cantata entitled "Building of the Ship."

MICHIGAN TO PROFIT FROM 1933 WORLD'S FAIR

Motorists Passing Through Will Spend Millions

Michigan, next to the city of Chicago itself, stands to be one of the biggest gainers in an immediate financial way from the Century of Progress Exposition to be held at Chicago from June 1 to October 31 next year.

Members of the Michigan Century of Progress Commission point out that the shortest and most logical route for visitors from eastern Canada, New York and the New England states is across Michigan — with Sault Ste. Marie on the north and Port Huron and Detroit on the east being the points of entry.

So as to attract the maximum number of such visitors through Michigan, the commission has designed a special stamp, an inch by an inch and a half, in attractive colors of black, red and blue On the background of the stamp appears the outline of the state, across which in sweeping lines converging upon Chicago appears the slogan, "Through Michigan, the Playground of the Nation, to Chicago."

A campaign is now under way to get as many individuals and business firms as possible to use those stamps on all mail going outside the state—particularly on mail going east.

Not only will Michigan profit from

KEEPERS FOIL JAIL ESCAPE

HARRY COBLENTZ SLUGGED BY BOYNE CITY YOUTH

A jail delivery was narrowly averted by Deputy Sheriff Ralph Fisher Harry Coblentz was captured by Arthur Culver, 19 years old prisoners from Boyne City.

The prisoner had stolen in to look the Deputy over he had sought when Fisher, according to the tale of the prisoner let him in the front door. The latter carried a stick loaded with a three-inch piece of iron pipe. The latter fooled Mr. Coblentz, and managed to get the stick and half to the floor. He ran for assistance and dragged his man Coblentz from upstairs who after a struggle returned Arnold to his cell.

Scarcely a Christmas gift package is received by anyone anywhere that does not have some place on its surface one of the tuberculosis seals that have been distributed by the same mail, letters and cards. This year the design of the seal shows two children singing out of a huge song book. But no matter what the seal's picture there is included always the boldly barred cross in red emblem of anti-tuberculosis warfare, reminders of the great work done by them.

By mail children will be placed on the 1932 seal since the volume of work which they represent is now caused at the child-Early Discovery of the disease for humane and economical reasons now sets the greater part of the earnings of the seal.

Seals sent through the mail in Michigan were accompanied by a letter from a high school boy whose life was saved through the discovery that he was a sufferer from tuberculosis in a high school survey made by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, which tells his story. The Association points out that the pennies earned by the seal go first for the saving of children's lives, second for education. HELPING OURSELVES

One of the principal issues of the late campaign as in nearly every campaign was aid for the farmers. All sorts of patent medicines were offered, and no doubt a great many agriculturists who take their politics seriously, are expecting somebody in the next administration to pull a financial rabbit out of Uncle Sam's plug hat and solve the farm problem over night. But these agriculturists will be disappointed just as they have been disappointed in the past when they have expected some patent remedy to pull them out of their difficulties.

Fortunately, however, all farmers are not waiting for a magic governmental cure for the depression. Some of them are doing their best to help themselves, by cutting costs and expenses and using every effort to solve the problems on the farm. After all the average farmer, in spite of his pessimistic utterances, is an optimist. For he goes ahead year after year planting the crops on which he says he is losing money, hoping that sometime he will get out of the red.

Farmers have not let down on their own efforts during the heat of the campaign which was just ended. Some time ago a representative of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, after a survey of conditions in the Middle West, said:

"Mid-West farmers are waging a finish fight to keep their outgo below their incomes. Vegetable and fruit gardens are again fashionable. They are taking no chances with the family food supply. Farmers will slaughter and cure more meat this year than in any year since the war. Cabbages, carrots, turnips, squash and fruit will be carefully stored in the cellar. The wood lot is already yielding new stacks of stove wood to repel the attack of Old Man Winter. The farmer is calling right and left. He is calling unprofitable acres, unprofitable cows, unprofitable hens. Everything that doesn't help to balance the budget goes into the discard. Never before has there been such careful scrutiny of farm expenses, and never before have the farmers made such a fight to get a little more of the consumer's dollar. Neighbors are cooperating in the ownership and use of the larger pieces of machinery. Rainy days in 1932 are thrift days—days to repair harness and overhaul machinery. The horse is winning back the short-haul business because the farmers find that a scoop of oats and a few forkfuls of hay grown on the farm and fed to a good horse supply the cheapest fuel and power for some of the farm services."

Now winter is at hand and the crops have been gathered. More farmers are prepared to depend on themselves for the winter than was the case a few years ago. Eventually these individual efforts are going to count. The farmer will not always be broke and depressed. He will come back.

BACK TO WORK

The tumult and the shouting have died. The speeches have all been made. The votes have been counted.

The campaign is history, and it's time to go back to work.

The great problems of today are not political problems. They are economic, financial, social. They are completely nonpartisan. All any President can do to solve them is to give his very best efforts, according to his lights, to assist the people with the power of government. Legislation will be passed, official suggestions will be offered—but no matter how good they are, they will be worthless unless the people stand shoulder to shoulder and work for their own salvation.

Almost all observers agree that the bottom of depression has been touched. The work of restoration has begun. It will be a long, an arduous work, requiring the utmost each of us can give. Partisanship must be forgotten. Labels must be forgotten. Never in the history of the country has nonpolitical leadership, and nonpolitical thought, been so essential to the future.

So—back to work!

EFFICIENCY — ECONOMY — SERVICE

In boom times extravagant government is a luxury we can't afford.

In normal times it is a drag on industry and the individual, acting as a barrier to progress that would otherwise be achieved.

In depressed times, it is one of the greatest obstacles we must hurdle in the work of recovery—an obstacle creating more unemployment, more mortgage foreclosures, more business failures, a deeper depression.

Soon Congress will again convene. It will have before it many bills, most of which will deal with the problems of depression. It will have as its duty the advancement of a recovery which has already started. There is no way it could be of greater service to us all than to reduce the cost of government.

It can do that without in the least harming the real, the necessary functions of government. It can eliminate useless and duplicating bureaus, archaic commissions, purposeless departments within departments. It can cut millions from the budget. Doing that would not only help relieve the tax burden—it would set a sorely-needed example to states and municipalities, which cost us a great deal more than does the government at Washington.

Efficiency, economy, service—those are the watchwords of progressive businesses now. They must likewise be the watchwords of government, in all its branches.

THE HISTORY OF A FIRE

It's rather a pity that the complete histories of so few fires ever come to public notice.

When they do, it is usually because they are of conflagration size. But the story of an ordinary, little fire of the kind occurring daily in some American community, might do more than anything else to awaken us to the waste we countenance each year. Take, as an illustration, a medium sized factory employing upward of a hundred men. Place it in a comparatively small town where it is one of the half-dozen leading employers and taxpayers and represents the investment of a number of local citizens of varying economic stature.

Fire comes and the factory is destroyed. The economic loss is, say, one hundred thousand dollars which is covered by insurance. As insurance rates are based, in the long run, on the amount of loss in a community, everyone must at some time pay higher rates to make up for this fire.

The factory, being out of business, pays no more taxes. The amount it normally paid must be collected from other industries and property owners.

Dividends to stockholders cease, perhaps causing hardship and distress to numerous persons who had invested their savings.

All of the employes are thrown out of work. Many of them are unable to find immediate employment elsewhere. Payments become delinquent on mortgages or taxes, merchants are unable to collect their bills. Possibly many of the former workers and their families become community charges.

Months pass before the factory is rebuilt, if it is rebuilt at all. In that time the indirect loss has come to several times as much as the direct loss. It has touched every none, every business, every person.

Isn't the little time, effort and expense that fire prevention requires, worth while?

TWO ATTITUDES

The transport problem is usually viewed from two distinct attitudes. One is that the railroads are being unfairly treated and that all common carriers should be regulated as much alike as is feasible. The other is that the railroads are a dying industry and that there is no point in cramping the style of progress by extending strict regulation to their competitors.

To many uninformed or unthinking persons, this last argument is a persuasive one. We see trucks carrying merchandise and freight where, a few years ago, the rails were supreme. We see buses ply the highways loaded with passengers that once traveled by railroad. It's easy to believe the "dying industry" argument.

The figures, however, paint a different story. The railroads still carry almost all the heavy tonnage of the country. They still move about 75 per cent of all freight tonnage. No other medium has arisen that shows any sign of being able to take their place, particularly on long hauls.

The problem, then, resolves into this: We must have a transport policy that recognizes conditions as they are—not as they were or may be. There is a place for trucks, for buses, for pipe lines, for airplanes, for waterways—but that doesn't mean that the railroads have been replaced. The rails are and will continue to be the backbone of the nation's transport. That being true, any sound program must guarantee them a fair deal and allocate to each carrier its most useful place in the transport scheme.

FOUR FARM PROBLEMS

C. O. Moser, President of the National Cooperative Council and Vice-President of the American Cotton Cooperative Association, recently pointed out that the prosperity of the farmer depends upon four things:

1 The cost of his production.
2 The volume of his production.
3 The price he obtains for what he produces.
4 The price he pays for what he buys.

As Mr. Moser observed, the first two are largely the problems of the individual. The next two are mainly the problems of the farmer as a group. They are the reason-for-being of the cooperative movement.

No single farmer, dealing with a large buying or selling organization, can have a voice in price. He must take what he is offered or lose the business. When he joins with thousands of other farmers whose problems and hopes are one with his, the shoe is on the other foot. The buying or selling organization has met its equal —and the price is much more likely to be a fair one.

No cooperative, of course, can raise prices to the desired level in times like these. What they can do is to keep them higher than they would otherwise be and prepare the groundwork for future achievements. All over the country the cooperative movement is making gains, both in strength and membership, and the results are beginning to show. When the economic clouds finally clear, an organized agriculture can be ready for a period of prosperity unprecedented in this century.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

LINCOLN SPEECH MEMORIAL
GETTYSBURG, PA.

A tall gaunt man from out of the West came to this place with a solemn himself weighing heavily upon his soul. With bowed head, vibrant by the anguish in his heart, and with eyes of hope lifted toward the blue vaulted heavens above he looked the shoulder pierce which the world knows as Lincoln's Address at Gettysburg. That prayer has been answered and the new Nation for which he prayed has become the crowning achievement in self government among nations of the earth. The traveler who passes here may well reflect upon this memorial as a shrine among shrines in American history.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

The Disastrous Year of 1777

The most disastrous year of the American Revolution was 1777. When we look back on the troubles of that day we become convinced that our trials and tribulations of 1932 are of a minor nature after all. An interesting account of the struggles of 1777 can be found in the current issue of the National Republic. It was written by Jarold C. Thomson, a student of the history of the American Revolution, who says in part:

"When will Philadelphia be attacked? This great question had been on the lips of all military leaders in America since the recovery of Boston. Here, in this the most important and sophisticated city in the states, was the seat of the new Republican government. In those fascinating suburban mansions bordering the Schuylkill River, the great men of the Revolution supped with one another formulating plans and pondering the problems of independence. Doubtless many a straddler was won over to the cause under the genial influence of warm hospitality and eloquent persuasion of the glittering candlelight. Philadelphia was a city known the world over for its cleanliness, its orderly layout, its handsome buildings and great institutions and markets. It was to remain the manufacturing metropolis until as late as 1800. Ships brought to its wharves the good things of the world and the fertile farms of the surrounding Pennsylvania countryside poured a lavish supply of agricultural products into it daily.

The loss of this city would be severely felt by the common cause and would wound the heart of every virtuous American,' wrote Washington in 1776. Again early the next year he wrote 'With what propriety can he (Howe) miss so favourable an opportunity of striking a capital stroke against a city from which we derive so many advantages which would give such relief to their arms and strike such a damp upon ours.

"Everyone at the time had thought that Howe, of course, would have followed up his advance across the Jerseies with the seizure of the Continental Capital. It was well within reason and he has since been much criticised, ever, by his countrymen, for not so doing. What Washington dreaded most was Howe's use for success. Instead Howe had halted at Trenton and given Washington the opportunity of that most signal success on Christmas of 1776. The year of 1777 was therefore ushered in with some promise and the outlook further brightened by the complete retirement of the British in June into New York. Many a Continental head was turned by this seeming success. Many—but not Washington, whose calmness and sagacity made it impossible for him to be unduly carried away. He anxiously awaited the next move.

"Our army was destined not to enjoy any lengthy respite for it was immediately beset by as great a quandry as ever invested an armed force. As a rule, Washington was most unusually well acquainted with the plans of the royal troops. Such now was not the case and their movements were shrouded in deepest mystery. All that was known was that the British fleet was being made ready to transport the army to some distance."

Immigration Dwindles

The United Business Service makes the very interesting remark that "The very low number of immigrants to the United States during the depression is beneficial to the labor situation. Since December, 1930, the number of immigrant aliens has been less than the number of alien residents leaving the country. The exodus of aliens now exceeds new arrivals by more than 3 to 1. No marked change in this trend is likely for some time."

Here is something worth thinking over. The labor map of the United States is rapidly being changed. The work cut out for the American melting pot is not so strenuous as it used to be. Emmigration is now greater than immigration. A part of the change is no doubt due to the depression. A number of aliens who have succeeded in saving a little money in the United States have gone home to live where they can live cheaper. A great many undesirable aliens have been deported through the vigilance of the labor department. The policy of the present administration in discouraging immigration at the particular time when we have more labor on hand than can be employed, has also been a factor.

The drying up of the tide of immigration has undoubtedly helped the American labor situation. The more foreign labor which comes to America, the more competition there is for the labor already here.

It is now predicted that before we are through paying for it the World War will have cost the country a hundred and twenty billions of dollars. But anyhow we paid our debt to Lafayette.

Remember the good old days when spending the evening in the kitchen making pop corn balls was considered real sport?

When pork tenderloin was selling at fifty cents a pound we didn't buy it because we thought it too expensive. Now when it is less than half that we don't buy it because we haven't got the money.

Of course if the shoe were on the other foot, and Uncle Sam owed money to Europe, Europe would be eager and willing to cancel the debt. Europe is funny that way.

Thirty Years Ago

The naval training station, which Charlevoix, Cheboygan and other northern Michigan towns so much desired, will in all probability be located between Chicago and Waukegan, near Fort Sheridan.

Northern Michigan people continue to be boastful about their climate, as they have a right to be. While there has been more snow at more southern points, we have had none in northern Michigan and the weather has been such that fall plowing has been done up to this writing. December second was like a balmy spring day.

Everything around the Belvedere is in a state of disorder, but it is the disorder that presages improvement. The big new addition to the Belvedere is in the hands of the carpenters, and plumbers — a large force of them. Under the office part of the hotel a basement is being excavated which will be used for new lavatory and closets. On the grounds all about improvements are being made; cottages are being built or enlarged, walks are being built and grounds beautified. The fine new cottage of R. P. Foley on Newman street, is enclosed and will be finished this winter, and the Parmelee cottage on Breezy Point is being practically rebuilt. Belvedere sojourners won't know the Charlevoix Summer Resort next summer.

We recently overheard a sojourner make this inquiry of a citizen: "Why does not Charlevoix sell its park property for resort sites, and spend the proceeds on its streets?" Not on your life friend! Not in a thousand years. The writer of this had the honor to be president of Charlevoix when the park property was bought of Amos Fox. It embraces about twenty acres and fronts on the outer bay for about a half mile. The property cost $900 and when the proposition was voted upon, there was, if we remember correctly, one vote against it. The taxpayers of Charlevoix never made a better investment. Sewers and street improvement may cause taxpayers to groan now, but the time will come when, if the property should be sold, the groans would give place to nightmares and throes of remorse. Save the park for posterity, and posterity will rise up and call us blessed.

The Chicago Tribune in picking out an all-western eleven selected from the universities places Joseph Maddock of East Jordan, right tackle of the University of Michigan in this class of the best football players. Maddock has made a wonderful record for himself this season on the gridiron. It is very unusual for a freshman to be put on the first eleven of an institution which possesses the fastest football players of the west. He has made good in every game and the selection by the Chicago Tribune stamps him as the best right tackle west of the Alleghanies and it is doubtful if he has a superior in the whole United States. Mr. Maddock weighs 190 pounds stripped, and is a perfect specimen of athletic manhood. He is a very swift runner. His furious onslaughts on his opponents won for him early in the season the nickname "Mad Ox," an appelation which has clung to him throughout the season. F. H. Yost, the famous coach of the Michigan football team indicted Maddock to attend the University. He entered the law department.

Forty Years Ago

One day last week the writer of this and a friend were standing at the bridge when a muskrat swam across the river and entered the slab-pile on the north side. Our mind went back about eighteen years to an autumn day, when, standing in about the same spot, but upon the old wooden bridge, we saw a large otter come out from under the old fish-house that stood at the corner near the sight of the present warehouse and swim the stream. But a short time before that "Lance" Aldrich shot one of the beautiful animals through a crack in the floor of the same fish shanty; and sometime after he shot one as it rose through a hole in the ice in Round Lake.

And while we are speaking of otter, we are reminded of an incident that occurred in the early days in which Wm. M. Miller, of this place, figured as a hero. Mr. Miller was coming down between the Fox Islands when he heard a terrible squealing on the ice below him. He soon came in sight of two large otters engaged in a very lively scrap out a short distance from the shore. They were fighting so savagely that Mr. Miller was enabled to creep up to them without alarming them and was soon on them with his knees and had both animals by the throat. Mr. Miller would have soon killed both, but the fiercest of the struggle left the ice broke and in went the whole party. One of the animals escaped, but William crawled out on the ice with the carcass of the other and brought it to town.

Otter and mink fur was secured about here in considerable quantities in those days. Capt. Aldrich every fur season for a good many years, had a "string" of traps out on the surrounding creeks and lakes and a great many foxes were caught by the poisoning process. It was not so very long ago that Uncle James Beauvais went out one morning to his fox-baits and found the carcass of a monstrous gray wolf which, with its mate, had been prowling around the woods and beach between here and Ironton.

And when we hear these bold deer hunters relating their exploits we remember that in those days more deer were killed within a half days walk of Charlevoix than are now brought in from their long trips, north and east. Many of our citizens will remember the day that the deer ran the length of Clinton Street and jumped into Round Lake, coming ashore on the north side to be captured by the mill hands.

Now things are different. We can't catch trout with a fly from the bridge or at the mouth of the river as we used to. A muskrat swimming the stream now calls a crowd, and a pair of antlers protruding from the back of a wagon-box attracts the multitude.

Fifty Years Ago

Saturday night new horns arrived for the ladies brass band, and Prof. Bice has the young misses now under instruction. Charlevoix will have two brass bands next summer.

A. D. Cruickshank has removed to Arthur Hamlin's residence on Main Street. His office, however, will continue to be in the Lewis building. Mr. Cruickshank will build a residence next season.

The ladies of the Congregational Church and society met at the residence of Mrs. J. Milo Eaton, November 23rd. 1882, to organize a Ladies' Association in connection with the Congregational Society of this village, the object of which is Christian work, social acquaintance, spiritual culture and the raising of means for the benefit of the Society. A constitution and by-laws were adopted. The following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. C. F. Van-Auken; 1st vice president, Mrs. E. Hudson; 2nd vice president, Mrs. J. M. Eaton; secretary, Mrs. W. H. Kanagy; treasurer, Mrs. E. Mudge.

A committee of introduction and visitation was appointed by the president. The next meeting to be held at the residence of Mrs. John Nichols on Wednesday, 2 p. m., December 6, 1882. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

The Charlevoix Historical Society met at the parlors of Mrs. Nelson Ainslie on Tuesday evening last. The society was called to order by Pres. E. H. Green. Minutes of the last meeting were read and was followed by the reading of essays as announced. The musical exercises were vocal. After the business of the evening was transacted the executive committee rendered the program for next evening's entertainment.

SCHOOL HOUSE—The contractors have completed (as far as provisions extend) and presented to the District, the new school building. Messrs. See & Nettleton have done well their part, and every portion of said building reflects excellent mechanism. The plastering was done by J. F. May, Esq., and presents the appearance of being a firm and permanent wall. Our district has now a school building which it can point out to with just pride.

Thanksgiving — The service at the new school house on Thursday was not largely attended owing to the severity of the weather. The sermon by Dr. Wood was peculiarly appropriate and was listened to with marked attention by his small congregation. A goodly number of fowls were carved throughout the village during the day, and we presume that every heart responded to the sentiments of gratitude which marked the proclamations of our President and Governor.

A Combat. — Wm. M. Miller of Marion, came to our office on Thursday carrying a large dead otter which he captured near the twin lakes in the following manner: While passing one of the lakes he suddenly heard noises as of small animals engaged in fighting. He at once approached the lake, and about twenty feet from shore, on the ice he perceived two large otter engaged in a deadly combat. By exercising great caution he succeeded in reaching them, so hotly were they engaged, and made a spring for them grasping them by their throats and throwing his knees upon them. In this manner he held them some time, gradually nearing a hole in the ice, in which he could easily have drowned them. But while in the struggle the ice broke under him and he was forced to release his grasp upon the smaller one, who disappeared. The larger one, however, he succeeded in dispatching with the assistance of a small bundle of traps which he carried with him. Those who are acquainted with the ferocity, agility and strength of the otter, can easily imagine the nature of the battle. We believe this "pluck" is unprecedented.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Our Faculty—Mr. Coleman

The time spent in interviewing Mr. Coleman resulted in the gathering of some very interesting facts about this member of the high school faculty.

Mr. Coleman was born in the Central eastern part of Pennsylvania. When he was only a child he was proud of the fact that he obtained a job hauling ashes for ten cents a barrel to the river. To work his way through high school Mr. Coleman worked with a labor gang in a Railroad Company icing the refrigerator cars from twelve o'clock at night to five o'clock in the morning during the school months and from six at night to six in the morning during the summer months. While at high school he participated in football, basketball, boxing, track. All through high school he was a member of the state champion relay team.

The first part of college Mr. Coleman wished to become a doctor and took a pre-medic course at Allegheny College. To work his way through College he helped clean the gymnasium, checked luncheons at the cafeteria, worked in the machine shop for the Erie railroad cutting piston rings for locomotives and spent one summer firing on the railroad and another as brakeman. Because several times in his college career at Allegheny he had to stop to work he knew it would be almost impossible to continue with medical work. Due to an incident that happened in a fraternity house in which Mr. Coleman was asked to tutor a group of freshmen in Biology he received the desire to teach and so went to Michigan State Normal College where he graduated. Since then he has had summer school at Pennsylvania State College, three summers at coaching school, and two summers at Laurelton, Penn., and now lacks but a few credits for a Masters Degree. In the summer of 31 he taught summer school at Penn State College. Mr. Coleman first taught at Lexington, Mich., and then continued his teaching career at Charlevoix where he has been for nearly seven years. He has also done some coaching at Meadville, and at Lexington.

Probably very unlike that of other members of the faculty is Mr. Coleman's trip to the coast before the beginning of his college career. With a companion he hopped a freight train and went to St. Paul where his companion left him and returned home. From there he went to Kalispelle, Montana, where he remained five weeks a victim of the flu. He then went on to Washington and to San Jose, California, where he worked in a wholesale fruit store. After a short time he continued to Silver City, New Mexico. It might be interesting to know that when Mr. Coleman left Pennsylvania he had $4.25. When he reached New Mexico he had 16c. He then did the only natural thing to do—merely purchased 10c worth of bologna and 6c worth of crackers and enjoyed his meal immensely. This was followed by working at digging ditches for 10 hours from which he collected $3 and caught a ride as far as Muncie, Indiana, the changing trains several times. From Muncie he went to Cleveland where he got a job on a boat carrying iron ore and worked his way across to Connaught Harbor and received a railroad job. This last trip lasted about 12 1-2 months between his high school and college days. The object of Mr. Coleman's trip was to gain a wider perspective—to become broadened—to see more of the country. However he has never desired to repeat this experience. His trips now are limited to a visit to Pennsylvania where his parents live. He believes that Charlevoix is the cleanest and nicest place that he has seen. Mr. Coleman also mentioned his one and only hobby—namely, fishing for brook trout with flies—and does he catch them!

Miss Anderson

Amidst the hum of typewriters the reporter managed to obtain a few of the important facts concerning Miss Anderson. Her college life was spent at Ferris Institute, Northern State Teacher's College, and State Teacher's College at Whitewater, Wisconsin. After leaving college she was employed in the Milwaukee Vocational School. This was followed by a position as Dining Lady for a large manufacturing concern in Milwaukee.

Finally Miss Anderson decided to have a change so obtained a position teaching at Charlevoix South Intermediate, where she remained two years. Here she organized the Commercial department. Here also she received her degree.

took first place in the State Commercial Contest. For the past four years she has been employed in C. H. S. as Commercial instructor. Miss Anderson has been class sponsor of the class of '30 for 3 years. She has also been girls' basketball coach until Miss Ilaseef was engaged as physical education teacher.
Miss Anderson shows an unusually willing spirit of cooperation with the other departments of the school. Her classes prepare tickets and programs for the majority of school concerts and plays. Also when teachers need tests or lesson material for individual members of their classes, Miss Anderson supplies them. Last year under her direction outlines and references were furnished for several of the evening classes.
Her general office experience, her cooperation with other teachers, her friendliness with the students make Miss Anderson a very valuable member of the faculty.

The Alchemists

A surreal throng of carven columns bear
On their broad shoulders arches of noble mien,
And rearing up to vaulted domes, would fain
Picture the noble Moorish culture race,—
A lovely edifice for dins so fair.
The architect has wrought with grace to haste
The thought of mortal structure, so remain—
The magic spell of fairy palace air
Nor gone from stately halls the courtier,
From all his longings forced to flee
And seeking peace beyond sea barbarous—
When scoops the brute from rocky Ryemkun.
Tal history of man, the carrier.—
The higher climbs, his fall is sure to be.
—Vestal C. Clarke.

MICHIGAN TO PROFIT

the number of tourists crossing the state on their way to and from Chicago, but it is certain also to draw a large number of visitors from other portions of the United States, who, after spending a few days at the World's Fair, will want to drive around Lake Michigan or tour thru Michigan before returning home.
A little arithmetic will give some idea of the sum which Michigan stands to gain from the World's Fair in increased gasoline tax receipts alone. Century of Progress officials at Chicago estimate that the total of paid admissions next year will be in the neighborhood of 50,000,000 and their plans are all based on this estimate. They figure that the average family attending will want to stay from three to five days. This means that the number of individuals attending the Fair during the 150 days it is open will be from 10 to 15 million.
If Michigan succeeds in attracting 1 million of these individuals through the state on their way to and from Chicago, the number of automobiles is certain to be in the hundreds of thousands or perhaps a million. The average mileage for each car, going and coming, would be in the neighborhood of 600. At 15 miles to the gallon, this would mean an average consumption per car of 40 gallons of gasoline, on which the gasoline tax would be $1.20. If 500,000 cars pass through the state, the gasoline tax receipts will be increased by $600,000.
It is not unreasonable to suppose that, lured by the attractions of the Great Lakes and the north woods, an equal number of visitors from other parts of the country will tour through the state after visiting the World's Fair. Again figuring an average mileage of 600, the gasoline tax receipts would be increased by another $600,000 or $1,200,000 in all.
This computation does not take into consideration the amount of money which will be spent in the state by the World's Fair tourists, an amount which is certain to be many millions of dollars in the aggregate.
It is because of the unparalleled opportunity Michigan enjoys to profit in a big way that the Century of Progress Commission for this state has planned to devote 60 per cent of the state's exhibit to its recreational attractions. Every World's Fair visitor who passes through the Hall of States Building will be struck by the beautiful representation of Michigan as to nation's playground, and will feel the pull of the wards which will be featured in the Michigan exhibit —"Come to Michigan to Play."

BOURISSAU - RICHARDSON

At two o'clock last Sunday afternoon, Rev. W. W. Hurd, of the Methodist Church, united in marriage Miss Margaret Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Richardson of this city, to Mr. Louis Bourissau, at the home of the groom's parents on Petoskey Avenue. The members of both families represented were in attendance. The groom was accompanied by his friend, Mr. Alfred Gill, and the bride by her sister, Miss Dolora Richardson.

THE SENTINEL FOR PRINTING

MOVEMENT TO REOPEN BEET SUGAR FACTORIES PLANNED

Would Mean Millions To Michigan, Ohio, Indiana

With confidence that the new administration, which will assume control of the federal government on March 4, 1933, will fulfill it's general pre election promise that it would not interfere with the tariff schedule affecting agricultural products and its specific pledge not to destroy the beet sugar industry of the United States by reducing the tariff on foreign grown sugar, the Farmers and Manufacturers Beet Sugar Association, with headquarters at Bay City, Michigan, representing more than 18,000 sugar beet farmers and all of the beet sugar companies in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, has launched a campaign designed to encourage the reopening of all the beet sugar factories in the three States, which have been idle for several years, and to assure the continued operation of the factories which are in operation at the present time.
Commenting on the movement, D. J. Brack, educational secretary of the Association said:
"There are a total of twenty-one beet sugar factories, with an operating value of more than $26,400,000 in Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana. These factories offer a potential market for more than two million of sugar beets annually from which they are capable of extracting $17,500,000 pounds of sugar. In addition they could produce 287,000,000 pounds of high quality dairy feed in the form of dried beet pulp and 168,000,000 pounds of molasses. The sale of these products would result in the distribution of more than $24,840,000 annually among the farmers, wage earners and manufacturers in the three states. In accord with the terms of the cooperative contract under which sugar beets are grown one-half of the net cash return from the sale of the sugar, pulp and molasses, or $12,420,000, would go directly into the pockets of the farmers while the balance would go directly to support 7,000 factory and company employes and for the purchase of more than 498,700 tons of coal, coke, limerock and miscellaneous supplies valued at more than $5,271,700."
According to statistics issued by the Association, if all of the beet sugar factories in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana are operated next year more than 230,000 acres of land in the three States will be devoted to sugar beet culture, thus reducing the acreage to be devoted to the production of other crops of which there is a surplus. The growing of the crop would furnish employment to more than 23,000 beet field workers and at the same time enable 23,000 Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana farmers to produce a cash crop.

HEALTH UNIT NEWS LETTER

REPORT OF ACTIVITIES FOR THE MONTH OF NOVEMBER

Plans for the month's work have been carried out as arranged. This has been due partly to the fine weather.
A two day conference was held at Gaylord. This included the members of our staff and those of Unit No. 4, Miss Hamilton, Director of Nurses, and Miss Reed, Director of Education from the Detroit office, were present. They discussed with us various problems of Public Health.
Tuberculosis clinics were held in each county under the auspices of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.
The heartsome of any public health program is the nursing service. The number of home visits may not seem as spectacular as immunizing, school examinations, etc, but take this service away and our program would show fewer results.
The sanitary program for the past month has been one of school and dairy sanitation. The sanitary officer has also constructed a model sanitary privy which will be used for demonstration purposes in an endeavor to improve the means of sewerage disposal in our rural homes. This model is now on display in the office of the District Health Unit. Plans and specifications for sewage disposal systems may be had by calling at the office of the District Health Unit or by writing to the rural sanitary officer.

Antrim County

A number of cases of measles, chickenpox and scarlet fever have been reported.
About 160 children have received immunizing doses of toxoid this month. This group will have completed the treatmen in December.
Hot lunches in a few schools have been started and others plan to do this in the near future.
Through the efforts of the members of the County Health Committee a preschool census is being compiled This list will be valuable when we begin immunizing in the spring.
Miss McCoy has made over 100 home visits.
She has been instrumental in having two tuberculosis patients hospitalized.
The tuberculosis clinic was held at Bellaire. Twenty-eight people attended and all these had X-Rays of their chests taken.
Upon re-examination of the Ball School which was made 100 per cent dentually healthy by one of the Manistee dentists last year, it was found that twenty of the children out of thirty-five were still free from dental decay.
Dr. Quinlan, while at Elk Rapids, took care of the teeth of all the indigent children in the west side of the county.

Charlevoix County

Whooping cough and scarlet fever is still prevalent in the county.
Forty-two school children were examined and 42 vaccinated against smallpox. Of these 9 were found to have had previous defects corrected. 1 work Thursdays in this county, consequently owing to Thanksgiving and the Lansing meeting, I missed three days work in the schools.
About seventy-five per cent of the schools are having hot lunches either by the hot jar or 4-H Club method. At the Grandview School the children have brought and stored in the basement various vegetables. These are cooked at school and served at noon.
The Tainter school has made arrangements for the local dentist to examine and correct the children's teeth. Another school is making arrangements with the local physician to examine the children's throats and remove diseased tonsils.
Miss Lockwood has made over 350 home calls.
Through our efforts two crippled

BROWN MEETS LOCAL FISHERMEN HERE TUESDAY

Regulations Relative To Fishing Industry Discussed

Hon. Prentiss M. Brown, of St. Ignace, Congressman elect, was a Charlevoix visitor Tuesday afternoon at which time he held a conference with some seventy-five local commercial fishermen who are interested in having congress and the state legislature enact new and better regulations relative to the fishing industry in Lake Michigan and adjacent waters, with the object in view of securing a law that will be general and applicable to all fishermen on the great lakes.
Mr. Brown is thoroughly conversant with existing legal regulations and informed as to conditions under which local fishermen are handicapped, the Michigan law being less stringent than the adjoining states, especially so with regard to the submarine trap net, which is the main article of contention, which is limited in Wisconsin waters to a depth of 60 feet. It is claimed that raising this type of net from depths around 100 feet injures the small fish that are brought to the surface due to the sudden change in water pressure.
Mr. Brown succeeds Dr. Bohn at Washington and takes his seat in Congress March 4, 1933 and it is possible that if the state legislature fail to aid the fishermen it will be taken up by federal authorities.

SPECIAL COURT SESSION BRINGS LONG JAIL SENTENCE

Another Case Is Acquitted By Verdict Of Jury

At a special session of Circuit Court held last week, Judge Gilbert sentenced Lyle Barnes to a term of from twelve to twenty years at the Jackson prison, thus giving Barnes plenty of time to reflect over his past conduct and actions.
Neither the charge under which he was sentenced nor a prison term are new experiences to the defendant.
Another case, that of Carl Left, which came from an offense alleged to have been committed at Beaver Island, claimed the attention of the court for several days, resulted in an acquittal, the verdict of not guilty being the findings of the jury deciding the case.
During the trial of the Left case, which drew wide attention there was a large attendance of local people as well as many from Beaver Island at each session.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ANNUAL BANQUET DEC. 16

To Be Held At Legion Home And Served By Auxiliary

The Annual Banquet of the Chamber of Commerce will be held Friday evening, December 16th, at the Legion Home on E. Garfield at 6:30 p.m. Members of the Legion Auxiliary will serve the eats.
This is the regular annual meeting at which election of officers will be held and plans made for the coming year and it is requested that the members turn out in force.

EMREY'S STORE HAS REMOVED TO NEW LOCATION

C. H. Emrey now occupies one of the salesrooms in the K. of P. Block with his stock of goods.
The transfer from his former place of business was made Saturday night and the stock arranged in readiness for the public early this week.
The new location is desirable, with the salesroom more spacious and superior to the place vacated and with the stock displayed makes for an attractive business place.

MAIL BOAT TURNED BACK TWICE BY HEAVY WEATHER

Following two unsuccessful attempts to make her trip to St. James Monday, one early in the day, the other late in the afternoon, the S. S. Bethell cleared this port early Tuesday making her usual run.
Heavy weather Monday was the prime factor preventing the Ossian Bethell from making the crossing in safety.

"CONGORILLA" AT PALACE THEATRE THIS WEEK END

Thrilling Film Taken In the Wilds Of Africa

The earsplitting scream of the gorilla, the terrifying roar of the lion, the mighty trumpeting of the elephant, three and many other of the wild native nomes of the jungle come bellowing out at you in all their thrilling vibrancy from the screen of the Palace Theater, where Mr and Mrs. Martin Johnson's new film, "Congorilla," Saturday and Sunday.
This awe-exciting film production, the first all-sound picture ever to come out of the heart of the Central African jungle, is the most amazing picture of its kind ever shown on a local screen. For the first time one sees actual close-ups of the giant gorilla, locked in mortal combat, baring his man-crushing teeth and beating his hairy chest in stark ferocity as he charges the camera. Not once does he charge, but time and time again, rising up on his haunches in all his raging fury before the death-defying explorers.
These shots of the big apes are beyond question the most remarkable, all-sound pictures ever made of jungle life. Not only will you thrill to them but it will be many a day before you forget your meeting with these vicious, man-like beasts.
And in contrast to the large apes are some most interesting shots of the world's tiniest race of people, the pygmies, who inhabit the great ture Forest in the Belgian Congo. The Johnsons lived with these grotesque savages for seven months photographing every mode of their every-day life, their weird songs and dances, the queer music and tribal rites and their peculiar hunting expeditions, armed only with their tiny bows and arrows.

DEMOCRATS HOLD MEET AT SOO LAST FRIDAY

Organization Of Party Was Primary Purpose

Prominent members of the Democratic party located at various places in the 11th Congressional district met in a get-together meeting at Sault Ste. Marie last Friday.
The primary purpose of the meeting was the making of preparatory arrangements for perfecting a permanent Democratic working organization, thereby solidifying and making for a strong political party machine.
Local men participating in the meeting were: Leo W. Powers, Captain M. J. Bonner, R. F. Sloan, Joseph Howard and Joseph Porter.
They report that the meeting was well attended, full of interest, making for an enthusiastic gathering.

POLAR BEARS TAKE THIRD GAME FROM GAYLORD

The Polar Bears took another game, their third straight, from Gaylord last evening by the score of 31 to 21 while the Cubs were losing. Further details will be given next week.

CHRISTMAS SEAL RETURNS ARRIVING IN LANSING

Charlevoix County Residents Among Purchasers

The Christmas spirit engendered by warm greetings accompanying payments for tuberculosis Christmas seals began to permeate the offices of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association a few days after Thanksgiving, when the seals were sent out. "The almost breathless haste with which old friends and new have acted to assure a continuance of the work done to fight tuberculosis, thanks to the penny seals, is inspiring to everyone in the Association," was the comment of Dr. Henry H. Chadwick, president of the Association, as the returns began to come in.
Lawyers, doctors, all manner of busy professional people take the time to write a line to accompany their money for seals. The essence of these communications was contained in the laconic comment of Dr. G. E. Grover, Gladwin, who wrote a one line note to accompany his check. "The pleasure is all mine."
Among the returns received from Charlevoix county Mrs. Louise Mc-Kercher of Boyne City and Mr. Clinton Cooper of Charlevoix were the first purchasers of the 1932 tuberculosis Christmas seals.

STATE FERRY BEGINS REGULAR WINTER SCHEDULE

Will Go Into Effect at Midnight Friday, December 16th

Thursday, December 15, one week from today, at midnight, a change of schedule becomes effective on the state ferry route between Mackinaw City and St. Ignace.
Beginning with Friday, December 16th, regular trips are scheduled to leave the state dock at Mackinaw City at 7:30 a. m., 12 o'clock noon 5:00 p. m. and 9:00 p. m. and from St. Ignace at 9:00 a. m.; 2:00 p. m.; 7:00 p. m. and 11:00 p. m. with extra trips later if occasion requires. According to the state highway department the time given will be the regular operating schedule for the winter months.

WORD RECEIVED OF DEATH OF FORMER LOCAL RESIDENTS

Information recently received here is to the effect that Mrs. Hattie McNeil, for many years a resident of Charlevoix but for some years past living at Ionia, died in that city in November. Also that Joe Boynton, at one time an employe of S. M. See & Sons died suddenly at Ionia Sunday, November 27th. Both were well known here in earlier years.

Mrs. Nelson Lindley, and daughter LaVerne are in Toronto, Canada, where they were called Monday on account of the serious illness of Mrs. Lindley's sister. It is probable that the two will remain at Toronto, for the winter months at least. Mrs. Lindley's address for the present is 85 Dagmar Avenue, Toronto.

Mr. John W. Greene of Pealne township has been a Charlevoix visitor for the major part of this week.

BIG GAME HUNTERS REPORT UNUSUAL SUCCESS

Charlevoix big game hunters report unusual success in their recent expedition to the big game fields during the season just closed.
A large majority of those making the trip made their kill and upon their return brought with them evidence of skill. As a result venison at the present time is a staple article of diet on a large number of Charlevoix homes.

MUSICAL SERVICE IS SCHEDULED FOR DECEMBER 26

Program To Be Given In Both Charlevoix and Petoskey

The union of a Charlevoix church choir and one in Petoskey, with singers from nearly every other church, promises to give, both in Charlevoix and Petoskey, a most beautiful musical service in celebration of Christmas.
The idea started with the union of the local Methodist choir, which furnished the music, and the choir of Emmanuel Episcopal Church of Petoskey but the cooperation of the two musical directors has been so successful that some from nearly all the other churches have been secured. The soloists from the Petoskey Methodist Church, several violins from that city, including members by a very eminent young artist recently come to our neighboring city from the East, some fine instrumental numbers from Charlevoix, the inclusion of the leading male quartette of Petoskey, etc.
Over forty voices will give volume and there will be a fully vested procession and recessional, with trumpeteers. The beautiful cantata, "The Lord's Annointed," by Lorenz, will be used.
The Rev Hunse is very enthusiastic over the music. Printed librettos will be furnished the audience, and a presentation will be given Monday evening, Dec. 26 in the local Methodist Church, and Wednesday evening, dec. 28, in emmanuel Episcopal Church, Petoskey.
Admission of course will be free. A detailed program will be given by the courtesy of our local papers, in the issues of December 23. The other churches are cordially invited, as this date probably will not conflict with other services.

MUSICAL FETE HELD FRIDAY NIGHT WINS APPROVAL

Students Of 10 Rural Schools Take Part In Program

The music festival sponsored by the music department of the Charlevoix Public Schools, held in the gym Friday evening, December 2, was a decided success and won the approval of the citizens if the number in attendance is any account.
Early in the evening the students many of them accompanied by their parents, began arriving from the ten rural schools that was to participate. By the time for the opening number on the program the gymnasium was packed.
The excellent program was in charge of Miss Esther Mary Atkinson and was unusually interesting and greatly enjoyed by the audience.

GOVERNMENT LIGHTSHIPS FINISH SEASON'S DUTIES

Government lightships Manitou and Gray's Reef abandoned their duties as aids to navigation on Lake Michigan waters early this week and entered this port Monday, where they will remain in their berths near the government supply station for the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Solomon and daughters Doris and Virginia are on their way south for the winter. They left Sunday via the motor route, with Miami, Florida, as one of their main objectives.

PROGRAM OF FELLOWSHIP HOUR WELL RECEIVED

More Than Forty Young Folks Attended New Feature

The Fellowship Hour inaugurated by the Epworth league last Sunday evening in connection with their regular Devotional Service proved to be very successful More than forty young folks were gathered together and the first had an enjoyable time. Miss Jackson and Ben McGhee had for their pleasure in the Application of Spelling. This feature was followed by two games directed by Giacomo Arena. Refreshments were served by the Misses Georgia Parsons, Dorothy Pederson and Ina Hunt. The crowd divided into three groups and each was asked to put on an impromptu play during 5 was judged to have put on the best one, and it may be the opportunity to produce it again at a later date. The winners of the winning group was the losing by Esther Wood and four of her associates in the school entertain this group at a Fresh Taste of the Pine, and Cheboygan treat at one day from half.
Kipps for the Hour fund totaling now 8 months. Beverages and Supper are paid for by the Hour fund. Tonight and next Sunday and the following Sunday the Cheboygan players present a play. Next Sunday evening Mrs. W. W. Hurd will present the topic.
There was one disagreeable feature at the Cheboygan game that the Polar Bears were defeated. Of course nothing again. They had planned on getting a basketball game with the basketball game this winter was so much fun and they did that at the end of the two games the score stood O. K. the first game by a number of the children got out of hand the second time. They had all kinds of fun up on the stage, one threw things around between the halves of the main game. The Polar Bears will undoubtedly stay the night through by the only way open and charge admission.
The W. C. T. U. meets next Thursday afternoon with Mrs. W. W. Hurd will present the topic.
Mrs. Emily Morrison of Alma arrived here Sunday to visit her sister Mrs. W. W. Mitchell.

POLAR BEARS TAKE SECOND

FROM CHEBOYGAN 41 TO 28. CUBS WIN PRELIMINARY

(By Sentinel)
With every game won assures us tournament meeting at least once, the Charlevoix Polar Bears once more entered Cheboygan's gym to play the second game of the season and it was their first time to play in the Cheboygan gym but they were going down to defeat, not like Young Jones' team who were defeated by the Polar Bears two weeks ago. The final score was 41 to 28.
Cheboygan started the game with Bloomquist, Hyde, Hartsuyker and Kaiser playing. Bates, Byrnes, Jones and Conner also played, however. Both substitutions then in different positions in the game although Bates was the only one "Under" During the second half the only team to go the scoring column was Cheboygan. Conner, one of Cheboygan's Standouts, Hartsuyker, Kaiser, Charlevoix and Hyde of Cheboygan were the players who played the whole game. Although they were on the substitute bench most of the time Bates and Byrnes, Cheboygan subs, did a fine job. The Charlevoix subs were Bill Jones, Bill Conner, Bill Hartsuyker and Ralph Kaiser.
Kipps for the Hour fund totaling now 8 months. Beverages and Supper are paid for by the Hour fund. Tonight and next Sunday and the following Sunday the Cheboygan players present a play. Next Sunday evening Mrs. W. W. Hurd will present the topic.

STATE INVESTS LARGE SUM OF MONEY RESTOCKING FISH

Three-Quarters of A Million Inventory Reveals

More than three quarters of a million dollars have been invested by the state of Michigan in equipment to be used for the propagation and restocking of fish for fishing in the lakes and streams.
In an inventory submitted by the Fish Division of the Department of Conservation a value of $787,000 is placed on land, buildings, ponds and equipment used in fish cultural work in this state. This is in addition to a sum or more of privately owned rearing ponds and the buildings and equipment in Michigan used by the United States Bureau of Fisheries.
The inventory includes valuations for 17 hatcheries, three rearing ponds, ten feeding stations, a field station, a distribution car and a patrol boat.

LIGHT AHEAD

Too often in the moments of discouragement which come to all of us in these days of depression we are prone to regard the present situation of the world as something more desperate in an economic way than humanity has ever known. Yet if we will only stop to reflect for a moment we can see that this is not true. The winter of 1932-33, distressing as it is, cannot hold a candle in comparison to the winter at Valley Forge. We thought we were bad off in 1930 but would be glad now to get back to the condition of business we enjoyed then. The year 1931 was worse than 1930 and we thought the end of the world was at hand. Now we know that 1932 was destined to be below 1931. But there is some encouragement in the fact that judging by most of the indices, we seem to have struck bottom. In 1932 we have liquidated the European troubles of 1931 which drove so many countries off the gold standard, and caused the raid on our own gold reserves, and the chances are brighter now that the time is not far distant when we will notice real improvement.

Some of the pessimistic prophets declare, however, that we are now undergoing something new, and that the end of civilization is at hand. But a great many people who have studied the situation do not agree with the pessimists. For example, Dr. Von Kuehlmann, former Foreign Minister of Germany, says, that judging by the past we can now be assured that recovery is on the way. The first signs of it he thinks will appear in 1933, and the bottom has already been reached. Dr. Von Kuehlmann bases his belief on the study of depressions of the past and his observations are decidedly interesting. Here is what he says:

"Something more like a confident feeling exists in this world now. People have new hope, and even those who up to now were steeped in pessimism and black despair begin to perceive dimly the silver lining of the clouds. It is like the coming of spring and summer days.

"The last 150 years of history have witnessed three wars which can be called great wars—the Napoleonic Wars, the American (Civil) War and the World War. History teaches us that after all these wars came a period of what we may call sham prosperity, which led to a boom of mad speculation. After the collapse of this came a period of deep depression with all the symptoms we are only too familiar with.

"If we assume that what happened after other great wars may repeat itself, we come to the conclusion that the coming year, 1933, will bring the first symptoms of recovery and a return to more normal business conditions. Even the year 1932, which is now nearing its end, has considerably contributed to laying the foundation, for happier times."

At any rate, whether 1933 marks the real turning point or not, there is something more logical in the German expert's opinions, based on a study of history, than on the bare predictions of the pessimists to the effect that civilization is doomed. Surely there is more wealth in the world than there was in the times of the depressions noted above. We have the experience of past ages to go by, and we have the modern means of producing wealth, unknown a few years ago. Many assert that our ultra modern machinery is ruining society by displacing hand labor, but the same thing was said when the harvester and the steam engine were invented. New fields of effort are constantly being opened up and new comforts and conveniences made possible for the masses. Some of these days the world will catch its stride again and we will forget all about our present fears. Let us hope, however, that we will never forget the lessons we have learned in the depression.

PROGRESS OF THE HOME

Nothing has done more toward encouragement of home building and a fuller, happier, more leisurely domestic life, than electricity. That statement needs no argument—statistics back it up. For example, one cent, with electricity costing five cents per kilowatt hour, will operate a 50-watt light for four hours. It will operate a toaster long enough to make 20 slices of toast. It will operate a percolator long enough to make six cups of coffe, or a heating pad from four to eight hours. It will operate a chafing dish for 24 minutes, and a thousand other labor saving devices.

In ten years the number of homes receiving electric service has doubled and the total is now above 20,000,000. The benefits of abundant, low priced power have been extended into farming districts and thinly populated regions of all kinds through the development of great interconnected systems.

Perhaps it is by this achievement—the progress of the home—that electricity will at last be judged. There it has broken bonds that bound us for hundreds of years and released time once given to laborious tasks, to other uses. Domestic evolution and electric power are almost synonymous terms.

MUST FORCE TAX REDUCTION

One of the most encouraging phases of the late campaign was the attitude taken by the majority of candidates for public office toward the cost of government and the need for tax reduction. President-elect Roosevelt has stated that a 25 per cent cut is essential and has pledged his efforts toward achieving that. Those elected with him have echoed his views.

If such a reduction is made it will have an amazingly fine effect on the country—not only in the money that will be saved, but in psychological result. There is no question but what the specter of still higher taxes frightens thousands of investors and shoves money into safe-deposit vaults and tea pots; that it prevents business from going ahead and expanding; that it discourages home building and savings; that, in this time of unemployment, it creates more unemployment, more hardship, more distress.

Every citizen should demand a sound program to lower taxes. We can do this by not asking for expenditures that touch only a small part of the country at the expense of the whole; by taking the broad, rather than the local, view. We can follow up federal reductions by forcing state, county and municipal governments—which is the most expensive of all—and public officials, to observe the example. In short, the time and the opportunity for tax reduction are here—and it must be had.

THE BURNING PIT

The 130,000,000 citizens of the United States, on a stated day, gather together in one place. A line of trucks, bearing $500,000,000 in United States currency, carry their load to the edge of a great pit and dump it in. It is saturated with gasoline, and a match applied. As this fortune goes up in smoke, 10,000 persons are shoved into the burning pit.

After this holycaust is over it is found that thousands of factories, homes, farms, hospitals and public buildings no longer exist and thus an army of men are thrown out of work. Cities and states are forced to raise their tax rates to compensate for the property which no longer pays its share of the cost of government.

If such a thing as the above happened, every newspaper in the civilized world would carry scarcheads. It would become the main topic of conversation in a hundred nations. It would be denounced as the greatest crime in history.

Yet, in effect, this result actually occurs annually in the United States. Very few people give it any particular thought because it doesn't happen at a given moment on a given day—it happens throughout the year. It represents our national fire bill.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

MOUNT VERNON

In all America there is no other home quite like this. Across its threshold the visitor steps back into the mid-eighteenth century. From grandroom to garret, its furnishings and memories bespeak the nobility of its central figure. As though he had gone but for a day he puts his neighbors calls and be welcome. And how they come, these neighbors! Increasing thousands as years go by, drawn in gratitude to the heartsome of this wise and unselfish comrade to his own and succeeding generations.

AUTO DRIVER—LOOK AT YOURSELF

Personal traits and characteristics are as much to blame for our appalling highway death rate as are incompetence and ignorance. The driver who passes on hills and curves, who operates his car at excessive speeds, who hogs the road and drives on the wrong side of the highway, who "weaves" and cuts in and out, is the driver, who, no matter how great his skill, causes a large share of the 35,000 deaths each year.

The most encouraging sign at present is the wide public interest in highway safety—an interest which has grown amazingly the last year or two. Traffic laws are being studied. Surveys of accident statistics are being made. There is less theorizing and more dealing with honest facts.

Every state should have laws in accord with modern conditions. One of the most necessary steps is more drastic supervision of youthful drivers—it has been found that drivers under 20 have a 39 per cent worse record than the average, while those between 40 and 50 have a record 29 per cent better than the average. Automobiles should be periodically inspected in the matter of brakes, steering, lights, etc. Examinations of applicants for drivers' licenses ought to be conducted with extreme care.

The automobile death rate can and must be lowered. There is no place for the reckless, the incompetent, and the mentally or physically defective on our streets and highways. Sixty-five thousand deaths in two years is mute testimony to the need for quick and decisive action.

TOWARD ECONOMIC NORMALCY

That is the problem faced by the railroads—and a problem that is not the result of depression, but of twelve years of comparative poverty. They have kept the machine going only by the most stringent economy. Salaries and wages have been drastically reduced and personnel decreased; expenditures for materials and supplies have been halved; maintenance work has been postponed, and for two years no important equipment purchases have been made. Now the lines have reached the point where further reductions in the cost of operation are manifestly impossible, and only a new transport policy can save them from ruin.

The railroads ask for nothing except a governmental policy that will treat all carriers as much alike as possible, and allow them to compete on fair terms. It is essential to the public interest that such a policy be conceived and applied. It would put hundreds of thousands of men to work, pay reasonable dividends to the multitude of railroad shareholders, aid savings banks, insurance companies, endowed institutions and similar heavy railroad investors. In other words, it would be a step toward economic normalcy.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

Complacent Americans look at the election returns showing the comparatively insignificant vote of the Socialist candidates and declare that there is no danger of the United States going radical. They do not stop to think that socialism can come about through evolution much easier than through the ballot box. Communism swept over Russia when the communistic comprised an apparently hopeless minority of the population—they are in fact still a minority.

If socialism comes in the United States it will come through a breaking down of our system of government due to federal burdens imposed on the people through regulation and high taxes. The danger is not an imaginary one. It is real and deserves the consideration of every American.

Henry Swift Ives, special counsel for the Association of Casualty and Surety executives declared the other day that profits and earnings are threatened with confiscation to meet the growing cost of government and that socialism is the only alternative unless the situation is corrected.

The extent to which taxation national, state and local, is eating into business is evidenced in a recent article in the Tax Magazine by George C. Williams, himself an expert on taxation. In part, Mr. Williams says:

If state and local taxes, that increased from $1,472,661,824 during the year 1931 to in excess of two billion dollars in 1930, or an increase of approximately fifty per cent in ten years, continue to increase as rapidly in the next ten years, it will not be long before the various governments will take all corporation earnings as taxes and in effect we will have government ownership of our corporations.

"During depression years, of 1921, 1930, and 1931, the federal, state, and local governments actually do take from our corporations all or nearly all their net earnings as a result of collecting several billions of dollars as taxes which result in corporation net deficits, leaving nothing for the stockholders.

"During the year 1930 all our corporations had earnings of only $803,829,657 available to stockholders, yet during 1930 the federal, state, and local governments received as direct taxes approximately $2,618,000,000. During 1931 it can be conservatively estimated, based on the published 9 months' earnings statements of our big corporations, that all the corporations in the United States will have a net deficit, leaving nothing available for stockholders. Even though nothing will be left for stockholders out of 1931 earnings, the federal, state and local governments are increasing 1931 corporation taxes, expecting to collect even more than the $2,618,000,000 collected from corporations in 1930."

Here are some figures which ought to make the average citizen stop and think for a moment. These great corporations which are being taxed to death do not belong to the wealthy. Their securities are scattered all over the country, and are owned by people of modest means as well as the rich. And each holder of these securities is suffering financially because of the heavy taxes.

But that is not all. The owners of real estate, the farmer and the home owner, the small merchant who owns his business building, are paying as much in proportion as the corporations of the nations. Nobody can escape.

The only way to remedy the situation is not to find new people and new industries to tax, but to cut down public expenses and so reduce the tax bill. Either that must be done or we will all be working for the government ten years from now.

Ten Cents On The Dollar Is No Settlement

The allied nations won the war on American money. After peace was made, England, France and Japan divided between themselves parts of Asia and Africa, and France and England also gained political control over some territories in central Europe. The United States, true to the high purpose with which she entered the war asked for nothing in the way of spoils or reparations—and got nothing.

All this nation has ever asked is for the repayment of the money loaned to Europe, and that on whatever basis is convenient to Europe. And all the schemes and plots and maneuvers which rich Europe—500,000,000 people live and work and produce there—may devise in an attempt to fool the United States into believing that it is unable to pay cannot convince the informed American that such is the case.

The only possible circumstances in which the United States could consent honorably to a compromise on debt payments would be in return for promises from Europe that she would rid herself of her great disarmament burden, that she would make some tangible effort toward reviving international trade by scaling down her preposterous and vindictive tariff schedules, and that she would bend her energies sincerely toward the job of restoring peace and prosperity. But even if this were done there would be no obligation on the part of the United States to give away what rightfully belongs to its people.

Europe never would have made as much headway in its plans as it has had it not been for the aid given it in this country by a few Eastern internationalists whose own private money is tied up with the public debt settlement, and who, therefore, have urged the allied nations to press their case while at the same time they have through their agencies of propaganda tried to spread the idea that somehow magnanimity on the part of the United States will speed up the return of prosperity.—Columbus, O., Dispatch.

In the good old days of 1929 it was two cars for every family and now it is two families in every car.

Do you ever long for the good old days when the young man who drove down Main St., in a rubber tired rig, cracking his whip, was regarded as a devil?

If you don't think the employment situation is looking up, just think of the thousands of deserving Democrats who are expecting jobs after March 4th.

It seems that you can buy about everything in tin cans now excepting prosperity.

It is said that a dark reddish brown substance in the waters of Long Island Sound is killing the fish. The prohibition agents ought to be more careful about where they pour their captured stuff.

We give the prize for undue worrying to a British economist who comes forward with a worry lest business will enter into another uncontrolled boom after the end of the present depression.

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Messrs. Smallegan, Richardson and Grayson of Central Lake, were here attending the K. P. party Monday evening, and made the Sentinel a call.

Winter fishing will be resumed next Monday, December 5th by both local concerns—John O'Neill with three tugs, and G. C. Gelken with one, and possibly two. Fishing will continue probably all winter, subject of course to ice conditions

Wm. Phelps and daughter Edith left today to spend the winter in Vermont.

As the first term of this school year is drawing to a close, parents and others who are interested in educational matters are especially requested to visit the schools, observe what progress is being made, make the personal acquaintance of teachers, and by their presence and words of encouragement lend their aid in building up our system of education.

Last week the Sentinel stated that contractor Elliott of Jackson, had arrived with his tools to sink the waterworks well. We were right in announcing the arrival of the contractor but wrong about the tools; they were to follow, so the contractor said—but they didn't follow. Elliott remained here a few days and departed, and now we are again hearing the devil and the deep blue sea on the water supply question. Is it not about time the council looked up the definition of the word "contract" and ascertain if the public has no share in its provisions of security against damage. There has been more genuine humbugery about this well-digging business than ever before was known in the corporate history of Charlevoix.

If all signs do not fail, next spring will inaugurate the liviest boom for Charlevoix that she has ever yet enjoyed. The work on resort cottages and other improvements will of itself create an unprecedented demand for mechanics; but many other channels of industry will be stimulated. The taping of the waterworks will of itself give employment to a considerable force for at least two months. And, if our people will only awake this winter to the importance of the matter, a large hotel will be erected. If a little enthusiasm could be stirred up and a systematic move made we have no doubt that capital could be enlisted in the project. There is money in it for whoever undertakes it. But we repeat, the signs all point to the beginning of an era of growth and increased prosperity for Charlevoix.

Saturday, at precisely 2:45 p. m., standard time, the Charlevoix water-works were given a hose test. We are thus explicit as to time, because our watch stopped at 2:45.

We are constrained to believe that those of our citizens who were on the street at the time will be unanimous in the opinion that the test was emphatically a satisfactory one to them.

A section of hose had been brought to the hydrant near the Sentinel building. Under the management of Superintendent Baldwin and Trustee Washburn, the test was made. The editor of this paper assisted. At the urgent request of Mr. Washburn we joined him at the nozzle. Our connection with the test was of very brief duration; so was Washburn's. A balloon ascension with young Elliott would have been a picnic beside the experience of that brief moment.

Before Mr. Baldwin turned on the water we stood up in all the dignity of conscious manhood; so did Trustee Washburn. One second after Mr. Baldwin released the 4½ miles of imprisoned Round Lake with us, we were transformed into a bedraggled, dripping, humiliated wretch; so was Washburn.

Mr. Baldwin had previously told us there was 100 pounds pressure on the mains. He lied: there was at least 600. Nothing less than 600 pounds to the square inch could thus trans-form the Charlevoix waterworks into a resistless hydrostatic cyclone!

Our memory is clouded some what as to details, the event was so pregnant with incidents of soul-harrowing character. we remember trying to rise from the earth at a point ten feet from where but a moment before we had so proudly stood and being knocked down again by the infernal thing we are taxing ourselves to maintain. We remember seeing Washburn on the opposite side of the street making desperate efforts to arise and escape. Then the thing, with animated vindictiveness, divided its moisture between the two of us.

All on its own responsibility it broke out two of the large lights of glass in Wilbur's store front and swished around in search of more tax-payers to make darn fools of. Baldwin couldn't shut it off "for laffin" and—well, they took us home in a delivery wagon.

Fifty Years Ago

Our Schools.—As Charlevoix develops in other respects we are pleased to note the improvement in our schools.

They have already become a factor of our prosperity of which we need not be ashamed.

In an early day, in the formation of school districts, the maximum amount of territory prescribed by law, was taken for a district; these are now being sub-divided as the county increases in population until at present we have sixty school districts, requiring the services of sixty five teachers; viz.; four in Charlevoix, two in Ironton, two in Boyne and one each in the remaining fifty-seven districts.

A better class of buildings are being erected; the district boards are furnishing schools with efficient apparatus, including maps, globes, dictionaries, etc.; they have increased teachers wages from 25 to 50 per cent, and are trying to carry out the spirit of the school law.

Harpers Series of text books has been adopted by every district in the county (except one) thus giving the county a uniform series of text books, a consumation that has been devoutly wished for by our teachers, and will prove to be very beneficial.

The standard of qualification of our teachers compare favorably with those of any other portion of the state.

Several of our young teachers who contemplate making the profession a business are attending Normal Schools, and will come back to the work with improved methods of instruction.

A County Teacher's Association was organized last June and is in good working order.

We are looking forward to the day when our County Institutes will be converted into County Normals of two or three weeks duration which will be of more benefit to our young teachers.

With the hearty co-operation of school officers, patrons, and teachers, we hope to make our schools second to none.

J. B. Allen, G. W. Allen, Flora Ainslie, Emily Barnes, Ella E. Barry, Francis E. Beal, Julia Beal, Sarah A. Bird, B. F. Bishee, E. A. Bryant, H. E. Chatfield, A. W. Chew, E. C. Chew, J. E. Chew, Annie Cooper, Minnie Cooper, Lizzie E. Cooper, R. L. Corlett, Margery A. Deline, Sarah Dewar, Etta Edwards, D. Gillespie, C. D. Glass, Alice Glenn, J. E. Harris, L. P. Hastings, Nettie Hawks, A. E. Hadley, Adell Hill, Melissa Ketler, Levina Lesch, Addie Lewis, T. Lewis, Helen Meech, H. Pardee, Marietta Pope, Nettie Purdue, F. H. Ramey, Ella Rogers, Hattie Rose, Laura Scofield, E. H. Shepard, Laura Simon, Josie Stauffer, Carrie Stevens, Levina Thompson, Emeline Thompson, O. B. Thurston, Mary Wakefield, Lizzie Watson. The following have received special certificates (a special certificate is valid in a specified district): Ethel Billlie, Eva Bennet, Maggie O'Neill, Annie Metcalf, Flora Nelson, Edith Cole, Rachael Alley, R. N. Middleton, F. L. Church. A total of fifty-nine.

Dexter and Noble of Elk Rapids, have decided not to do any logging on the Manistee River this winter.

Morris Stockman's old cat "Pitcher" died recently at the youthful age of 19 years. Reqiies cat in peace.

Wm. Nelson, of Evangeline, has established a lumber yard at the old Lalster place on Round Lake.

The contract for the building of the ferry scow for the mouth of South Arm has been let to Messrs. Dougherty and Carr of this village.

The Critic.—Through courtesy of those interested, we give a summary of the extent and expense of the work done on the breakwater at the mouth of Pine River:

8134 linear feet of timber at 96c., $2,928.24; 772 1-2 cubic yards stone, at $2.50 $1,931.25 and 1½ iron at 17c, $661.47. Total amount expended, $5,520.96.

Epizoot.—The horse disease is prevailing to an alarming extent throughout the region. The mail due last Saturday did not arrive until late Sunday, and the mail due on Thursday has not arrived as we go to press.

We apprehend considerable irregularity in the mails for some time to come, in consequence of this epidemic.

PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE

part of which was spent for improvement of the property belonging to the school district. The balance of the $292.85 is chargeable to the Bugle and Drum corps, advertising, equipment, etc., to promote Legion activities, which activities in turn supported community welfare. On top of the foregoing, hours upon hours of labor were donated by members absolutely without any charge whatsoever.

However the point is that there was a deficit of bills due and payable in the above mentioned amount.

Early in the fall at a meeting of the post's executive committee, believing that the merchants had held their accounts open long enough, demands were made upon the treasurer for payment of the bills. This action met with the approval of the post at a regular session. Since that time other bills have been presented bringing the total to the before mentioned figure.

During the last three months the local post has conducted a number of events which proved a financial success in spite of economic conditions. These activities together with membership dues raised $194.06. After deducting from this amount state and national dues, paying the balance of the old Legion debts in excess of the money borrowed for this purpose, and paying the total expense incurred since Sept. 1 in the amount of $48.51 we have a balance of $40.20 as of November 26, 1932.

Since Sept. 1 the American Legion has expended $385.11. This amount less $54.25 to state headquarters has been spent IN THIS COMMUNITY. If circumstances of any account this should be considered.

And in this consideration also include the total of over $2400.00 that was expended by the Legion during the last year.

We realize that the information contained herein is strictly organization business, but due to the facts that the Legion is dedicated to the community, work for the benefit of the community, and depend upon the public for cooperation in our work, we, with the approval of the post at regular session, make the information public through the columns of Forward March.

In view of the foregoing, and in consideration of the ideals for which the American Legion, as an organization stands, we ask your future support and cooperation for in the final analysis the Legion in this community will be just about what the members here and public paint it.

We leave it to you to help draw the picture.

LIGHT AHEAD

Too often in the moments of discouragement which come to all of us in these days of depression we are prone to regard the present situation of the world as something more desperate, in an economic way than humanity has ever known. Yet if we will only stop to reflect for a moment we can see that this is not true. The winter of 1932-33, distressing as it is, cannot hold a candle in comparison to the winter at Valley Forge. We thought we were bad off in 1930 but would be glad now to get back to the condition of business we enjoyed then. The year 1931 was worse than 1930 and we thought the end of the world was at hand. Now we know that 1932 was destined to be below 1931. But there is some encouragement in the fact that judging by most of the indices, we seem to have struck bottom. In 1932 we have liquidated the European troubles of 1931 which drove so many countries off the gold standard, and caused the raid on our own gold reserves, and the chances are brighter now that the time is not far distant when we will notice further improvement.

Some of the pessimistic prophets declare, however, that we are now undergoing something new, and that the end of civilization is at hand. But a great many men who have studied the situation do not agree with the pessimists. For example, Dr. Von Kuehlmann, former Foreign Minister of Germany, says, that judging by the past we can now be assured that recovery is on the way. The first signs of it will probably appear in 1933, and the bottom has already been reached. Dr. Von Kuehlmann bases his belief on the study of depressions of the past and his observations are decidedly interesting. Here is what he says:

"Something more like a confident feeling exists in this world now. People have new hope, and even those who up to now were steeped in pessimism and black despair begin to perceive dimly the silver lining of the clouds. It is like the coming of spring and summer days.

"The last 150 years of history have witnessed three wars which can be called great wars—the Napoleonic Wars, the American (Civil) War and the World War. History teaches us that after all these wars came a period of what we may call sham prosperity, which led to a boom of mad speculation. After the collapse of this came a period of deep depression with all the symptoms we are only too familiar with.

"If we assume that what happened after other great wars may repeat itself, we come to the conclusion that the coming year, 1933, will bring the first symptoms of recovery and a return to more normal business conditions. Even the year 1932, which is now nearing its end, has considerably contributed to laying the foundation for happier times."

At any rate, whether 1933 marks the real turning point or not, there is something encouraging in the German expert's opinions, based on a study of history, than on the bare predictions of the pessimists to the effect that civilization is doomed. Surely there is more wealth in the world than there was in the time of the depressions noted above. We have the experience of past ages to go by, and we have the modern means of producing wealth, unknown a few years ago. Many assert that our ultra modern machinery is ruining society by displacing hand labor, but the same thing was said when the harvester and the steam engine were invented. New fields of effort are constantly being opened up and new comforts and conveniences made possible for the masses. Some of these days the world will catch its stride again and we will forget all about our present fears. Let us hope, however, that we will never forget the lessons we have learned in the depression.

PROGRESS OF THE HOME

Nothing has done more toward encouragement of home building and a fuller, happier, more leisurely domestic life, than electricity. That statement needs no argument—statistics back it up. For example, one cent, with electricity costing five cents per kilowatt hour, will operate a 50-watt light for four hours. It will operate a toaster long enough to make 20 slices of toast. It will operate a percolator long enough to make six cups of coffee, or a heating pad from four to eight hours. It will operate a chafing dish for 24 minutes, and a thousand other labor saving devices.

In ten years the number of homes receiving electric service has doubled and the total is now above 20,000,000. The benefits of abundant, low priced power have been extended into farming districts and thinly populated regions of all kinds through the development of great interconnected systems.

Perhaps it is by this achievement—the progress of the home—that electricity will at last be judged. There it has broken bonds that bound us for hundreds of years and released time once given to laborious tasks, to other uses. Domestic evolution and electric power are almost synonymous terms.

MUST FORCE TAX REDUCTION

One of the most encouraging phases of the late campaign was the attitude taken by the majority of candidates for public office toward the cost of government and the need for tax reduction. President-elect Roosevelt has stated that a 25 per cent cut is essential and has pledged his efforts toward achieving that. Those elected with him have echoed his views.

If such a reduction is made it will have an amazingly fine effect on the country—not only in the money that will be saved, but in psychological result. There is no question but what the specter of still higher taxes frightens thousands of investors and shoves money into safe-deposit vaults and ten pots; that it prevents business from going ahead and expanding; that it discourages home building and savings; that, in this time of unemployment, it creates more unemployment, more hardship, more distress.

Every citizen should demand a sound program to lower taxes. We can do this by not asking for expenditures that touch only a small part of the country at the expense of the whole; by making the bread, rather than the local, view. We can follow up federal reductions by forcing state, county and municipal governments—which are the most expensive of all—and public officials, to observe the example. In short, the time and the opportunity for tax reduction are here—and it must be had.

THE BURNING PIT

The 130,000,000 citizens of the United States, on a stated day, gather together in one place. A line of trucks, bearing $500,000,000 in United States currency, carry their load to the edge of a great pit and dump it in. It is saturated with gasoline, and a match applied. As this fortune goes up in smoke, 10,000 persons are shoved into the burning pit.

After this holycaust is over it is found that thousands of factories, homes, farms, hospitals and public buildings no longer exist and thus an army of men are thrown out of work. Cities and states are forced to raise their tax rates to compensate for the property which no longer pays its share of the cost of government.

If such a thing as the above happened, every newspaper in the civilized world would carry scareheads. It would become the main topic of conversation in a hundred nations. It would be denounced as the greatest crime in history.

Yet, in effect, this result actually occurs annually in the United States. Very few people give it any particular thought because it doesn't happen at a given moment on a given day—it happens throughout the year. It represents our national fire bill.

AUTO DRIVER—LOOK AT YOURSELF

Personal traits and characteristics are as much to blame for our appalling highway death rate as are incompetence and ignorance. The driver who passes on hills and curves, who operates his car at excessive speeds, who hogs the road and drives on the wrong side of the highway, who "weaves" and cuts in and out, is the driver, who, no matter how great his skill, causes a large share of the 25,000 deaths each year.

The most encouraging sign at present is the wide public interest in highway safety—an interest which has grown amazingly the last year or two. Traffic laws are being studied. Surveys of accident statistics are being made. There is less theorizing and more dealing with honest facts.

Every state should have laws in accord with modern conditions. One of the most necessary steps is more rigid supervision of youthful drivers—it has been found that drivers under 20 have a 39 per cent worse record than the average, while those between 20 and 50 have a record 29 per cent better than the average. Automobiles should be periodically inspected in the matter of brakes, steering, lights, etc. Examinations of applicants for drivers' licenses ought to be conducted with extreme care.

The automobile death rate can and must be lowered. There is no place for the reckless, the incompetent, and the mentally or physically defective on our streets and highways. Sixty-five thousand deaths in two years is mute testimony to the need for quick and decisive action.

TOWARD ECONOMIC NORMALCY

That is the problem faced by the railroads—and a problem that is not the result of depression, but of twelve years of comparative poverty. They have kept the machine going only by the most stringent economy. Salaries and wages have been drastically reduced and personnel decreased; expenditures for materials and supplies have been halved; maintenance work has been postponed, and for two years no important equipment purchases have been made. Now the lines have reached the point where further reductions in the cost of operation are manifestly impossible, and only a new transport policy can save them from ruin.

The railroads ask for nothing except a governmental policy that will treat all carriers as much alike as possible, and allow them to compete on fair terms. It is essential to the public interest that such a policy be conceived and applied. It would put hundreds of thousands of men to work, pay reasonable dividends to the multitude of railroad shareholders, aid savings banks, insurance companies, endowed institutions and similar heavy railroad investors. In other words, it would be a step toward economic normalcy.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank F. Litachert

Complacent Americans look at the election returns showing the comparatively insignificant vote of the Socialist candidates and declare that there is no danger of the United States going radical. They do not stop to think that socialism can come about through evolution much easier than through the ballot box. Communism swept over Russia when the communists comprised an apparently hopeless minority of the population—they are in fact still a minority.

If socialism comes in the United States it will come through a breaking down of our system of government due to federal burdens imposed on the people through regulation and high taxes. The danger is not an imaginary one. It is real and deserves the consideration of every American.

Henry Swift Ives, special counsel for the Association of Casualty and Surety executives, declared the other day that profits and earnings are threatened with confiscation to meet the growing cost of government and that socialism is the only alternative unless the situation is corrected.

The extent to which taxation national, state and local, is eating into business is evidenced in a recent article in the Tax Magazine by George C. Williams, himself an expert on taxation. In part, Mr. Williams says:

If state and local taxes, that increased from $1,472,601,824 during the year 1931 to in excess of two billion dollars in 1930, or an increase of approximately fifty per cent in ten years, continue to increase as rapidly in the next ten years, it will not be long before the various governments will take all corporation earnings as taxes and in effect we will have government ownership of our corporations.

"During depression years, of 1921, 1930, and 1931, the federal, state and local governments actually do take from our corporations all or nearly all their net earnings as a result of collecting several billions of dollars as taxes which result in corporation net deficits, leaving nothing for the stockholders.

"During the year 1930 all our corporations had earnings of only $803,829,657 available to stockholders, yet during 1930 the federal, state, and local governments received as direct taxes approximately $2,618,000,000. During 1931 it can be conservatively estimated, based on the published 9 months' earnings statements of our big corporations, that all the corporations in the United States will have a net deficit, leaving nothing available for stockholders. Even though nothing will be left for stockholders out of 1931 earnings, the federal, state and local governments are increasing 1931 corporation taxes, expecting to collect even more than the $2,618,000,000 collected from corporations in 1930."

Here are some figures which ought to make the average citizen stop and think for a moment. These great corporations which are being taxed to death do not belong to the wealthy. Their securities are scattered all over the country, and are owned by people of modest means as well as the rich. And each holder of these securities is suffering financially because of the heavy taxes.

But that is not all. The owners of real estate, the farmer and the home owner, the small merchant who owns his business building, are paying as much in proportion as the corporations of the nations. Nobody can escape.

The only way to remedy the situation is not to find new people and new industries to tax, but to cut down public expense and so reduce the tax bill. Either that must be done or we will all be working for the government ten years from now.

Ten Cents On The Dollar Is No Settlement

The allied nations won the war on American money. After peace was made, England, France and Japan divided between themselves parts of Asia and Africa, and France and England also gained political control over some territories in central Europe. The United States, true to the high purpose with which she entered the war asked for nothing in the way of spoils or reparations—and got nothing.

All this nation has ever asked is for the repayment of the money loaned to Europe, and that on whatever basis is convenient to Europe. And all the schemes and plots and maneuvers which rich Europe—300,000,000 people live and work and produce there—may devise in an attempt to fool the United States into believing that it is unable to pay cannot convince the informed American that such is the case.

The only possible circumstances in which the United States could consent honorably to a compromise on debt payments would be in return for promises from Europe that she would rid herself of her great disarmament burden, that she would make some tangible effort toward reviving international trade by scaling down her preposterous and vindictive tariff schedules, and that she would bend her energies sincerely toward the job of restoring peace and prosperity. But even if this were done there would be no obligation on the part of the United States to give away what rightfully belongs to its people.

Europe never would have made as much headway in its plans as it has had it not been for the aid given it in this country by a few Eastern internationalists whose own private money is tied up with the public debt settlement, and who, therefore, have urged the allied nations to press their case while at the same time they have through their agencies of propaganda tried to spread the idea that somehow magnanimity on the part of the United States will speed up the return of prosperity.—Columbus, O., Dispatch.

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Messrs. Smallegan, Richardson and Grayson of Central Lake, were here attending the K. P. party Monday evening, and made the Sentinel a call.

Winter fishing will be resumed next Monday, December 5th by both local concerns—John O'Neill with three tugs, and G. C. Gelken with one, and possibly two. Fishing will continue probably all winter, subject of course to ice conditions.

Wm. Phelps and daughter Edith left today to spend the winter in Vermont.

As the first term of this school year is drawing to a close, parents and others who are interested in educational matters are especially requested to visit the schools, observe what progress is being made, make the personal acquaintance of teachers, and by their presence and words of encouragement lend their aid in building up our system of education.

Last week the Sentinel stated that contractor Elliott of Jackson, had arrived with his tools to sink the waterworks well. We were right in announcing the arrival of the contractor but wrong about the tools; they were to follow, so the contractor said—but they didn't follow. Elliott remained here a few days and departed, and now we are again between the devil and the deep blue sea on the water supply question. Is it not about time the council looked up the definition of the word "contract" and ascertain if the public has no share in its provisions of security against damage. There has been more than this were done there would be no obligation on the part of the United States to give away what rightfully belongs to its people.

Europe never would have made as much headway in its plans as it has had it not been for the aid given it in this country by a few Eastern internationalists whose own private money is tied up with the public debt settlement, and who, therefore, have urged the allied nations to press their case while at the same time they have through their agencies of propaganda tried to spread the idea that somehow magnanimity on the part of the United States will speed up the return of prosperity.—Columbus, O., Dispatch.

Dexter and Noble of Elk Rapids, have decided not to do any logging on the Manistee River this winter.

Morris Stuckman's old cat "Pitcher" died recently at the youthful age of 19 years. Rejoices cat in peace.

Wm. Nelson, of Evangeline, has established a lumber yard at the old Laister place on Round Lake.

The contract for the building of the ferry scow for the mouth of South Arm has been let to Messrs. Dougherty and Carr of this village.

The Cribs—Through courtesy of those interested, we give a summary of the extent and expense of the work done on the breakwater at the mouth of Pine River:

4134 linear feet of timber at 96c., $2,928.24; 772 1-2 cubic yards stone, at $2.50 $1,931.25 3891 lbs. iron at 17c, $661.47. Total amount expended, $5,520.96.

Epizoot.—The horse disease is prevailing to an alarming extent throughout the region. The mail due last Saturday did not arrive until late Sunday, and the mail due on Thursday has not arrived as we go to press.

We apprehend considerable irregularity in the mails for some time to come, in consequence of this epidemic.

Fifty Years Ago

Our Schools.—As Charlevoix develops in other respects we are pleased to note the improvement in our schools.

They have already become a factor of our prosperity of which we need not be ashamed.

In an early day, in the formation of school districts, the maximum amount of territory prescribed by law, was taken for a district; it is now being sub-divided as the county increases in population until at present we have sixty school districts, requiring the services of sixty-five teachers; viz.; four in Charlevoix, two in Ironton, two in Boyne and one each in the remaining fifty-seven districts.

A better class of buildings are being erected; the district boards are furnishing schools with efficient apparatus, including maps, globes, dictionaries, etc.; they have increased teachers wages from 25 to 50 per cent, and are trying to carry out the spirit of the school law.

Harpers Series of text books has been adopted by every district in the county (except one) thus giving the county a uniform series of text books, a consumation that has been devoutly wished for by our teachers, and will prove to be very beneficial.

The standard of qualification of our teachers compare favorably with those of any other portion of the state.

Several of our young teachers who contemplate making the profession a business are attending Normal Schools, and will come back to the work with improved methods of instruction.

Since Sept. 1 the American Legion has expended $395.11. This amount less $54.25 to state headquarters has been spent IN THIS COMMUNITY. If circulation of money is of any account this should be considered.

And in this consideration also include the total of over $2400.00 that was expended by the Legion during the last year.

We realize that the information contained is strictly organization business, but due to the fact that the Legion is dedicated to the community, work for the benefit of the community, and depend upon the public for cooperation in our work, we, with the approval of the post at regular session, make this information public through the columns of Forward March.

In view of the foregoing, and in consideration of the ideals for which the American Legion, as an organization, stands, we ask your future support and cooperation for in the final analysis the Legion in this community will be just about what the members and public paint it.

We leave it to you to help draw the picture.

"Unto the Only Cause and Creator" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, December 4.

Among the Bible citations was the passage (Ps. 107: 8, 9): "Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! For he satisfieth the longing soul, and filleth the hungry soul with goodness."

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p. 423): "The metaphysician, making Mind his basis of operation irrespective of matter and regarding the truth and harmony of being as supreme and only real and record, has rendered himself strong, instead of weak, to cope with the false, and he proportionately strengthens his patient with the thoughts of courage and conscious power."

SCHOOL NEWS GIVES AN ACCOUNT OF RECENT EVENTS

Christmas Vacation To Begin Thursday, December 22

Assembly Program

The assembly program last week consisted of a half hour of singing under the direction of Miss Atkinson. The C. H. S. is a group of students who are very good singers and when the group has been arranged so as to sing in parts, it will prove itself even more.

For the assembly program this week we are planning on a speaker, Mr. Lewis of Dublin, Ireland, who spoke here two years ago. Everyone is looking forward with pleasure to hear again Mr. Lewis.

Band

Many of the band members have turned out for orchestra practise where meets three times each week during the activity period. There has been a wonderful turnout with almost all of the needed instruments available.

Christmas Vacations

The last day of school before Christmas Vacation is Wednesday, December 21. Vacation begins on Thursday, December 22. The last day of vacation is Tuesday, January 3, School reopens on Wednesday, January 4.

Tuesday evening, December 13, Mr. Bush will speak at the Murray School Parent-Teachers Association meeting.

The teacher's meeting scheduled for Monday afternoon has been postponed a week in order to give the faculty more time to study the second report of the Educational Creed Committee.

James Gallagher of Beaver Island entered the Sophomore class this week. This means that the 10th grade has two boys enrolled named James Gallagher and both from Beaver Island. We are wondering how the teachers will distinguish between them in the class room. However Ismouth nickname in Beaver Island was "Moose" and maybe he will answer to that name in C. H. S., or maybe "James Beaver" would be better, we'll have to wait and see what the distinction will be.

Junior High News

Boys Game Club—53; Boys and Girls Dramatics—57; Boys and Girls Checker Club—112; Boys and Girls Crocheting Club—50; Boys and Girls Travel Club—27.

These are only suggestive names for certain clubs which have been started. Others equally as suggestive have been organized but a more detailed account of the program will appear in an early issue of the school notes.

Assembly Speaker

Last Tuesday the students of Junior and Senior High Schools were addressed by Dr. Soller, from the Extension Department of the University of Michigan.

Dr. Soller gave a talk on the goiter and the thyroid gland. He told the students that Michigan was a goiter country because the waters of the Great Lakes consisted of little iodine, "Iodine", he said, "is one of the most important elements of the thyroid gland." He urged the extensive use of iodized salt in preventing goiters. Dr. Soller so described the goiter that all of the students should recognize it if they should come in contact with it.

Plans have been made by Dr. Soller for three talks to be given before the Junior and Senior High Schools by three of our local physicians.

The Junior High School students have been so fortunate as to secure a radio which has been installed in Mr. Bingham's office. This was presented to the Junior High through the influence of Miss Milner. It will be used for various educational purposes throughout the year.

History and Civics

The American History Class is having Historical book reports. Carl Bogart gave a very interesting report on the "The Light in the Clearing"—a vivid description of a railroad travel in 1840. It also included details of home and social life.

The Civics Class is studying Michigan government. They are making the acquaintance of the three volumes of compiled laws of Michigan for 1929. The class haven't weighed the books yet, but they are considering measuring them.

The Modern History people are looking for the undesirable characteristics of Napoleon Bonepart. They will complete their study by writing a characterization, limited to 100 words.

Home Economics

The seventh grade girls are busy making simple Christmas gifts.

The eighth grade girls are studying, "How you can make your home friendly, hospitable and entertaining for your family and guests." This includes, how to help mother, extending invitations, the are of a gracious hostess and how to serve refreshments.

Saturday evening, the Board of Education was served a three-course formal dinner by the Home Management class.

The guests were received in the community room of the Junior High School building.

The rooms were gaily decorated with Christmas trees, pine boughs and poinsettias lending a true holiday atmosphere to the rooms.

Committees for the dinner were as follows preparation committee, Beverly Lasker; chairman, Mary Louise Gallagher, Olive Radle and Mary Nosotny, the serving committee, Naomi Black, chairman, Ruth Kruger, Claire Hardy, Ruth Lott and Margaret McCann, the decoration committee, Helen Gallagher, chairman Betty Carter, Helen Halverson and Daisy Justice.

UNEMPLOYMENT MEETING SCHEDULED IN TRAVERSE CITY

Trade Recovery Committee Advocates "Work, Not Dole."

Public officials and business men of Charlevoix are asked to attend a state conference on Employment Relief to be held at the Park Place hotel in Traverse City next Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 12 and 13, by the Michigan Committee for Trade Recovery. The meeting was first called as a district conference but has been broadened to a state meeting in response to a request from other sections to be included. It is particularly hoped that every community in Northern Michigan will be represented.

The Trade Recovery Committee, made up of leading business men and engineers, is dedicated by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to direct the activity in this state for R. F. C. aid in construction projects. Under the slogan "Work Relief, Not Dole" this committee, with offices in Detroit, is attempting to replace dole with employment in Michigan communities. On the first day of the conference the means of securing R. F. C. aid in putting men to work will be explained in detail by members of the Trade Recovery committee and other experts. The second day will be devoted mainly to conferences between these men and representatives of individual communities on the relief needs and problems of these communities.

A card party will be sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary next Monday night at the Legion Home on East Garfield. A cover charge of 25c will be made.

The Rambler, a St. James ferry, made a call at the port last Monday, making the return trip to St. James the following day.

CHRISTMAS SEALS

(By Ed. S. Shover)

Buy Christmas seals! The pennies spent
For them aids in the banishment
Of that insidious disease
Which saps the youthful energies

Of boys and girls—they help to purge
This state of childhood's blackest scourge
Which menaces, with its uncouth
Malignancy, our precious youth!

Buy Christmas seals and help to free
Our homes of this dread malady
Which enters, with its evil stealth,
To take the priceless boon of health
From fathers so they cannot earn
The comforts which all fathers yearn
By honest labor to provide
For those who "neath their roofs abide.

Buy Christmas seals and help to stay
The progress of this grisley, gray
Destroyer which engraves its blight
On mothers good and steals the right
Of women to exert the care
Their growing children ought to share
Buy Christmas seals—help vitalize
This most important enterprise!

children have been hospitalized.

Forty persons had X-rays of the chest taken at the tuberculosis clinic held here.

Emmet County

We have visited all the schools in Friendship Township and several in Readmond, West Traverse, Resort and Bear Creek Townships. In those schools over 250 children have been examined. Of these 40 have had previous defects corrected.

Hot lunches will soon be served in over 75 per cent of the schools.

Sixty-five children in St. Mary's school, Harbor Springs, had X-Rays taken of their chests. Also about 40 persons attended the tuberculosis clinic at Petoskey. These were also X-Rayed. The reports on the examinations have not yet been received.

Miss Warner has made over 150 home visits. A large number of these have been tuberculosis, infant and communicable disease visits.

Miss Warner has also inspected 180 school children for evidence of any skin diseases.

Five crippled children were taken to the hospital for treatment. Dr. Quinlan will be working in this county some time in January.

Otsego County

Two hundred sixteen children were examined. About 20 per cent of these had their parents present. Of those examined, 62 have had previous defects corrected. Those who were not vaccinated against smallpox last year were given another opportunity this month. Forty-two took advantage of this. The schools visited were in Livingston, Dover and Chester Townships.

Many of the schools are making plans for serving of hot lunches by the hot jar method.

Miss Johnston has made over 100 home visits. A large number of these have been visits regards communicable disease.

Fifteen attended the tuberculosis clinic at Gaylord and had their chests X-Rayed.

Fifty per cent of the third grade children have had dental corrections made by their family dentist.

CHARLEVOIX CO. MAY GET FUNDS

FOR ROAD WORK THROUGH THE R. F. CORPORATION

At the meeting of the Trade Recovery Committee in Traverse City held Monday and Tuesday it was proposed by resolution that the State of Michigan make application for $2,000,000 for road betterments.

In the event this application is honored the state will distribute through the State Highway Department, various sums to the counties according to their needs. Such apportionment as planned would bring about $74,000 to Charlevoix County. This sum, according to tentative plans would be expended in the west end of the county on US-31 and M-66. The work would be done entirely with shovels, thereby furnishing the maximum amount of labor for the unemployed in this county.

If the present plans go through it is thought that the money will be available so work could start the first of the year and continue thru the following spring and summer.

Delegates to the committee meeting from Charlevoix were, Mayor Bergeon, Dr. Winder, H. A. Craig, Jesse Smith, and A. L. Livingston.

Further details will be given as the project progresses.

TIBBITS WINS RECOGNITION AT STATE SHOW

Held in Grand Rapids December 6th and 7th

It has again been demonstrated that Northern Michigan exhibitors do not have to take a back seat for any section in the state. At the recent State Horticultural Show held in Grand Rapids, December 6th, 7th and 8th, the apple growers of Leelanau, Douglas Tibbits of Boyne City and H. G. Waring of Kewadin, proved to be two outstanding exhibitors.

To give you some idea of the size of the show, I have been informed that there were 783 plates of apples, 112 trays, 9b bushels, 46 collections of 50 apples; 22 boxes, as well as many collections of 10 plates of one variety.

In the bushels of Macintosh there were 12 entries and yet Mr. Tibbits won second and Mr. Waring first in state-wide competition.

In plates Mr. Tibbits won 1st on Wealthy, Wegner, Winter Banana, 2nd on MacIntosh and Snow, 3rd on Spy and Baldwin and 4th on Wolf River.

In bushels he received 1st on Wealthy, 2nd on MacIntosh, 3rd on Snow, 4th on Wagner and 5th on Winter Banana.

In trays Mr. Tibbits won 3rd on Snows and 4th on Wealthys.

In addition to winning 1st on a bushel of MacIntosh, Mr. Homer Waring won 1st in the collection of 10 plates of one variety and 2nd in the collection of 50 apples.

He also won several 1st places in plates and trays.

The show this year attracted a larger attendance than previous years. It was estimated that fully 600 fruit growers were in attendance and that the apple displays were larger in number than in previous years.

JULIUS WHEELER GETS PROMOTION; TRANSFERRED

Mr. Julius Wheeler, for a term of years surfman at the local coast guard station, has been promoted to No. 1 man and hereafter will be located at North Manitou. The change was effected a few days ago. Mr. Wheeler left here Thursday to assume his new duties.

Robert F. Sloan took a week-end motor trip to Detroit, where he attended a Democratic state conference with Governor-elect William A. Comstock, and returned Monday.

POLAR BEARS TAKE 3RD STRAIGHT FROM GAYLORD

Final Score Was 31 to 21; Cubs Lose Third to Petoskey

(By Newman)

The Charlevoix Polar Bears won their third straight victory for the season when they defeated the speedy Gaylord team on the local court last week.

Gaylord's team was small compared to the Big Bears, with the big Mr. Brown weighing more than twice as much as Captain "Tag" Smith of Gaylord. However, size did not mean much, as Smith was one of the best players on the floor. Gaylord's fast passing was the only thing that kept them in the running. That passing was probably the best that local fans will witness all year. Gaylord certainly made one or two of the big boys look quite slow. Others on Gaylord's team were McCoy, Knakl Fitzpatrick and McCoy. They excelled in team work.

Charlevoix started with A. Davenport, Beaudoin, Superman, Kipke and H. Davenport playing. After these boys had a six point lead, Gen. Manager Gordon B. Todd started substituting. In the course of the game Cooper, Dens, Brown and V. Smith showed what they could do. The three "Handsome" boys: Dean Davenport, Lysle Beaudoin and Glenroy Dens made 16 points between them. Davenport played the entire game at right forward and garnered eight points. The other two split left forward and each made 4 points. "Wild Will" Superman was lucky and also collected eight points. Every local scored except H. Davenport, but his defensive game was very good as Gaylord did not make a single point until Heward was taken out.

The score was 12 to 6 at the quarter mark, 18 to 9 at the half, 24 to 15 at the three-quarter rest period, and 31 to 21 at the final. The score board showed 31 to 22, but Gaylord only had 21 points. The boy keeping score gave Gaylord two points for the free throw they made at the end of the first half, and the young gentlemen keeping score in the official book did not notice the error until the end of the game when certain people who had bet Charlevoix would win by ten points began to worry. To settle matters they asked "The Old Kid" about it, and he told them what was right. Hallett did pretty fair as referee. J. Smith and R. Lemieux were the other officials.

The polar Bears play Gaylord on Friday of this week. The writer promises a Gaylord victory. That is, if Gaylord has its hopes of playing under the new 10 seconds rule fulfilled. The Polar Bears announce a game with the Manistee Iron Works on Wednesday of next week on the local floor. If it is played as scheduled, we have an idea the Polar Bears will be sorry they played. However, something might come up to stop the game.

The Cubs tangled with the Gilbo' Barbeque team from Petoskey for the third time, and Petoskey won the rubber game which was played as a preliminary to the Polar Bear - Gaylord game. The score was 10 to 8. Dombrowski was best for the winners, with 6 points. Wagner, Superman, McCall and Stroud were best for the local boys, with Bergman, Vermeeren and Dean also Captain "Monkey" McKenzie playing. However, shrewd observers have concluded that if the Cubs would only get their fire best seen on the floor at the same time, and leave them in the game for about two quarters, they would win easily. It is pretty hard for three or four good players to drag another poor one around or at another and still play first class basketball.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cross, who left here for Florida three weeks ago, are located for the winter in a very convenient new cottage in the Brook Camp, three miles north of Sarasota. They report that the weather is ideal and they are both feeling fine.

CHRISTMAS PLAY TO BE GIVEN HERE DECEMBER 22

Was Given Here With Success Five Years Ago

"THE MAGI'S GIFT", a Christmas Operetta which was given with such marked success on the gymnasium about five years ago, is to be repeated this Christmas Season.

It will again be sponsored by the combined Catholic and Protestant Churches of Charlevoix, and will again be presented in the Gymnasium to provide a setting of the true Christmas Spirit for all people of Charlevoix and the surrounding territory.

Hundreds of people who attended, still remember the beauty and the effectiveness of the different scenes in this Operetta, due to the masterly portrayal of the Christmas Spirit that pervades the entire production. The Gymnasium was filled to capacity at the previous presentation, and of course, everyone will again want to be on hand to hear and see the most excellent Yuletide Operetta.

It will be given at the Charlevoix Gymnasium on Thursday evening, December 22nd, at 8 o'clock. There will be no admission charge, as that everyone, young and old, should come. An offering will be taken, and the amount collected will be turned over to the welfare work of the community.

In the Magi's Gift the various beautiful Christmas scenes and the old English sketch are portrayed with such vividness that they linger in memory for years afterward. The Mummers add a great deal of merriment and fun to the play, and the Carol Singers and Strolling Players stage "The Nativity", a scene from an old mystery play of the middle ages. The whole operetta has the setting and atmosphere of Medieval times.

As far as possible, the various characters will be taken by the same people as before, and the production will again be under the direction of Mrs. A. J. Sleiter. There will be a few additions and special features that will aid to round-out the entire program as an ideal and free Community Christmas entertainment long to be remembered.

WILL ORGANIZE AN OLD FASHIONED SINGING SCHOOL

On Monday evening, December 19th, all adult residents of Charlevoix interested in the formation of an old fashioned singing school are invited to meet in the community room in the new grade building at 7:30 p. m. A committee, headed by Mrs. Ada Shockley, has already been formed and initial plans have been made. Miss Esther Mary Atkinson, Supervisor of vocal music in the local schools, has consented to direct the singing and it is expected that a large number of people will take advantage of this opportunity for informal and pleasant get-together during the winter months.

The purpose of the organization is to provide opportunity for enlarged musical experience for those who take part and to furnish inexpensive and wholesome entertainment for those interested in music. Old time, familiar songs will be sung, some instruction in part singing and reading of music will be given and a happy time is guaranteed.

NO DUES will be charged and NO FEES assessed. The club is open to all who wish to join, who like to sing or who don't mind hearing their friends sing. Be sure to attend the first meeting Monday evening.

The Royal Arch Masons Convocation will be held on Monday evening, December 19th, at the Masonic Hall. All members, their friends and others interested are urged to come out.

MAIL SERVICE TO BEAVER ISLAND LET TO SCHNEIDER

Contract Calls For Two Deliveries Each Week

St. James will be extended air mail service during the winter months with Mr. Karl E. Schneider of Detroit in this branch of the postal department, he having been awarded the contract, according to advices from Washington, D. C., recently received by Postmaster Clarence B. Meggison at the Charlevoix office.

The winter service calls for the delivery of all mail to St. James twice weekly and extra trips or trips if occasion requires, without compensation for these extra trips.

Mr. Schneider was the lowest bidder in which eight contestants made propositions to the government for the 1932-3 winter service contract. The award was made to the low bidder, Mr. Schneider, who will receive $48.00 per week for performing the contract.

The S. S. Ottawa Bedell, Captain James H. Gallagher, who holds the mail contract for the season of navigation can discontinue his service at any time after December 15 or sooner if weather conditions permit, this under an optional contract clause.

C. W. BONNEY WINS APPOINTMENT OF GAME WARDEN

Will Make Headquarters Here 402 W. Upright Avenue

Chester W. Bonney, of South Boardman, Mich., has been appointed Game Warden of this district by the State Department of Conservation, to succeed the late Henry Fike.

After a special examination at Lansing following the receipt of the highest grade at the examination held recently, from which he was appointed December 5th, he has located here, with headquarters at 402 W. Upright Avenue.

MASONS ELECT OFFICERS AT ANNUAL MEETING

At the annual election meeting of Charlevoix Lodge, No. 282, F. & A. M., the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

W. M.—Lance Neff; S. W.—C. E. Bollinger; J. W.—George Thompson; S. D.—Ivan Hillen, Treasurer—E. J. Hiller, Secretary—H. R. Fowler, Trustee—R. E. Rife, Tyler—J. Mentz

Installation will take place on the evening of December 27th, St. John the Evangelist.

CHARLEVOIX SOCIALIST LOCAL TO HOLD MEET

The weekly meeting of the Charlevoix Socialist Local will be held Thursday December 15th at 8:00 o'clock at the headquarters in the Odd Fellow Building.

One of the members will speak on "The Effect of a Sales Tax on the People."

All members, their friends and others interested are urged to come out.

JOE E. BROWN COMING TO TOWN TO ACT THE CLOWN

At Palace Theatre in "You Said A Mouthful"

Joe E. Brown is coming to town Coming in the Palace Theater Saturday and Sunday in the First National picture, "You Said a Mouthful".

And what a mouthful! Here's a matrimonial encounter who can't swim! According to advance Hollywood reports, this wide spectacled screen favorite, outdone in hilarity even his recent laugh hits "The Tenderfoot" and "Fireman, Save My Child."

Mistaken for a swimming champion, Joe is forced into a marathon race through his love for a beautiful girl and his own inability to explain matters. In deadly fear of the water, and never having tried to swim before except to practice the strokes on dry land, he musters up courage to start when he is presented with what he believes to be a non-sinkable bathing suit. After a series of hilarious accidents in which he is nearly drowned, he surprises himself, and puts one over on his opponents, by winning the race and becoming a hero.

Joe is supported by an exceptionally strong cast, with the beautiful and peppery Titian-haired screen and musical comedy star, Ginger Rogers again as his leading lady.

The great sensation in swimming between Catalina Island, off Los Angeles, and the mainland, where the regular marathon swimming championship races are held. There are a score of excellent swimmers included among several professional champions who compete with Joe in the race, to be entertained by the deadly dry land endeavor.

This comedy, which is said to contain a riot of fun, and more hilarious laugh than half a dozen ordinary comedies, was written by William H. Dover and adapted to the screen by Robert Lord and Robert Maloney. It was directed by Lloyd Bacon.

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE FORMED IN ANTRIM CO.

The formation of a Democratic County Committee in Antrim County was the order of business for the local party members, last Thursday night at which time members of the law met at Central Lake where, assisted by M. Joseph Foster and Capt. with M. J. Sleiter of Charlevoix, the organization was effected and political machinery set in motion to perfect plans and carry on according to democratic state and party principles for party good.

Officers elected were: Chairman, E. S. Alter, Mancelona; Secretary, J. H. Hinman, Ellsworth; Treasurer, F. M. Mantor, Central Lake, with Thomas Mitchell, Elk Rapids; A. J. James, Central Lake; Chas. Flanders, Mancelona; Ernest Coy, Alden; John Bloom, Ellsworth and Fred Powell, Elk Rapids, as committeemen.

Antrim county for many years, the same as at the present time, has been overwhelmingly Republican and our prediction is that it will continue in the Republican column indefinitely. At any rate the Democrats can make a strong stand as well as a good but hopeless fight in our neighboring county.

Attorney J. M. Harris, of Boyne City, was in Charlevoix last Saturday.

Miss Morenne Hallow, who has been a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Hallow, has returned to her home in East Jordan.

Special attention is called to the Methodist Church notice, that all may know about the system of small gifts, in the collection, to be used in the Jim Simon Mission. This is good home mission, a work greatly needed.

FINAL SUMMARY OF CHARLEVOIX CO. 4-H CLUB PROGRAM

Prizes Well Scattered Among The County Members

The final summary of the boys and girls club projects carried out in Charlevoix County for the year 1932 shows the work succeeded more than before.

Four clubs were more active with members enrolled that in larger counties double the number of that and other year. There were 41 different clubs with a membership of 384 boys and girls of which 323 finished for a percentage of 84.9 finishers. Last year only 261 finished for a percentage of 69.3.

Realizing that all club members as well as leaders are vitally interested in those who are selected as county champions in the various projects, the following awards have been announced:

Canning Club

First year champion, Gail Hahn Gregory, East Jordan; Maud Hartley, Boyne City.

Second year champion, Mary Short, Ray Short, 3rd year, Mary Short, Ray Short, 4th year, Catherine Wilcox, Charlevoix; 5th year Bessie Howe, Charlevoix.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the 76 girls who finished the canning club requirements produced 1,115 quarts of fruit, vegetables, jellies, jams and meats. Mary Short of Ray Shores has the largest number of quarts to her credit, 541, while several others have approached the 500 mark. Dorothy Ferguson and Deforest Adamson both of Ray Shores demonstrated this county in the canning demonstration contest at Gaylord and won second place.

Dairy Clubs

Some real dairying has been accomplished by the boys in this club. Three boys won a trip to the Michigan State Fair as a result of showing first in the judging of farm crops at the Gaylord Camp, Gwendolyn Hott, East Jordan; Ernst Ramsey, East Jordan, and Robt. Tasker, Boyne City, made up this team. At Detroit Robert Tasker placed high against 22 state competitors. Robert Tasker also won 2nd on a sample of beans at the State Fair. Gwendolyn Hott became the Champion Potato Club Exhibitor of Northern Michigan when his sample won first place at the Potato Show. Also, the East Jordan Crops Club won first place at the same show. The sample of Gwendolyn Hott's has been sent to Chicago to compete in the National 4-H Club Congress.

At the present time approximately 20 clubs have been organized through out the county to carry on clothing, handicraft and Hot Lunch Club work, all of which indicates that the year 1933 will be fully as successful as this past year.

DEATH CLAIMS OLD RESIDENT

MR. HENRY MARSHALL DIES AT HOME OF HIS DAUGHTER

Mr. Henry Marshall, one of the best known of old Charlevoix residents, passed away last evening at 10:30, at the home of his daughter, Miss Minnie Bergeon, at 1101 Bridge street where he had been for person needs following a paralytic breakdown. He was the last of his family of brothers.

Mr. Marshall was born in Brighton, Canada, December 28th, 1843, and would have attained at the age of 89 years 11 days less. He came to Charlevoix in the spring of 1869, and his parents joined him the following fall.

Mr. Marshall built the railroad here over forty years ago and was employed for several years in the Nachusa Lumber Co. mill and for fifteen years on the Interstate Home Mill.

He is survived by four sons, Hilton and Burt of Charlevoix; Roy, a prominent official of the Salvation Army in Milwaukee, Wis., of Lansing, and one daughter, Eva (Mrs. Morris Ackett) of this city; nine grandchildren and five great-grand children. Mrs. Marshall passed away five years ago.

The funeral is to be held from the home of Mr. Ackett tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 with the Rev. Mr. Parker in charge. Interment will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

GWENDON HOTT TAKES SECOND PLACE IN EXHIBIT

Word has been received concerning the good name that one of Charlevoix County's outstanding young men has made for himself and his county. Gwendon Hott, a member of Ray Shores 4-H Club, has been awarded second place in the county exhibit of potatoes at the Michigan State Fair. Gwendon Hott's exhibit was judged against 22 state competitors. Robert Tasker also won 2nd on a sample of beans at the State Fair. Gwendon Hott became the Champion Potato Club Exhibitor of Northern Michigan when his sample won first place at the Potato Show. Also, the East Jordan Crops Club won first place at the same show. TAX PLANS WORTH A STUDY

John S. Lawrence, former president of the New England Council, and an authority on taxation, is quoted as saying at a meeting of the State Taxpayers Association of Massachusetts recently, that "The tax situation in Massachusetts is particularly serious today because the older communities have acquired expensive habits that are difficult to change and have incurred debts appropriate when industry prospers but which are wholly out of proportion when industry fails."

Continuing in an explanation as to how taxes affect the business of a community and the community itself, Mr. Lawrence declared: "Taxes are part of the cost of business operating, and the more there is paid in taxes the less there is for labor and management. This is true of the big and of the small company as well, and it is true of the big and small community."

What Mr Lawrence says about tax burdens in Massachusetts can be applied to every state in the Union. Taxes can and must be sliced everywhere. After all the national and state burden is comparatively light, so far as the average man or the average small business is concerned. What we want to do is to get down local expenditures and this can be done by the people themselves, through tax organizations in their own communities. In commenting on Mr. Lawrence's address the Springfield Union says:

"First step toward correcting the present condition, Mr. Lawrence submits, is for a city or town to analyze its costs of operation and to pay for service in proportion to the other costs. The second is to study artificial restrictions that check the growth and development of industries on which the community depends. The third is to study restrictions on the part of labor which, through cooperation can be bettered. The fourth is to create in each community an interest in the good management of corporations on which the community depends and an interest on the part of stockholders to attend meetings and ask questions.

"These four points are worthy of attention as coming from one of Mr. Lawrence's long and extensive experience in industrial affairs. We have heard a lot about the benefits coming out of appropriations and loans that serve to increase taxation. It is important for all concerned to look more candidly at the effects produced by high taxes."

Here is indeed a program worthy of the study of every progressive community in the country, and the progressive communities now are the ones which want to reduce taxes. For high taxes now are the greatest barrier to the development of any community. New industries will not come to tax harassed communities and industries already in such communities cannot grow and prosper as they should.

CHEAPER THAN CHARITY

This is addressed to the millions of Americans who have jobs and incomes and money to spend. Perhaps they haven't as much income as they did a few years ago—but the chances are that drops in the cost of living have compensated for their salary cuts and lowered dividends.

These millions owe an obligation to those other millions who are unemployed, and are facing a winter of distress and poverty. That obligation can be partially—but only partially—met by contributions to charity. Of greater moment is the obligation to give their less fortunate fellows jobs.

All over the country there are homes in need of repair. People have been holding back and refusing to spend—waiting for better times. And yet it's as obvious as the multiplication table that better times will never come until money again flows through the business arteries, and into the channels of trade. Today we can do some needed re-roofing, repair the bathroom, build a new room, repaint the home, fix the heating plant and a hundred other necessary improvements for a fraction of what they cost in the past—and a fraction of what they will cost in the future when better times actually do appear. By doing those things now, we are putting money into our own pockets—as into pockets that are empty.

Increased purchasing power is the vital need of the hour. More payrolls—more employed workers—more busy industries. Look around your property, see what improvements you need—and act, It's cheaper and better than charity.

WATCH LATIN AMERICA

Today American industries of all kinds are looking southward—to Latin America. Here is the world's greatest storehouse of raw materials that enter daily into our lives. Here, too, is a "buying" population of 104,000,000 people spread through eighteen countries.

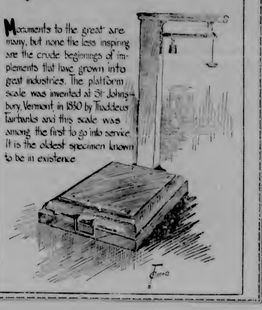
Here is a vast land whose products we must have, and to whose people we must sell our goods; it is a land in which 200,000 of our citizens in all walks of life have invested some $1,-700,000,000.

At the moment, depreciated values are the bugbear of Latin America and a barrier to mutually profitable trading between our country and its southern neighbours. But values will come back and Latin America will perhaps be the greatest single outlet for our goods and the indirect source of livelihood for hundreds of thousands of our workers. It is a land worth watching and understanding. Closer inter-American relations will help mold the destinies, not only of the Western Hemisphere, but of the entire world.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

FORERUNNER OF A GREAT INDUSTRY



Monuments to the great are many, but none the less inspiring are the crude beginnings of implements that have grown into great industries. The platform scale was invented at St Johnsbury, Vermont in 1830 by Thaddeus Fairbanks and this scale was among the first to go into service. It is the oldest specimen known to be in existence.

NO SPECIAL FAVORS

No, the railroads don't want special favors. They don't want government subsidies such as are given to their competitors, the waterways. They don't want an entire escape from Federal regulation, as is enjoyed by the trucks.

What they do want is fair treatment—a transport policy that will let all carriers compete under conditions of equality for business. If that is done, each will carry goods falling naturally into its field— and, in the long run, will prosper. It will mean a tremendous strengthening of every carrier in one of our greatest industries—transportation.

In normal times the rails employ 1,000,000 or so workers. They spend hundreds of millions for supplies. They are leaders in community development. And a fair deal for them is, simply, a fair deal for the public.

A STEP TOWARD RECOVERY

In August, 1926, the railroads of the country employed 1,793,067 persons.

In August, 1929, they employed 1,681,252 persons.

In addition reduced purchases by railroads from coal mines and other industries have caused even larger reduction in employment.

The railroads are not employing 797,000 less people now than they did in 1926 because they do not want to provide employment. They are employing less because gigantic decreases in railroad earnings have made it impossible for them to take any other course than decisive retrenchment. Had the decreases been the result of depression alone, they would seem much less important than they are. But the principal cause of transportation difficulties is, and has been, the inequalities in our transportation policy.

The railroads make no unreasonable requests. Here is what they do ask? That they be given fair treatment and that all forms of commercial transportation be placed on an equitable basis before the law. This means that the government must stop subsidizing waterways and that highway competitors must receive regulation similar to that now exerted over the railroads. When that is done, hundreds of thousands of railroad men will return to their jobs, a multitude of other industries will be stimulated and we will have taken a long step toward recovery.

DR. BUTLER'S PROPHECY

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's assertion that the Republican Party is destined to go the way of the old Whig party unless it reorganizes along more liberal lines need not cause hysteria in the breast of any old-line Republicans.

It is always customary after decisive elections to predict the imminent death of the losing party. Four years ago there wasn't a prosperity-ground Republican in the country who didn't firmly believe that Al Smith had led the Democrats into oblivion.

In 1912, when the Republican party was hopelessly split and Wilson was elected by an overwhelming electoral vote, most of the political seers of the nation saw nothing but darkness ahead for Republicans. And when Wilson left office and Harding was elected because the nation was tired of the old regime, many were sure that the Democrats were dead.

Republicans and Democrats never die. The parties will go on as long as men's attitudes differ. They may change name sometimes, but even that will be an occurrence so rare as to seem almost impossible. The Republican party, haven for the conservative, bulwark of the Alexander Hamilton ideas of strong union and safe money, will always have plenty of members, as will also the Democratic party, whose banner attracts the individualist, the champion of humanity and those who are too radical to be Republicans but not enough so to be Socialists.

Dr. Butler's prophecy in the light of this nation's political history, can hardly be taken seriously.—Columbus, O., Dispatch.

NOT FOR US

Premier Herriot's idea of forming an international riot squad to rush out and quell disturbances of the peace in the European backyards is somewhat too nebulous a state to be either approved or condemned.

Offhand, however, it appears to be a clever move designed to give the League of Nations an army of vassals to enforce the wishes of that impotent body. We cannot conceive that the United States will ever participate in such an international police organization to the extent of furnishing its quota of men to help preserve the peace in the eternally quarreling alleyways of Europe—Ohio State Journal.

Cheer up. There won't be any more political speeches on the radio for nearly two years.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

The question of the foreign debts and whether or not they will be paid continues to be the all absorbing topic of the day. The propaganda for cancellation goes ahead in Europe and in certain high financial quarters in the United States. Up to this time there is no evidence that the propaganda is having any great effect among the chosen representatives of the American people in Congress. We are told that the British pound sterling is slumping toward zero because of the necessity for war debt payments; that nations will be forced into repudiation of their international debts with fatal effects on foreign credit and foreign trade; we are told that if the debt payments are continued the depression will continue and that cancellation will mean immediate prosperity.

But to each argument someone in favor of retaining the validity of these debts has found an answer. One financial writer of national reputation tells us that there is good reason to doubt the permanency of the recent slump in the British pound. He opines that it may have been in part manipulated by financial forecasts who want to put the worst possible phase on debt payments for the purpose of frightening America into cancellation. He adds that some of the slump is undoubtedly due to the short selling of the British money, and that when the covering comes, as it must, there is apt to be a rapid advance. He believes that if the payment is made, much of the fog and furor will disappear, the pound will recover and business will go along as usual.

While it is possible that some of the smaller countries who owe us money and whose credit is none too good at any time may be forced to repudiate their obligations, temporarily at least, there is apparently little fear that countries like Great Britain and France will use the remedy of repudiation. They have too much at stake in the way of national credit. Some financiers seem to be of the opinion that if any nations are threatening repudiation, the sooner they get to it the better. The Commercial and Financial Chronicle said recently

"If some countries should actually default in their war debts, that would not be half so unsettling as the constant agitation of the question with attendant uncertainties. The U. S. now needs a rest, and should be spared from the constant injection of foreign issues in its daily affairs after having suffered so severely from these during the last 18 months."

Some of the eastern seaboard financiers who think cancellation would be such an unmixed blessing are evidently out of touch with the people back in the states, and do not realize the state of public feeling. In this regard, it may be said, that cancellation of war debt payments would be followed not only by a protest, but by a demand for the scaling down or cancellation of private obligations in this country. And there are many mortgages on many farms in America, because of which a great many farm owners now face dispossession. Many of these will be unable to see why, if we can forgive Europe's debts, a little cancelling cannot be done at home in the interest of the American who owes money. The seaboard financier would doubtless shudder at such a proposal as spelling the end of financial order, but let him not forget that cancelling the European debt would set a dangerous precedent, and one that might have repercussions in various parts of the country, far different from the kind that might be ordinarily expected.

In view of Europe's present attitude, that the debts are purely political and that the allied nations are being harshly treated, it is interesting to note just what was said when these loans were negotiated back in 1917. Then the pleas to Uncle Sam to aid were vehement and frantic. As the Washington Star recently stated: "Dispatches of Lord Balfour, British secretary of state for foreign affairs; Walter Hines Page, American ambassador to London; many other continental statesmen, and Admiral W. S. Sims, show the pressure under which President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury sanctioned loans of approximately $4,000,000,000 that year to Great Britain, France, Italy, Russia, Belgium and Serbia.

"On June 28, 1917, Ambassador Page said: 'Financial disaster to all the European allies is imminent unless the United States government advances to the British enough money to pay for British purchases in the United States,' and added:

"'Unless we come to their rescue we are all in danger of disaster. Great Britain will have to abandon the gold standard.'"

Doing Away With Deity

In their Five Year Plan to do away with Deity the Russians have tackled a large proposition.

It took Deity 10,000,000 years to make this world as it is, according to Einstein, and some puny men think to abolish Him in five!

The Communist seeks to reduce everything to a common level. He would drag all the mountains into the valleys and even fill up the sea. He would make the earth flat and unattractive as a dry lake. He would shave all humanity down to the same height. He does not seek to lift humanity up to the same level, but pull all down to the same level.

Promiscuity of sex results. One consort is as good as another. All look alike to Communists. Personality does not enter; one must not be loved more than another.

All must dress alike, as children in an orphanage. As a result, Russians, both male and female wear blue denim. Beauty vanishes; there must be no special attraction by any. The grotesque has its innings.

Music largely ceases; song dies upon the vacant air; for one note must not be higher than another. Art is not even a dream; there must be no light nor shadows; nothing must throw anything else into relief. Colors pass; for all must be the same.

One man must not work harder than another; so all slow down to the pace of the laziest. Naturally, the history of all communistic colonies has been starvation and ultimate failure.

Like Caliban, human beings think Deity to be such a one as they themselves are. They interpret God in terms of themselves. Therefore, Deity must be like everybody else. He cannot be any higher, stronger, or better. Communism is consistent at least—there is no place for Deity in its scheme of the universe. So it essays to do away with even the thought of Him in five years! There is no hope—for nothing must be higher than anything else. There is no aspiration; for none must aspire and there must be nothing above to lift the vision. Like the "Man With the Hoe," he "gazes on the ground, the emptiness of ages in his face, and on his back the burden of the world!" There is no high, no low; just dead level. Dead level is right.—Los Angeles Times.

A Flock of Lambs Driven To The Shambles—A goodly escort of Royal Arch Masons on Tuesday accompanied seven of their companions to Petoskey, in solemn state and melancholy contemplation. The occasion of this pilgrimage was the induction of the seven into the mysteries of Cryptic Masonry, more commonly known as the Council of Royal, Select and Super-Excellent Master.

The lambs who were thus ruthlessly led cruelly driven to the slaughter were Companions F. G. Hines, John M. Eckert, S. M. Rose, J. D. Markham, Ray L. Faulkner, Frank P. Geiken, Guy Brown, and four of Petoskey lambkins, including Companion Shepherson.

The bloody work began at four-thirty p. m., and continued (not counting one hour from six to seven for cleaning up the gore and partaking of a light supper) until midnight.

Then forty Cryptic Masons bore the eleven relics of former human vanity to the banquet table, where they were propped up and braced up for the feast and what came after it—cigars, and nearly an hour of post prandial oratory. The event was, from start to finish a most successful exhibition of human suffering and inhuman cruelty.

The old wethers who accompanied the lambs, were, H. Leeliddings, Geo. F. Brown, M. J. Stockman, I. S. Webster, Geo. Eagleton and W. A. Smith.

The Council is deliberating on the question of electric lights, with the start already made in providing a building and steam power the undertaking does not seem to be an unwise one.

One thing is certain with our experience lately in connection with public improvements, we shall be backward about mongkeying with the dynamo. But give us the lights, they will be self-sustaining and be a great benefit.

In connection with the coming official test of the waterworks, we have only one favor to ask of those in authority: Put Baldwin at the nozzle and give us the hydrant wrench. Baldwin is a nice man but we would like to see a stream of Round Lake water meandering down his spinal column.

In our list of the new Masonic officers last week, we inadvertantly omitted the name of John Shapton, the venerable and worthy chaplain, who has filled that position for a number of years. The officers will be installed at Lewis Grand Opera House on the evening of St. John's Day, December 27, on which occasion refreshments will be served as on previous occasions. Admission will be by ticket.

G. F. Barnes of the Lansing Iron and Engine Works, is expected here daily for the final test of the water works. Superintendent Baldwin says everything is in fine shape, and that the system will come out in flying colors. A pressure of 100 pounds to the square inch is kept now and everything is tight. The engineer's living rooms over the pump-house are receiving the finishing touch and engineer Guard will soon be settled in them. They comprise a kitchen, dining room, two bed rooms, and closets. Water is being put in for domestic and closet purposes. The rooms are very neat and convenient, and will be warmed by steam radiators.

Say young man, there is one thing you cannot do, you can't make a success of life unless you work. Better men than you have tried it and failed. You can't loaf around street corners, saloons, smoking cigars, tell foul stories, drinking whiskey, and spunge it off on someone else, without making a failure in life. You must learn a trade or get into some honest business; if you don't you will be a chronic loafer, despised by all, producing nothing, simply making yourself a burden on your parents or the state. There is no place in the world for the loafer. The ripe fruit is at the top of the tree and you must climb if you get it. If you wait for it to fall at your feet you will never get it. Smarter men will jump up and pluck it all. Move, do something, no matter how small, it will be a starter. Help yourself, and others will help. There is no royal path to success; toil, grit, endurance—these are the requisites. Wake up and see what you can do.

R. W. Beach, of Boyne City, shot a splendid buck and as he supposed, killed it instantly, as it dropped like a log. Mr. Beach dropped his gun and took out his hunting knife to cut the animal's throat, when the buck sprung up and furiously attacked his would-be slayer. Dick was tossed in the air in a twinkling and came down astride the buck's neck. He did not keep this position long however, and for some time it was nip and tuck between them. At last Mr. B. managed to reach his gun and dispatched the animal. It was a magnificent creature with extra wide branching antlers.

The Problem of the Railroads

THE difficulty of solving the railroad problem has been greatly increased by the development of competing means of transportation by highway, waterway and airway, which are aided by subsidies by our national and state governments, and by exemption from such regulation as is applied to the railroads. The importance of the railroads to the economic welfare of the country is such that constructive efforts to solve the problem must be made at once, confronted as we are by evidence of the effects produced upon the entire industry and commerce of the country by the decline in railroad earnings.

THE SERVICE OF THE RAILWAYS IS INDISPENSABLE FOR HANDLING THE GREAT BULK OF OUR COMMERCE.

HERE are the facts as to the decline in railway earnings during this depression. The gross earnings in 1929 were $6,360,000,000 while in 1932 they will approximate only $3,200,000,000. Railroad operating expenses are 45 per cent less than they were in 1929, a decline of $2,052,000,000. This was effected by the reduction in the number of employees by about 620,000 and in the total wages paid them about $1,325,000,000. Purchases of fuel, materials and equipment have been cut about $1,430,000,000. The total reduction in wages paid, and purchases, exceeds $2,750,000,000.

THE recovery of the railways is essential to the recovery of national prosperity and they cannot recover under government regulations that promote every kind of competition with them and at the same time impose every kind of restriction upon the steam lines to prevent them from meeting this competition.

EXPERIENCE AND COMMON SENSE DICTATE THAT EQUALIZATION OF TAXATION AND EQUITABLE REGULATION ARE NEEDED IN ALL BRANCHES OF TRANSPORTATION.

IMMEDIATE, vigorous action by national, state and local executives and legislators is required. They alone have the opportunity and the power to enact and enforce the remedial legislation on taxation and regulation so necessary in this extreme exigency.

THROUGH forthright action the tide can be turned, and by bringing back the railroads' purchasing power, and by their larger employment of labor, all industry will be quickened simultaneously. Every man, woman and child in the country would be benefited by this correction of basic causes.

"On Christmas Day the Child was born,
On Christmas Day in the morning,
He trod the long way, tone and lorn,
He wore the bitter crown of thorn,
His hands and feet and heart were torn,
He died at last the Death of Scorn,
But through His coming Death was slain,
That you and I might live again.
For this the Child of the Maid was born,

Following a plan begun several years ago we like to think of December as the "Joy Month" of the year. During the Sundays of that month we have preached only from Christmas themes. We are continuing that plan this year. Our subject last Sunday was, "The World Into Which Christ Came and His Reception." We will follow next Sunday with the subject, "The First Christmas Service."

Mrs. Stelter has arranged a beautiful setting of Christmas music for our subject. Our music for next Sunday is as follows:

Prelude—Finale from Sonata Op. 53—Schytte. Lola Feisenden and Mrs. Stelter.

Introit—"Holy is the Lord of Hosts", Gaul—Chorus.

Anthem—"And the Glory of the Lord" from Handel's "Messiah."

Miss Helen Parker, Organist. Miss Lola Feisenden, Pianist. Mrs. Flora Stelter, Presentation.

Offertory, "Harps and Voices", by Mason, Men's Chorus.

The Junior Church will meet next Sunday at 9:40 o'clock. Helena Dickinson will lead. A Christmas party will be held the Wednesday after Christmas. Christmas carols will be sung this year the same as last and a Candle Light Service will be held at the regular service December 25.

The Ladies Aid Society held its first service last Sunday afternoon. Reorganization took up most of the time. The C. E. has assumed the responsibility of editing a news sheet for the Church and Sunday School departments. Miss Esther O'Neal is editor-in-chief and coeditors are, Misses Dorothy McCartney, Thelma Swanson, Jean Graves and Shirley Partridge. We will try and publish the first sheet Christmas Day.

The Sunday School will have its regular Christmas program. The date will be announced later. The program will include all members of the school but the spirit of worship will predominate. One feature will be a Christmas story by Mrs. Parker, perhaps "Why the Chimes Rang." This story that is familiar to all holds much interest for old and young as it is told from year to year. Following the story gifts for the welfare committee of the American Legion will be presented. Each class is asked to prepare one or more baskets to be presented at that time.

The Sunday School Workers Council will meet Thursday evening at the church at 7:30. Before the business meeting a cooperative supper will be served. The family of each member of the council is invited. Bring sandwiches for yourselves and one prepared dish to share. Also bring your table service, dishes, etc.

At Ironton the Ladies Aid will meet Thursday for an all day meeting with Mrs. Sherman. At noon a dinner will be served at which time all of the men of the church are invited.

The public is cordially invited to attend our services and use our reading room.

"God the Preserver of Man" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, December 11.

Among the Bible citations was this passage (I Cor. 10:1): "Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea."

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the following (p. 566): "As the children of Israel were guided triumphantly through the Red Sea, the walls closing and flowing tides of human fear, as they were led through the wilderness, walking wearily through the great desert of human hopes, and anticipating the promised joy, you shall see the spiritual idea guide all right desires in their passage from sense to Soul, from a material sense of existence to the spiritual, up to the glory prepared for them who love God."

THE TAX MENACE A GROWING CRISIS

By FRANCIS H. SISSON
President American Bankers Association

A danger, economic or social, more seriously menaces our life, hazards and prosperity than the rising tide of taxes which threatens to engulf us. This is not alone a problem of the depression. It has been developing for many years, growing more so from all the time.

The depression merely brought it to a climax. Unless drastic steps are taken to reverse this trend the problem will not end with the depression. It will continue to weigh down and stifle business for an indefinite period.

In city, county, state and nation the orgy of spending has run on. It is well known that in the United States we spend on all governments in nearly five times what it was before the World War. Many localities have been carried to the verge of bankruptcy to give a semblance, while every have sufficient their citizens with a debt burden which will destroy their lives and destroy their progress for years to come.

The total cost of Federal, state and local government in the United States has increased as between nine billion dollars. Based on national income in 1913 approximately about one-fifth the income of our people, or about 11% is every individual in the land. Today taxes in 1931 are over a billion dollars more than 22 per cent of the national income. It is estimated that the cost of government will be over five cents out of every dollar we shall receive in 1932. This or five must be contributed to the maintenance of government, na

Reductions Possible

If United States Government expenditures were reduced one hundred and [illegible] billion dollars during the next [illegible] of the current fiscal year. The [illegible] action of bankers in calling a [illegible] to unnecessary expenditures of [illegible] City as participants in bonds [illegible] over the cost of government to [illegible]'s metropolis, which is now [illegible] to its expenditures to only the [illegible] of government. No state in the [illegible] has other governmental [illegible] expenditures equal to [illegible] this one city. These savings [illegible] not at present costs are only [illegible] to a minimum needed [illegible] the country. If we are to [illegible] of depression into prosperity [illegible] the people can be made to [illegible] real money for governmental [illegible] they can come only from their [illegible] of taxpayers, cutting the [illegible] efforts on both individual and [illegible] general business, there is an [illegible] threat that we may be forced [illegible] to meet economic difficulties similar to [illegible] that have so seriously handicapped other countries. This question [illegible] not primarily one of merely paring [illegible] of salaries or shaving budgets, [illegible] matter of curtailing governmental activities for which we cannot afford to pay.

The first real victory for these monstrous [illegible] extravagance can be gained by following the slogan "Save the Rich" to [illegible] industries, for such a policy [illegible] automatically halt the ever-mounting [illegible] of revenue. It is also important to realize that corporate [illegible] in this country is in no position to withstand the effects of unlimited advances in tax rates. Current [illegible] reports reveal that fact beyond [illegible] of doubt. The tax bonds cannot be broadened and if they are [illegible] likely that Congress will [illegible] soon to reconsider the rates [illegible] they as a temporary measure to [illegible] a critical condition in the nation's finance.

Deposit "Guarantee" Fails of Purpose

LOS ANGELES.—While the idea of the guarantee of bank deposits by some locally entered plan seems to appeal to many people who give it casual thought, the fact is that it has not only failed in every instance in the eight states where the experiment was tried, but actually produced unsound banking and increased the number of failures, it was declared by the retiring president of the American Bankers Association held here.

"Guaranty of bank deposits carries an idea that naturally appeals to people in a casual or casual consideration," the declaration said. "However, in principle it is unsound and in practice it is unworkable. It has been tried in eight States and it has not only failed in every case but it has resulted in increasing the number of bank failures. Having properly managed banks to make up losses of failed banks is not only unfair and unreasonable, but it weakens the whole banking structure. Again, guaranty of deposits places the insurgent and reckless banker on an equal footing with the able and conservative banker, which encourages and banking at the expense of sound banking. We are therefore opposed to the passage of any law enforcing a guaranty of bank deposits and believe that it is against the interest of the people of the United States to develop any such system."

SCHOOL NEWS GIVES AN ACCOUNT OF RECENT EVENTS

Christmas Program, Next Wednesday at 2:30 p. m.

Christmas Program

This year's Christmas Program is one of a distinctly different nature than any that has been given in the past years. The music for the program is under the direction of Miss Atkinson. Mrs. Dowd is general chairman, Miss Wilmot is taking care of the staging and costumes. Miss Ferguson is preparing the decorations and Mr. Sawyer and Mrs. Dowd have charge of the program.

The students are various committees as follows: Tillotson, Lucy Lee, Harold Fuller, Ryckman, Lambert, Mayor Novak, Lewis Greenman, Margaret Gallagher, Ernestine Chew, Emerald Chew, Esther Lou Forshman, Gordon Bartlett, Dorothy Staley, Steve Serno, and Rose Budd.

The main feature of the program will be a pantomime of Van Dyke's "Other Wiremen". It is believed that a program of this type will add to the dignity of the Christmas Season and be a new turn out in many years.

Now seating arrangement has been made that each class will have a certain section of the chairs on the floor. It is hoped that the parents and friends of the students will accept our central arrangement and come to the gymnasium on Wednesday, December 21, at 2:30 o'clock. Seats will be provided for them in the balcony.

The 5th grade English classes have been enjoying writing Christmas stories. The following was chosen as one of the most interesting: "The Origin of an American Christmas."—June Kibbie.

If all our holidays had to be given up but one, the majority of the people would say, "Leave Christmas."

Last of all the holidays in the year it holds first place in our hearts, and this is as it should be, for it represents the greatest event in our history, and that is why it is the most celebrated festival in all the world.

It is not at all certain that the 25th of December is the actual date of the birth of Jesus. When the Christian faith began to spread, it was thought best to celebrate Christmas at this time and thus do away with the heathen festivals.

In the year 800, the Emperor of all the churches to be burned. Christmas was being celebrated twenty thousand Christians perished. But with the recognition of Christianity as an established custom.

The word Christmas means "mass of Christ". That it has been celebrated as a festival of the birth of Christ ever since the first century is known by writings upon the walls of the early Christmas tombs.

Many northern people had a similar festival in honor of the God Thor, called Yule.

In old England, the yule log or log, sometimes the root of a tree, was brought into the home with great ceremony and lighted. The yule log is still burnt by many farmers of Northern England, and there are many superstitions current among the peasantry about it. If, while the log is afire, a barefooted person walks into the room it is an ill omen. A peace of this burnt log is put under their bed to keep them from all harm. Thus the word "yuletide."

The origin of the Christmas tree is also marked by legends and stories of the past. One beautiful legend is that St Boniface converted the German tribe from their worship of Thor to Christianity, and their "Thunder Oak," under which human sacrifices were made, was replaced by another tree dedicated to love, and good tidings.

Many lands claim to have started the custom of the lighted Christmas tree, but it has long been common in Germany.

The story of the origin of the lighted Christmas tree is that, Martin Luther, on his way home on Christmas eve, was filled with wonder at the beauty of the Christmas stars, and tried to describe the scene to his wife. Utterly unable to express his emotions in words, he went out and brought in a fir tree, lighted small candles, and placed them upon the branches as a symbol. "This," he said, "is like the Christmas sky." Thus the Christmas tree.

Dramatics

At Tuesday the C. H. S. drama club witnessed an interesting meeting. The president opened the meeting and Ruth Kruger followed with a report on David Belasco's "Theater Through the Stage Door." A resume of "The Cat and the Canary" was then given by Lloyd Arnold.

The last feature of the program was the dramatization of "The Monkey's Paw." Phillips, Mr. McCartney took the part of Mr. Phillips, an actor, and Marjorie Partridge, and Julia Gladys represented the three Mrs. Phillips respectively. Doris Chevalad made a very charming Dolly Harrison who realized the mistake in marrying Mr. Phillips and thus avoided becoming the "Fourth Mrs. Phillips." The servant's part was taken by Crawford Norton.

The drama club have appointed a committee to becfograph a resume of each meeting so that every member might have a copy of all that takes place at these Tuesday night meetings.

The Student Government Club

This club which is one of the activity classes, is working for opportunities to function for the good of the school, in ways not provided for by other clubs.

The committee headed by Homer Struthers is this week working out a system of conducting the pupils in the study hall; which when completed will become uniform for all the study periods.

Junior High Dramatics

Miss Milner's Dramatic Club now has 28 members. Jean Campbell is president and Esther Lou Forshman is secretary-treasurer. The next meeting will have the spirit of Christmas. A committee has been appointed to read a short Christmas play and selections from well-known Christmas stories.

Junior High Honor Roll

Those students who are on the Honor Roll are as follows: 8th grade, Jeanne Campbell, Esther Lou Forshman, Anna Higman, Marjorie Miller, Billie Smith, Mildred Withers, Robert Wood, and Marguerite Young. 7th grade: Florence Palmer and Dorothea Taylor.

Local History Club

This club sponsored by Miss Ferguson had a membership of thirty. The club meets for a half hour every Tuesday and Friday mornings. Last Friday the following officers were elected: Chairman, Steve Serno; Program Committee, Irene Collier, Lola Tillotson, Thad Pearl; Collective Material Committee, Hazel Potter, Myrta Thomson and Ben Vettaw. The work which has been planned for the club for the next few weeks is the reading of the story "A Child of the Sea" and "Life Among the Mormons," by Elizabeth Whitney Williams, a well known Charlevoix resident.

Foreign Correspondence Club

The Foreign Correspondence Club sponsored by Miss Ferguson and meeting every Wednesday elected the following officers: Chairman, Lola Tillotson; Program Committee, Elizabeth Bhaleet, chairman, Dolores Richardson and Christian Hansen. The last two meetings have been conducted by Marjorie Newman. She has written to several girls in foreign countries and has received answers. She showed some pictures she received and told some of the interesting things written in the letters.

The Pep Club

The pep club is busy planning a big mass meeting in the gym Thursday prior to our first home game which is with Petoskey Friday evening. The club is seeking to develop a better cheering group for this season.

A letter was received by Mr. Bush from the University of Michigan saying that as a result of the inspection of the Charlevoix School system early this fall, the diploma relations existing between the University of Michigan and the High School will be continued for another three year period—ending June 30, 1936.

This is the highest recognition that can be given by the University to any High School and this will ultimately mean the recognition by the North Central Association for the same period of time.

Band Concert

The Charlevoix School Band will give a Christmas Concert on December 20 at eight o'clock at the gymnasium. The admission is free and the public is cordially invited to attend this evening of entertainment.

The program is as follows: "One Beautiful Day," Hildreth. "Men of Valor," March Klohr "Fancy Free," Smith

Trombore Solo, Carl Beattie. "Love Is Idleness," Maitheth "Pizzicato Polka" Strauss "Quel Suono" (What Sound) Mozart From the opera "The Magic Flute" Flute Solo, Marian Tyler

MUSICAL FETE TO BE PRESENTED AT METHODIST CHURCH

Next Monday Evening, December Twenty-Sixth, at 8.

The following are the details of the above program, as recently promised to the readers of this paper. The beautiful Christmas Cantata, "The Lord's Annointed", by Lorenz, will be presented in the Charlevoix Methodist Church Monday evening, December 26, at eight o'clock, under the direction of Mrs. Ray O'Brien. The same cast will repeat the production in Emmanuel Episcopal Church, Petoskey the following Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock. The combined choir of these two churches, with the assistance of singers from other churches in both cities, and Mrs. Mildred MacArthur of Flint, will give the public one of the finest musical services ever given in this locality. The music of the cantata has been pronounced the most beautiful ever attempted here. The vested choir will number over forty voices, together with two violins, cornet, piano, and organ.

The soloists will be Mrs. R. Len Brown, Mr. Lawrence Foley, Garnet Williams, Claude Greenaway, Mrs. Mildred MacArthur, Mrs. Ruth Ann Howd, and H. W. Kirby.

Quartettes for men's voices will be taken by Ralph Young, Lawrence Foley, Garnet Williams, Claude Greenaway, C. R. Tanner, and Alexander Doherty. Mrs MacArthur will sing the great soprano recitative, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," out of the oritorio "Messiah." Handel's great masterpiece. Mrs. Brown's solo will be "The Angel's Song," with violin obligato by Mrs. Kneal. The violinists will be Mrs. Earl Knox and Mr. David Cohen. Mr. Cohen's solo will be "Romance", by Wieniawski, followed by Mrs. MacArthur. Mr. Cohen needs no introduction. Any one who has heard this new addition to the musical talent of our neighboring city will recognize him as a real professional, and his playing is a delight to all who have been privileged to hear him.

Mrs. Kneal on the violin, is an artist of finest skill and taste, and will appear in the ensemble numbers Miss Virginia Block will appear with the cornet, Mrs. A. C. Belding at the piano, and Mrs. Ray O'Brien the organ.

The church extends a cordial invitation to those in our other churches to attend. Our Petoskey friends have been courteous. Let us all hear them.

The official offering for the Methodist Children's Home will not be expected of our guests, and will be arranged for "Methodists only!"

PILGRIM CIRCLE ENTERTAINED BY MRS. E. J. HILLER

Forefather's Day Program Is Feature of the Event

Mrs. E. J. Hiller entertained the Pilgrim Circle of the Congregational Ladies Aid last Wednesday afternoon at her home on Antrim.

A Forefathers' Day program by Mrs. Shockley commemorated the arrival of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, December 21, 1620. This consisted of the reading of Felicia Herman's "Landing of the Pilgrims" and Longfellow's "Sailing of the Mayflower" with an interwoven account of early congregational history.

The hostess served delicious refreshments. The next meeting will be held Jan. 11th, with Mrs. Salton-stall.

In order to give our employes half holiday, we, the undersigned filling station owners and operators agree to close our places of business, from 1 to 5 p. m., December 25th, 1932.

Charlevoix Oil Co., W. H. Wallace, Sinnitt Bros., Leon Bolmon, A. C. Hansen, Standard Oil Co., Harry Cleblants.

Warren Kibbe is in Ludington this week on business for the Standard Oil Company.

SANTA CLAUS COMING FROM NORTH SATURDAY AT 2:30

His Only Stop Here Will Be At The Legion Home

Saturday of this week will be a great day for Charlevoix youngsters, for Santa Claus is coming.

With a jingle of sleigh bells, the good old saint will whirl through the city on his way to the American Legion home where he will distribute presents to the boys and girls who will greet him there at 2:30 p. m. There will be a tree at the hall and a present for every tot.

The Christmas celebration for the city, this year, as formerly, is under the auspices of the local Legion post. The Legion has also established gift barrels and boxes in the various stores and the groceries, canned goods, etc., that have been thus accumulated will be given out to the needy at a later date.

Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 is merely following out what is to be the national policy of the Legion this year and that is to see to it, with the cooperation of the respective municipalities, that every child has a Christmas. While the grown-ups are busying up with the present distress, fas conditions in whatever way they can, it is yet unthinkable that the children should be deprived of all the Christmas joys.

On Monday evening, the post auxiliary held a Christmas party for children of Legion members. A pot-luck supper was served at six o'clock and was much enjoyed by the children and the Legion members who were guests of the auxiliary.

BAND CONCERT BY C. H. S. STUDENTS GREATLY ENJOYED

Trombone and Flute Solos Are Deserving of Praise

The hour and one-half of music presented Tuesday evening by the high school band was greatly enjoyed by the Charlevoix students and parents. The opening number was "One Beautiful Day" played by the whole band. Then followed "Men of Valor March" and a trombone solo, "Fancy Free" by Carl Beattie. This solo deserves honorable mention as does "Quel Suono" a flute solo played later in the program by Marion Tyler. Other delightful numbers played by the band were "Love in Idleness," "Pizzicato Polka", of which was a very lively tune in which the band members displayed their talents immensely. The concluding number of the program was "Beneath the Holly."

Many of the listeners were, no doubt, disappointed at not hearing the solo planned to be given by Mr. Magor. He unfortunately was the victim of a toboggan accident which resulted in his not being able to play his horn. Miss Atkinson furnished the vocal music of the concert in which the chorus presented three Christmas selections. Tuesday evening was a great success for it showed that C. H. S. has a fine group of musicians.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wantz, son and daughter and Mr. Robert Bruce Armstrong, Jr., accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Redfield of River Forest, Ill., will spend the holiday season in Charlevoix with Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Armstrong, other relatives and local friends. According to present plans the entire party will leave River Forest Friday forenoon arriving here in the late afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Weisenberger and daughter Ruth, left for Marion, Ind., today, where they will remain during the holiday season with Mrs. Weisenberger's parents Mr. and Mrs. Lon Thorne.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Edward S. Shanahan and son motored up from Hampton Roads, arriving here Tuesday, to visit their parents and friends over the holiday vacation period.

Merry Christmas

I WILL ARRIVE IN CHARLEVOIX SATURDAY AFTERNOON AT 2:30 P. M. COMING FROM THE NORTH AND STOPPING AT THE LEGION HOME. A TREAT FOR ALL CHILDREN WHO MEET ME THERE. I'LL BE SEEING YOU.

Program

The Christmas spirit was well aroused among the observers of the High School Christmas program Wednesday afternoon. The gymnasium was gayly decorated with Christmas trees, candles, and other Christmas colors after much effort was put forth by the decoration committee. Mr. Domico of the Charlevoix Dramatic Camp was kind enough to lend his very fine lighting equipment which was a great aid to the success of the program. Spot lights were cast on certain individuals at the appropriate moment with the result of very lovely lighting effect.

The program was opened by the chorus who sang a Christmas Carol. The members of the chorus were white robes and had black carol books as were used many years ago. The scripture followed, read by 14 boys from the Junior and Senior High Schools. This was continued after another selection by the chorus "From the Stary Heavens High" and the chorus again followed with "Midnight Strikes on Yonder Tower."

The main feature of the program was a pantomime of Van Dykes' "Other Wise Man" which is one of the classics of American literature bringing out the message. The pantomime consisted of six scenes as follows:

Scene 1—The Wise Man, Artaban's House.

Scene 2—On the Way to find the Christ Child. Scene 3—By the Temple of Seven Spheres. Scene 4—A Cottage in Bethlehem. Scene 5—Before a Prison Gate. Scene 6—Near Golgotha.

The chorus gave the final selection.

HARD TIMES PARTY GIVEN BY EPWORTH LEAGUE

Date Is January 2; Prizes Will Be Given on Costumes

The Epworth League social summer a Hard Times Party to be given under the auspices on January 2, 1933. Anybody, young or years by young a sports, is eligible to attend. The place of meeting will be at the M. E. Church. The time is 7:30 p. m.

"Hard Times" costumes are not absolutely necessary, but as an inducement to wear everyday clothes the program committee announces that it will give prizes for the "best old costume (dress, coat, and accessories, as well as performance). All will enter among the ranks of those who wear their Hard Times Party.

An added attraction will be the appearance of the inspired Joseph Forsyth, who will demonstrate his feat of making real $1 bills out of blank pieces of paper. He will explain his method of making money rapidly and making it on a large way. He will add a few other magic stunts, but the money-making mystery seems very appropriate to this type of party.

Those wishing to attend are requested to save the date, start the New Year right, and "Laugh Off the Depression" with the Epworth Leaguers.

Mr. John Kelderhouse, who for the past year has been in New Mexico to regain his health, arrived here Monday and will visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs George Kelderhouse, for a short time, after which he returns to the southwest.

NEW TAXES COMING

One of the glittering promises in the recent campaign which led to the change of administration to reduce taxes and cut down the machinery of government and its interference in business. But now that the smoke of battle is cleared away it is becoming evident that instead of reducing taxes, there will have to be new levies to balance the budget. Not only is this to be done, but there are to be new forms of taxation. One of these proposed is the tax on chain stores within the District of Columbia, over which Congress has direct jurisdiction. The bill was introduced in the last House by Representative Celler of New York and sent to committee for study.

It is said that the bill would raise a half million dollars a year revenue from the chain stores in the District.

Congress of course has nothing to do with state legislation. Many of the states have already passed laws taxing chain stores and it is reported that others will result in the same kind of legislation during this winter.

The above example of special tax legislation is cited without argument as to its merits only to show that the tendency in Congress as well as the states is still to find new sources of taxation rather than to cut down the expenses of government and so lessen the tax burdens on the real property owner and the consumer who finally pay it all either directly or indirectly. Of course Congress will have to raise more money now to balance the budget but we ought never lose sight of the fact in our national and local affairs that what we need to restore prosperity is not the raising of more money to spend through taxation but in cutting down our public expenditures by strict system of economy.

MORE THAN HONOR

A short time ago the John Fritz Gold Medal, highest honor in the engineering profession, was awarded to Daniel C. Jackling, President of the Utah Copper Company, for "notable industrial achievement in initiating mass production of copper from low-grade ores through application of engineering principles."

At first glance, that merely seems as if a famous American industrialist had received a well-earned reward. But it means much more than that. It means that employment was given to thousands of men, that the progress of whole states was accelerated, that a thousand other related industries prospered—because a man set to work to reclaim copper, the royal metal, from ores of so low a grade that others had passed them by as being worthless.

That was a great achievement—and one that was felt particularly in the west. Men who transform the valueless into the valuable are few in any time, and their contribution to civilization is always of major importance.

ECONOMIC SELF PRESERVATION

So far as the farmer is concerned, cooperation is simply another name for economic self-preservation. For more years than one cares to count the average farmer was virtually at the mercy of the buyer. He took whatever price was offered him for his produce, or lost a sale.

Then came the beginning of the co-operative movement. Thousands of farmers joined together and created selling organizations as large and as powerful as the buying organizations. The middleman was no longer talking to a single farmer—he was talking to the authorized representative of a multitude. They met on equal terms.

All over the country cooperative organizations have been making good progress in time of depression. More and more farmers have discovered that cooperation is the eventual solution for suicidal prices and chaotic agricultural conditions. As a result, the cooperatives are on a firmer foundation today than ever before, and their chances for complete success in the future are better. But—every farmer should think of this—the more unorganized farmers there are, the longer that success will be in coming.

GLORIFYING THE CRIMINAL

Readers will recall there was considerable controversy during the past years on the matter of publicity that tends to glorify the American gangster and criminal. During that period news papers were read avidly for the latest developments in the life of Al Capone. Cagney, Robinson and other screen stars rose to prominence portraying gangster roles. That was the hey-day of what might be called "gangster" entertainment.

And now, with the drama that are being presented on the air depicting the lives of actual gangsters as compiled from police records the question is up again. Is radio glorifying the criminal? This all resolves itself down to the matter of whether or not the constant focusing of public attention on that phase of our social order has tended to enhance the attractiveness of the profession. The answer is that it is purely a matter of treatment.

Taking the Magic Carpet programs as a specific example, one cannot help feeling that the criminal is battling terrific odds in the modern police and crime detection methods now in effect throughout the country. There is no doubt that the courageous and untiring efforts of the authorities in tracking down the country's criminals has been brought home forcibly in these presentations. When the futility of this calling is hammered into the minds of the American people week in and week out over a period of months, one realizes that instead of glorifying a being we all know exists, these programs by playing the bright light of publicity upon him reveal his weakness and ineffectualness not only to his victims but to himself where, perhaps, it does the most good.

Aside from the entertainment value of such radio dramas, one is led to wonder if they mightn't be considered a public service for presenting so vividly the truth of the statement "You can't win!" which the police have been trying for decades to impress upon the criminal element of society.

FOOLISH WITH OUR MONEY

We need all of the modern improvements for we have become accustomed to them and the Creator intended we should by our own initiative create these comforts out of the great abundance of raw materials He has endowed us with —more than enough for all.

The younger generation, not realizing what a struggle their parents and grandparents and the founders of this great nation had to face and conquer, cannot appreciate what these luxuries and comforts mean as we older ones do.

The trouble is that we have been so blessed in this nation with abundance of natural resources that we have made money our god and business our king. In doing this we have neglected our home life.

Since the World War everyone has made more money than he dreamed of before. All have been trying to "keep up with Lizzie" and most trying to outdo her. This wild orgy of spending kept up until 1929. Then the great crash came. We are only paying the price naturedemands of those who waste the abundance she has given them by violating her laws. The law of compensation never fails.

But this will all pass, for we never have a period of incoherence without a period of coherence following. Prosperity will return and we shall all be better for our experience. If it has taught us that the simple life is best and all really great people have lived it (which made them great), that the home is the foundation of a successful and great nation, and that real happiness comes from within instead of from without, the depression will be worth all that it has cost.—A letter to the Springfield Union.

THE VAGRANT ARMY

The people who call themselves "hunger marchers" are rapidly breaking down by their own conduct whatever sympathy might have lurked in the public mind for their project. As far as strategy is concerned, it was an egregious error to allow Earl Browder, spokesman for the Communist Party to announce in New York that the march has been inspired and supported by the Communist organization. The reaction in the country at large will be decidedly unfavorable to the whole movement when Browder's statement is read, to the effect that a vast majority of the marchers are not Communists when they start on the trek to Washington, but that "most of them become sympathetic (to communism) in the course of the march."

Not even the direct pinning of the red flag on the movement, however, will go so far to disgust the nation with the tactics employed by these unemployed groups as the reports filter in from cities all over the country dealing with the conduct of the transients on their way to the capital. In Toledo, a contingent was offered the hospitality of the city by Mayor A. Q. Thatcher, and sent to Welfare House for an evening meal and overnight shelter. The supper, consisting of ham, cabbage, beans, cottage cheese, boiled potatoes and coffee, was considered more than adequate by welfare workers, but it did not meet with the approval of the marchers. Some one of their number made the complaint that the potatoes served to them were sour. Other criticisms were immediately lodged, food was thrown about the room, and the supper broke up in a near-riot. Early the next morning a displeased mayor ushered the marchers quickly out of Toledo.

Such incidents have been repeated in various towns where the unemployed caravans have drawn up and made demands for food and shelter. The hunger marchers, one observer has pointed out, are actually not either hungry or marchers. They convene on Washington, not on foot, but in automobiles and trucks. One New England delegate even insists that "lots of our fellows quit their jobs to go on this hunger march."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

FIVE-DAY WEEK

The five-day week apparently has been most popular in industries where employment has been slack and where the depression has hit the hardest. While less than 9 per cent of the establishments engaged in manufacturing agricultural implements have gone on the five-day week schedule, more than 67 per cent of the employees in the automobile industry and 40 per cent in the chewing and smoking tobacco industry, and more than 38 per cent of the employees making electrical machinery and apparatus are now on the five-day week basis.

TRAILS WE CROSS

By JAMES W. BROOKS

ONCE THE PRISON OF A GOVERNOR

This old jail at Williamsburg, Virginia once held Governor Hamilton, taken prisoner at Detroit by George Rogers Clark for interfering with the wheels of New World destiny. Evidently those early Americans were a busy and determined lot, but Time has long since released Hamilton while the old jail hangs on.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Our New England citizens are nobly self-reliant and thrifty. They can usually get along, prosperity or no prosperity, although, of course, like the rest of us they prefer the easier financial times. But some of the news coming out of the northeast today is not so reassuring, especially so far as our fishing industry is concerned. Hurrily New England fisherfolk are armed in song and story. They are supposed to go out in all kinds of weather under all sorts of conditions, and they generally do. But now something has arisen with which they are unable to cope. They may be able to defeat the elements, but they are now up against grim economic law.

"The tariff bill is the fisherman's ally, but its efficiency is neutralized by low foreign currencies and gives far less protection than when the gold standard was in command of the exchanges of the world. By the slump in foreign money values, the enormous drop in wages abroad and the resultant scaling down of the tariff wall, the foreign fishermen are able to give American fishermen too hard a run for their money.

"For instance, Maine sardine factories have closed and the fishermen have put up their boats. There was nothing else for them to do. Some of them may be on the relief lists in Maine. Norway is taking the sardine business away from them with a sardine that is so cheap that the Maine producers cannot hold the market. About two years ago Norway was exporting 380,000 cases of sardines to the United States, and Maine was producing 1,200,000 cases at that time; today these figures are reversed, for Norway is sending about 1,400,000 cases this year and Maine will offer only 300,000 cases, according to Edward H. Cooley, director of the Massachusetts Fisheries Association."

So it is not only the manufacturer and the grower who is suffering because of depreciated currencies abroad. The new economic situation is giving plenty of trouble to our fisherfolk, too. And it is not only the sardine industry that is affected. As the Transcript points out, the Japanese salmon industry is ruining that same industry in the United States, because our tariff is not sufficiently against low wages and depreciated currency. Continuing the Transcript says:

"A dollar buys so much salmon in Japan today that it becomes relatively unprofitable, if not wasteful, for the American merchant to spend that dollar for American salmon. In fact, he cannot handle the American salmon. In fact, he cannot handle the American salmon in competition with what comes from Japan and bid for the common trade. If the Japanese currency were on a par with that of the United States a case of her salmon would cost 80 cents; but since the fall from the gold standard the yen has become so low in value that it takes only about 36 cents to pay for it, and the duty, being an ad valorem duty, adds only a few cents, bringing the Japanese salmon up to about 44 cents to compete with the American product which comes to about $2. The scallops sold in Boston today bring $1.75 to $2 a gallon, wholesale, while Japan captures the Pacific coast trade with her $1.25."

Here is something for Congress to think about. Instead of needing to have our tariff schedules reduced in an effort to increase foreign trade, it is evident that some of the schedules ought to be increased to protect our own industries against cheap currency efforts in Europe and Asia. This cannot be done by negotiating tariff and trade agreements with various countries. That method would be far too slow and too clumsy, requiring as it would the sanction of two-thirds of the members of the United States Senate. What our industries which are being seriously crippled by debased currency and resulting starvation wages abroad, now need is some direct action which will protect our own producers. Here is one time when we are confronted both by a theory and a condition which dovetail. The theory is that debased currency lowers wages and living standards and permits the producer in that country to undersell the producer in the nation which has sound stable money. The condition is increasing unemployment in certain key industries of America, and it is a condition which ought to be remedied at once.

Shrine of American Liberty

The approach of the mid-winter season each year recalls to the mind of every student of American history and the story of Valley Forge. This national park, situated a few miles from Philadelphia, has been called with justification, the shrine of American liberty, and it gives to all who visit it a truer appreciation of the manhood which made our nation possible. Under the caption, "The Shrine of American Liberty," Mr. Arthur Weller says, in part, in the current issue of the National Republic:

"There is no finer example in American history of faith and pluck than that which was made at Valley Forge by the Continental army under their commander-in-chief, George Washington, in the winter of 1777-1778.

"It is doubtful whether the sacrifice of the Continental army has ever been adequately realized. Half-starved, ill-clad poorly sheltered and in great peril, not only from the pangs of hunger and cold, but also from enemy attacks, they huddled about their camp fires while the British under Lord Howe, at the 'rebel' capital of Philadelphia, celebrated the taking of it with dances and other gala events.

"In Marshall's Washington we find this: 'At no period of the war had the American army been reduced to a situation of greater peril than during the winter at Valley Forge. More than once they were absolutely without food.' What hardships were undergone can be deduced from the fact that only 5,000 out of the 17,000 who encamped there in December for that winter were fit for active duty. Clothing, no less than food, was scarce. Men wore each other's uniforms in order that the naked could be clad and take their turn at active duties.

"One account tells of Washington one cold morning meeting his sentinel as the commander left headquarters, at the Potts' House. The sentinel was making vigorous efforts with his hands and legs in order to keep warm. Noting this, Washington asked him if he had had his breakfast. Upon receiving a negative reply, Washington hurried the sentinel inside the house, and while he was being served a breakfast within, by Mrs. Washington, Gen. Washington, with the sentinel's own gun, stood guard outside his own house until the soldier's return.

"Illustrative also of the conditions in the camp at beautiful yet tragic Valley Forge, so close to Philadelphia, so near to the British, is the account of Washington's visit to a detachment of his own men. He had been keeping his eyes on the ground, apparently looking at something of interest there on the snowy slopes. Upon drawing near to the chief officer of the detachment, he quietly returned the salute, then abruptly asked:

"'How comes it, sir, that I have tracked the march of your troops by the bloodstains of their feet upon the frozen ground? Were there no shoes in the commissary's stores?'

"To this the officer replied that his detachment was one of the last to receive shoes, also that the supply before reaching his detachment had been practically exhausted.

"Washington listened in silence, but his deep sighs showed with what emotion he heard this report. Turning to his men he said, his voice trembling, 'Poor fellows!' Then he gave rein to his charger and rode rapidly away.

"Valley Forge is more than a beautiful state park today. It is symbolic of something more than forced privations. It is a shrine that instills in all true Americans a deeper appreciation of the manhood and the sacrifice of those who were quartered there during the darkest hour of the Revolution. It is symbolic of a never-dying devotion to a cause and to a great commander that kept hope alive."

Six young gentlemen members of the Pedro Club—Bowen, Bellinger, Marshall, Miller, Small and Denton, gave a very pleasant dancing and card party at K. P. hall Christmas night.

Under the instruction and leadership of Frank Kenyon, the band is making rapid and substantial progress. Their well chosen selections are already rendered with much expression and rythmic precision. The band will come out with robins in the spring, a credit to itself and its efficient teacher.

The Criminality of Thoughtlessness—

The above caption may be called a criminally exaggerated proposition, but we will stand by it.

There is a thoughtlessness of speech and action that sometimes invades the realm of criminal carelessness as clearly as does the act of a train dispatcher who sleeps at his post.

On Sunday a gentleman entered the Sentinel office and announced that Mrs. Louis Gebo had fallen dead in the Baptist church during service. He learned it from some person who was there. At the close of the service the news was hrot to the Methodist church. Reached about 4 o'clock Mrs. Gebo's death had been told to a hundred on the street and telephoned to half as many more.

The facts were, Mrs. Gebo suffered a fainting spell in the church, just as others have, as a result perhaps of an overheated room, or some other abnormal condition.

Imagine what such news means to those near and dear. Contemplate a moment on the effect in your household of the formation of this sort while your mother or your wife is temporarily absent from the fireside.

Mrs. Gebo is at her home as well as she was Sunday morning at breakfast time, and she will have the satisfaction of knowing that the editor of this paper had written the obituary of another old settler before he learned the truth.

Rev. W. H. McCartney will deliver a Masonic address at Sherman, Wexford county, on the evening of December 27.

Frank E. Wood and George Pappin are putting in an ice skating rink in the vacant space back of the postoffice. It will be 80x100 feet in size. Water will be taken from the hydrant on Clinton street.

Charlevoix bestows upon herself a Christmas gift. She puts in her own stocking as fine a system of water-works, as any town of the size in Michigan can boast of. It bespeaks enterprize and a spirit of progress, and will be more far-reaching in its influence upon our town than appears upon the surface. The system will soon be self-sustaining. Now give us electric lights, a big city hotel and Charlevoix will be all wool and a yard wide, with a broad frill around the edges.

Yes, let us have electric lights with them we maybe better able to see our way clear to get a hump on us about some other matters, which are of greater importance than electric lights. In the bright glare of arc-lights we might be able to see that we are inclined, as a community, to be a little shiftless concerning those things that lie closest to our future prosperity. We might be able to read more clearly the handbills that the merchants of rival towns are distributing among us and do something ourselves to hold the trade that belongs to us, and reach out, after more. Then, too, electric lights would aid us in discovering our own faults as well as those of our neighbors. Then we might be better enabled to "see the point" in the water works well matter. We could also use the dynamo to electrocute Petoskey bill-peddlers and croakers. Yes, by all means give us electric lights.

Misses Flora Nelson, Minnie Edwards and Essie Buttars will receive New Year's calls at the residence of Miss Buttars on New Year's day.

Henry C. Cooper and Miss Hattie Bosk, of this place, were united in matrimony Wednesday evening by Rev. G. Daniels.

The young couple were the recipients of several choice gifts from friends and received many congratulations yesterday. We wish them a life of happiness and prosperity.

Harrison Miller, Captain of the Beaver Island Life Saving Station, has arrived here and will remain during the winter. He and another gentleman came over in a small boat bending at Harbor Springs in a gale having been compelled to return once in a leaking boat. Mr. Miller has an interest in a patent ors lock and also in a patent hame fastener, invented by a Beaver Island man. He goes to Buffalo soon on business connected with these patents, but will return here. He is the same old "Tip" that he always was and enjoys the same large circle of friends.

Masonic — At the regular communication of Charlevoix Lodge, No. 282, F. & A. M. last Tuesday evening, the following officers were elected and appointed:

W. M.—Willard A. Smith.

J. W.—Richard Cooper.
Treas.—O. S. Washburn.
Sec.—Will Sec.
Chap.—Richard Shapton.
S. D.—W. C. Newman.
J. D.—A. F. Myers.
Tyler—F. D. Smith.
Stewards—A. McNeill, John Mason.

The officers will be installed on Wednesday evening, Dec. 27th, (Festival of St. John, the Evangelist,) after which refreshments will be served.

SANTA CLAUS

The Cantata To Be Given at the M. E. church Saturday Eve.

The young folks under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Mears, have completed their rehearsals for the fine cantata of Santa Claus, and it will be given to the public Saturday evening. Miss Essie Buttars presides at the piano during the cantatta and Miss Wright will render selections between the acts. Prof. Bice, violinist, will have charge of the instrumental part of the entertainment. The following is the program:

Prologue—Orchestra.

Opening Chorus — "Happy, Happy Greetings."

Solos and Duett, "When the Shepherds," Florence and Katie Smith.

Solo and Chorus, "Invocation to Joy," Mrs. Buzzell.

Quartette, "Peace, Love, Joy and Hope," Misses Buttars and Mills, Mrs. Mears and Mrs. Allen.

Full Chorus, "Hail all Hail"

Solo, "Joy, the Wonderful Song," Mrs. Mears.

Duett, "Peace and Love," Misses Buttars and Miss Allen.

Solo, "Hope," Miss Mills.

Dialogue, "Frost King and Young People," Fred Smith.

Laughing Chorus, "Frost King and Young People."

Chorus, "Good Night to the Frost King."

Solo, "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep."

Solo, "Goddess of Dreams," Miss Mamie Nicholls.

Solos, "Fairies," Misses Aggie Miller, Nettie Hawks, Hattie Wright.

Trio—"Fairies,"

Reindeer Gallop, Orchestra.

Dialogue, "Santa Claus and Young People."

Solo, "Santa Claus Greeting" W. A. Smith.

Chorus, "Welcome to Santa Claus."

Kinder Symphony, Young orchestra.

Final Chorus, "Our Kind and Loving Father."

The Charlevoix Cornet Band will play several selections before the entertainment outside the church. Admission, 25c; children 15 cents. Tickets for sale at Weed's Drug Store.

Cars Running—The Eagle says that trains now leave for Grand Rapids every morning at 6 o'clock and arrive from Grand Rapids at 8:45.

A Paper for Antrim county—The publishers of the Eagle announce that Jan. 1st the Elk Rapids Progress issued heretofore monthly, will become a weekly paper.

School—We called at the school on Monday and found an orderly lot of pupils, making intellectual headway under the efficient tutorship of Mr. J. M. Whitney.

A Bell for Charlevoix—It appears that about fifty dollars has been raised toward a fund for the purchase of a bell for the new school building. We are happy to announce that on Tuesday evening, Dec. 31, Rev. Geo. L. Cole, of this village will deliver a lecture at the school house for the benefit of the fund. Theme: "Life Motives". Mr. Cole, before entering upon the ministry traveled somewhat as a lecturer and the was his most popular lecture. Of course the people will turn out.

There is no doubt in the minds of those who have conversed with men of influence in that direction, that an appropriation for our harbor would have been forthcoming from Congress this winter, had the survey, for which that body provided, taken place. Why has not some attention been given to this matter by our harbor champions? How is it that places of no greater importance than Pine River have secured appropriations? Because they worked? We seem to be waiting, like Macumbre, for "something to turn up." The water did not flow from the rock until the prophet—(we forget the gentleman's name—smote it with his rod. Let us see to it that the survey is made next season.

Personal—Henry L. Miller, accompanied by Lewis Macsata, chief, left on Monday for Washington, as agent for the Indians of this reservation. Mr. Miller goes with authority and his mission is to secure for the Indians the patents to their lands for which they have been so long waiting, and to which they are entitled.

Original conundrums—Why should the people of Charlevoix be much more comfortable this winter than in winters past? Because they are well supplied with Wood and Cole.

Why is the village of Charlevoix like the stub of a candle that has been burned by an open window on a summer night? "Because there are so many Millers stuck around it.

Why is the town of Eveline like a drinking saloon? Because they have both Beers and Porter.

Why is the town of Norwood like a sabre? Because it has a Hilt-on.

Why was Adam when he came fresh from the hands of his Maker like one of our Charlevoix merchants? Because he was a New-man.

Why is the Town of Marion like the highlands of Scotland? Because it has Borne in it first est parts.

Christmas Stories

Eighth Grade English Classes "Origin of the Christmas Tree"
(By Edward Hanson.

The origin of the Christmas tree is not known. It may have some connection with the great tree "Yggdrasill" of Scandinavian mythology, or it may be a survival of the pine trees of the Roman Saturnalia, which were decorated with images of Bacchus. The custom may be of even greater antiquity, as the ancient Egyptians decorated their houses at the winter festival with branches of the date-palm, which they regarded as a symbol both of immortality and of the heavens.

In medieval times there was a tradition of holiness inventing an illuminated tree. As a regular institution, the Christmas tree can be traced back to about 1600, when it suddenly appeared at Strassburg, Germany. For almost two hundred years it was confined along the Rhine, when about 1800 it spread all over Germany and in a few years was used all over the world. Scandinavian, French, and German legends attribute the origin of the christmas tree to various noted persons.

The fir, pine, hemlock, and spruce seem to be used in all lands as Christmas trees. Owing to the time of year

PROMISE BOYS RARE THRILLS

American Boy - Youth's Companion readers are due for a rare adventure thrill in 1933, according to word just received from America's favorite boy's magazine. Boys will welcome the news that a western Robinson Crusoe story, in which two boys and a man battle with savages and build a civilization with their bare hands, is on the way!

In this story the three heroes escape into the depths of the Amazon jungle, there they are stripped and left to die by hostile natives; and there, from the natural abundance of the jungle, they build their fortress. From advance hollers, "It's a story readers will never forget!"

Other good things, we learn, are on the way in The American Boy - Youth's Companion for 1933. Adventures in all parts of the world; stories of school and college, helpful stories of the professions; sports interviews with famous coaches and players; vivid articles on travel and science.

We suggest The American Boy-Youth's Companion as an ideal present for that son, nephew, cousin, and neighbor. It's a character-building, imagination-stirring present that repeats itself every month in the year. An attractive gift card bearing your name will be sent to the boy if you request it. Subscription prices are only $2.00 for one year or $5.00 for three years. At the latter rate the magazine costs only a dollar a year. Mail your order direct to The American Boy-Youth's companion, 550 W. Lafayette Blvd., Detroit, Mich. Service on your subscription will start with the issue you specify.

BEAUDOIN STARS AS POLAR BEARS WIN FROM MANISTEE

Cubs Nose Out Petoskey Team In Overtime Period

(By Newman)

The stellar playing of Lysle "Elise" Beaudoin in the game last Friday evening was largely responsible for the Charlevoix Polar Bears' thrilling 28 to 23 victory over their arch rivals, the Manistee Iron Works' quintet. Beaudoin made 14 of the 28 points, besides playing a wonderful game on defense, and was easily the outstanding player on the floor. With the tight Manistee defense hottling up the offensive work of the famous Davenport and "Wild Bill" Supernaw, it was indeed lucky for Manager Todd that he had a man of Beaudoin's calibre to shoot into the breach and save the game for the locals. Davenport made only 6 points which was indeed a low mark for him. Supernaw made only 2 points before calling it a full night's work. "Victory" Smith made 4 counters for his team. Couper made 2. Brown and H. Davenport also played.

Manistee's center, Zientek, led his team with 10 points, although Ludwigson, at right forward was close behind with 9. Shields and Chambers, who divided the other forward position, made 2 each. Blake and Waite were the guards. Charlevoix led 6 to 4 at the first quarter, but the score was tied at 12 all at the half. The locals forged ahead in the third period and then ced 20 to 16. With the game safely under control, Mr. Brown was sent into the game to give added strength to the Bears, and when Manistee saw his shadow and heard the foundations of the building shake under his tread, they gave up the contest and the Polar Bears took the last quarter under wraps, to finish with the score at 28 to 23.

The attendance was fair, but was not as large as usually turns out to see Manistee play, as there were conflicting attractions.

The Cubs nosed out a 1 point decision over the Willson Floral team from Petoskey in the preliminary conflict. Petoskey led, 6 to 2, at the quarter, but the Cubs were ahead, 7 to 5, at the half. The Cubs still led, 11 to 9, at the third quarter mark, but Petoskey tied the score at 13 to 13 at the official close of the game. In one over-time period, each team made one field goal and the score was tied at 15, when one Petoskey player fouled young Supernaw, and the game had, although pretty badly hurt, managed to make his free throw good for the winning point, just as the timekeeper decided to end the game. The final score was 16 to 15. Captain "Call me George McKenzie" had a very good night and finally managed to come out even. In spite of the fact that he had three fouls called on him, which netted Petoskey four points, and also was out of position a number of times, allowing his opponent to score two field goals for four more points, George showed his worth by scoring eight points himself. He made baskets from every angle. Wagner showed some super dribbling to the appreciative audience. And McCall's long shots were thrillers. He scored five points. Supernaw made three. Bergman did well on defense. His defensive work was more valuable than any one else's offensive work. The boy who made most of Petoskey's points was Loveiace. The two teams played a game at Petoskey on the previous Wednesday and the Cubs won 11 to 0.

The Polar Bears take on tough customers this week. The barnstorming Alma Collegians expect to have no difficulty with a "chick" team on Wednesday. And Midland, always a tough one, will probably win on Saturday. Of course this scribe would like to see the local lads come out in front in both of the games but it seems too much to ask. The Cub circus is expected to perform a preliminary exhibition to each game.

Here For Holidays

Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Swinton, and daughter Katherine, of Marquette, arrived here last Friday and were guests of the former's mother, Mrs. G. D. Swinton, and his sister, Mrs. H. A. Craig for Christmas holiday. They returned to Marquette Tuesday morning.

LEGION PLACES CHRISTMAS BASKETS SUNDAY A. M.

Kiddies Enjoy Meeting Santa Saturday Afternoon

The gift barrels placed by the local post of the American Legion in various stores produced four full barrels of groceries and other articles and 14 large baskets of those provisions were distributed last Sunday morning. At the Christmas party, held at the Legion hall, Saturday afternoon, over 600 boxes of candy and nuts were given out to the little ones by old Santa himself. In spite of the weather the little ones were out in large numbers and packed the home to overflowing.

The proceeds from Christmas operetta, "The Magi's Gift", presented at the high school gymnasium last Thursday evening, totaling $32.84, have been turned over to the Legion Welfare fund.

The post is planning another card party for Tuesday evening, January 10th, and a hard luck dancing party for Friday evening, January 13th. If the party is successful, another will follow.

On New Year's Day, members of the post are going out to cut and buzz wood for the Legion hall. Any comrade who feels in need of a little exercise, bring an axe and show up at the hall at 8:00 a. m., Monday morning.

Here From Grand Rapids

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bedford and son, Harrison, and daughters, Ruth Ann and Bobbie, motored up from Grand Rapids Saturday to visit Mr. Bedford's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Bedford. They returned Wednesday, except Ruth Ann, who will return Tuesday.

Spending Vacation Here

Arrives Home Sunday

Ray W. Faulkner, Jr., for some months past at Columbus, returned to Charlevoix Sunday to spend part of the holiday period with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Ray W. Faulkner and other relatives and friends. Friday he goes to Minneapolis where he joins the University faculty as one of the educators in that institution.

Visit Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Jones Durance visited their daughter, Mrs. Frank Jones and family at Frankfort Christmas.

SHOOTING AFFRAY OCCURS IN HAYES TWP. WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Orson Cook Shot Through The Leg by Assailants

A shooting affray in which Orson Cook, a farmer of Hayes township was the victim, was reported from the Cook farm Wednesday (last) night and this preceded by a quarrel and a fight earlier in the evening in which Mr. Cook was more or less beaten up by two young men, one from Petoskey, whose name is unknown at this time and the other one, Warren Baker, 25 years old, of Hayes township.

The fight occurred early in the evening and after Mr. Cook ordered the young men from his place. The fight being indulged in following the order to leave. Upon leaving the farm one of the two young men threw an empty whiskey bottle thru a window of the residence. Later they returned and fired several shots through one of the doors, one of which came dangerously near Mrs. Cook.

With the opening of the shooting Mr. Cook stepped out of a side door and an instant later was shot through the fleshy part of the leg. Report says that he returned the fire using a shotgun for that purpose. Whether or not the shot was effective is not known at this time as the two men immediately made their escape.

Dr. King attended the injured man and removed the bullet successfully. No serious result will be caused the patient unless something out of the ordinary developes in connection with the case is the report made by Dr. King.

Local officers are in charge of the case with the expectation of taking them into custody soon.

HARD TIMES PARTY GIVEN BY EPWORTH LEAGUE

Date Is January 2; Prizes Will Be Given on Costumes

The Epworth League plans a Hard Times Party to be given under its auspices on January 2, 1933. Anybody, young in years or spirit, is eligible to attend. The place of merriment will be at the M. E. Church at 7:30 p. m.

"Hard Times" costumes are not absolutely necessary, but as an inducement to wear everyday clothes there will be prizes for the "hardest" costumes.

An added attraction will be the appearance of the magician Joseph Everett, who will demonstrate his feats of magic.

The committee has added one more feature to the program. This number will be a "Cast Off Exchange." Each guest is asked to bring some article for which he or she can find no further use. An interesting game is arranged in connection with the changing about of these articles.

CANTATA ENJOYED BY LARGE CROWD MONDAY NIGHT

Christmas Musical Programme Given By United Choirs

A crowd that filled every inch of space, including aisles and balcony was in attendance at the local Methodist Church Monday evening, to hear the beautiful Christmas Cantata, "The Lord's Annointed," by Lorenz. The music was not only of the highest order, from an artistic standpoint, but was exceedingly reverent and worshipful. The vested chorus of forty four voices showed remarkable training, with perfect unison in ensemble, and vigor of attack. The double processional, using the Christmas "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful," was very effective, the first portion being sung in the distance, with closed doors. Four little boys, in vestments, with trumpets, preceded the processional, with organ, piano, cornet, and two violins in the chancel.

The brilliant work of Mrs. R. Leo Brown, in the soprano "The Angel's Song," was a revelation to a Charlevoix audience, greatly augmented in charm by the violin accompaniment by Mrs. Earl Kneal. Mrs. Brown's part in connection with the men's quartette, in "Where Is The King?" was also very beautiful. Mr. Harker Kirby and Mrs. Ruth A. Dowd had solo numbers that were beautifully rendered, and credit to the production high spots in the program were provided by one, a stranger in this locality, and by one of our own number, whom we still claim, though now residing in Flint. Mr. David Cuhen, recently come to Petoskey, surprised and delighted everyone with his brilliant and artistic interpretation of Kreisler's "The Old Refrain"; while our own Mildred Eckinger MacArthur gave an interpretation of the soprano recitative out of "Messiah" almost as matchless as the great production itself, from Handel's masterpiece, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth." The solo and quartette work by the Messrs. Foley, Greenway, Williams, Veney, Doherty and Tanner was a delight, and beautifully done.

In instruments, the cornet, by Miss Block, was an effective addition to tone production. Mrs. Belding, at the organ, gave foundation and unity. Mrs. O'Brien, at the piano, gave direction and control, that led the large chorus as one voice. Her untiring labors for several weeks, in two cities, made the whole affair possible.

The church is very grateful to her, and to the many friends from Petoskey, and from the other churches here. The Rev Doane graciously consented to assist in the worship service, thus bringing together in the finest Christmas spirit, these two cities, and churches—six churches, in fact.

(Signed) W. W. Hurd.

Home For Christmas

Miss Alice Partridge is here spending her vacation period with her parents Captain and Mrs. Frank Partridge. At the close of her visit she returns to Mt. Pleasant to resume her student work at the State Normal.

To Leave For College

Rev. G. R. Parker expects to motor down to Olivet next Tuesday, accompanied by his son Hugh, and Gwendlyn Miller, who are students at Olivet college, also Ruth Ann Bedford who will go to his home at Grand Rapids.

TRICK PIANO AIDS COHAN TO COMPOSE TUNES BY EAR

Though he has composed over 400 songs during the course of his career, George M. Cohan, author, producer, actor and song-writer, who makes his talking picture debut with Claudette Colbert and Jimmy Durante in "The Phantom President" showing at the Palace Theater Saturday and Sunday, hardly knows how to play the piano.

Cohan, in fact, picks his melodies out by ear on an old fashioned sliding keyboard transposition piano, working in the key of F-sharp, and then using the sliding keyboard to transpose his songs to more singable keys.

Every melody Cohan has produced, from "Yankee Doodle Dandy" back in 1904, to "We Need a Man," for "The Phantom President," has been originated on this trick type of piano.

Cohan started using the sliding keyboard in the early years of his career, and has owned dozens of them since. They are no longer manufactured however, and his collection is one of the few in existence. Irving Berlin, another popular song writer is another composer who owns and uses them.

In "Phantom President" Cohan plays two roles—one a banker eminently fitted for the presidency who lacks the personality to win an election; and the banker's double, a medicine-show barker bejuming over with personality, who is hired to pose for the candidate and win him votes.

POLAR BEARS TAKE LESSON FROM ALMA COLLEGE

C. H. S. Trims Petoskey High Again By Close Score

Charlevoix teams broke even in the two main basketball games played Wednesday evening. The high school boys took a tight contest from the Petoskey quintet on the Petoskey court, with the final score being 15 to 14. This made two victories for the locals over their Class B rivals this year.

A speedy Alma team took the measure of our Polar Bears by a 58 to 22 count. Alma led all the way. Their players were so much better individually than the locals, but their team passing was effective.

It was the Polar Bears' worst defeat in three years and the first of the present season. After this lesson we figure the locals can whip Midland Saturday.

In the preliminary game, the local Cubs lost a 14 to 11 decision to the Potts Cleaners of Petoskey. Novak refereed the preliminary and Hallett the second contest.

COMMUNITY PLAY "THE MAGI'S GIFT" WINS APPROVAL

Offering of $32.84 Received For Welfare Work

"The Magi's Gift" given by the churches of Charlevoix under the directions of Mrs. A. J. Stelter proved to be one of the seasons most beautiful operettas.

The scene of this story laid in medieval England on Christmas eve, together with lovely costumes and lighting, was very beautiful.

The entire cast of characters, well chosen, played their parts exceedingly well to a full house and those in charge appreciate the free will offering of $32.84 which has been turned over to the American Legion Welfare Fund.

Guests of Harrington's

Mr. and Mrs. V. Y. Tuttle and little son are holiday guests of Mrs. Tuttle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Harrington.

To Return Home Friday

Mrs. Edward Ratz and her daughter Harriet, guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hooker over the Christmas season, return to their home in Flint next Friday.

Missionary Society

The Methodist Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. Martin Block Wednesday, January 4 at 2:30 p. m.

AMERICAN LEGION STARTS CAMPAIGN TO "BUY AMERICAN"

Nationwide Activity "For Community, State and Nation"

Recently representatives of every committee and province in the Britain Empire met in Ottawa, Canada, and decided among other things, to "Buy British." In other words, each country making up the vast British Empire, pledged itself to buy British made goods and so help the great British commonwealth. They have embarked upon an extensive advertising campaign to spread the slogan "Buy British."

The American Legion is starting a similar campaign to spread the slogan "Buy American." If every loyal American citizen would pledge himself to buy only American made goods what an impetus it would give to our American factories and farms.

Based on the average wage of four an hour, to American workers, and the current exchange rate on foreign money to the American dollar, the corresponding rate in France is 12c an hour, in Italy 9c an hour and in Japan 7c an hour. Foreign goods can be sold here in America, after paying costs of manufacture, transportation, customs duts and retailers profit, for less than American made goods can be sold—but American manufactured goods are made up from American raw material by American factories and employes, using American fuel, paying American taxes and doing something to help build up our country. Isn't that worth something? Just think what it means! The farmer, the woodsman, the miner, the transportation lines, the producers of fuel, power, light, machinery and other materials are benefited when you buy an American made product.

American made goods are generally admitted, to be of a higher grade than similar articles made abroad. Some of them may be just a bit higher in price, but isn't it worth it? There are mighty few manufactured articles of any sort whatsoever that are not made here in our own U. S. A. and they are just a little bit better than the imported article in the majority of cases. Shall we not solemnly pledge ourselves, the next time we make a purchase, look for the item made in Japan, France or Germany, and lay it aside and try and find a similar article that we know is made in our own United States of America?

A short time ago quite a furor was created in the House of Commons in London, over a member of Parliament finding in a restaurant in the basement of the Parliament building, a bottle of Tobasco sauce that was made in Louisiana, here in the United States. He took the matter up on the floor of Parliament and demanded an investigation as to why an American made product should be served under the roof of the House of Parliament.

Let us remember that incident the next time we are tempted to buy a foreign made article and "BUY AMERICAN."

F. H. Wilkinson, American Legion Officer, American Legion.

WHO WILL PAY?

Who will pay the taxes after all property has been confiscated and all capital has at last found its way into the coffers of the government?

The optimistic answer is that that will never happen. Probably it won't. But we are coming closer to it than we realize. In some middle western states more than 50 per cent of the farms have been foreclosed and are being worked by lessees, not owners. In some cities it is cheaper to tear a good building down than to allow it to stand—because taxes on the structure are greater than the income it produces. In other cases it is cheaper to close a factory—because, under present conditions, returns are not great enough to meet the tax bill and the other running expenses.

It is very easy to advocate soaking the rich to help the poor. But over-taxation of capital is the surest way to produce distress, unemployment, depression. When people are afraid to invest their money in producing enterprises, because of fear of increasing taxation, the country faces a crisis from unemployment and actual confiscation of capital and jobs by taxation.

The Congress now in session must deal with an unbalanced budget. The next Congress will have the same identical problem. Unless expenditures are reduced, there will come a time when there will not be enough taxpayers to meet government's high cost.

THE LITERARY MOUNTAINS

It was not so very long ago that London was the literary center of the universe. The great publishing houses were there; the greatest accolade an American writer could receive was acclaim from the English critics. As a result, American literature took to aping its foreign cousin, and for a while the "fashionable" American authors were more English than the English.

All that has changed. England still has her great literature—but the highest literary mountains are to be found in this country. The American book publisher leads the world—not merely in the promotion of sales, but in bringing before an audience new talents, new ideas, new and vital experiments. Much of this he does without hope of gain, knowing from experience that deficits are almost inevitably the result of adventuring of this kind.

We need not, however, feel sorry for the American publisher because of that. He has earned a very definite reward. It is to the presses of America that much of the world now looks for pungent volumes of criticism and political philosophy: for the greatest biographies; for the most important fiction. America has produced a native literature and in it are names which are almost as familiar in Paris and Vienna and Leningrad and Cracow, as in San Francisco and New Orleans and Sauk Center. It is a literature which, because it is fundamentally native to a land, is really international in spirit.

And the better American publishers who have given so much of time, effort and hard-earned money to aiding that development when more profitable, if less commendable, enterprises beckoned, deserve more of the credit than they generally receive.

GOOD MEDICINE

Mayor-elect Carson of Portland, Oregon, has prescribed some good medicine for public consumption. He said: "We must quit asking the government to be a wet nurse to everything.

"We must realize that the people support the government, not that the government supports the people.

"We cannot get out of debt by going farther into debt.

"We must cut the cost of government, for in that way lies the only avenue of relief at present.

"I am not an alarmist, but we must admit that none of us knows whether or not we have hit the bottom in this deflation of credits that is now going on.

"We must maintain the stability of the economic order, must preserve our institutions; if we do not, it will mean that we are breaking the last timber that holds the roof of protection over our heads.

"The protection of life, property and health are the fundamental duties of our government. All else is superfluous. We must hold to these fundamentals and turn our back upon these other intriguing things, if we are to hold what we have and build solidly for the future."

Portland is fortunate to have elected a mayor who has the courage to advocate such practical and fundamental American ideas.

WHAT WORLD TRADE MEANS

King Cotton, as John H. Caulfield points out, is playing Horatius at the bridge for our foreign trade—armed with the two-edged sword of price and quality. Last season, while the world used 165,000 bales less of all cotton than in the previous period, it used 1,411,000 more bales of American. In the early months of this season American cotton again bettered its export record, by more than 50 per cent.

This means jobs for American workmen, increased circulation of money and a more stable cotton industry. It takes us back fifty and more years ago, when American cotton was the undisputed king in the world market. It is, perhaps, the beginning of a new era for the cotton producer.

It is worth pointing out that cotton is one of the American industries that has taken greatest advantage of the farmers' newest agency of progress—the cooperative. The cotton cooperative has shown the producer how to raise a better product and sell to the best advantage. It has fought, and is fighting, the battles that no single producer can ever fight successfully. Cotton prices are down, along with everything else, but they would be farther down if it were not for the cooperative, and the market would doubtless be demoralized. The fruit growers of the west, the cotton farmers of the south, the dairymen of the east—they are showing what loyally supported cooperatives can do in bringing order out of chaos.

WHY NOT?

One hears the remark every day that Governor Roosevelt, when he becomes President, will have to deal with a number of assaults from the internationalists that will keep him busy for a great portion of his time. There will be a renewal, no doubt, and a speeding up of the efforts for the cancellation of our foreign debts. There will be a renewal of efforts to get us into the League of Nations, either by the front door, the side door or the back door. Efforts will be made also to involve Uncle Sam in every political dispute which comes up, whether it be in Manchuria or Patagonia, and in addition the professional pacifists will be busy seeking to dismantle our army and scuttle our navy. In short everything will be done to push the new administration into a program which is designed to aid Europe and foster internationalism at the expense of the United States.

It is sincerely to be hoped that the pitfalls will be avoided. Some of them will be cleverly concealed, however, and there is no doubt that the internationalists are going to give the new administration a lot of worry.

There is one bit of advice, which might be given the President-elect, however—advice that if followed is guaranteed to take some of the pep out of the internationalists. If President-elect Roosevelt wants to avoid being bothered too much with the folks who are busy boosting Europe at the expense of Uncle Sam, we humbly suggest that he make Jim Reed a member of his cabinet as Secretary of State. That will release him from a lot of bother and worry. That one official act alone would impel the internationalists to dismantle their propaganda machines, and quietly fold their tents and fade away. The average mouse no more industriously shuns the family cat than the average internationalist would avoid Jim Reed as Secretary of State. The Missouri statesman has many good qualities for the job but perhaps the antipathy which the internationalists would have for him is the best of all. We doubt very much whether Governor Roosevelt will take this tip. But he might go farther and do worse, and he probably will.

WHAT HERRIOT SAID

A few months ago certain French financiers were boasting of the fact that France was financially the strongest nation in the world. Great Britain and a half dozen smaller and less powerful nations were off the gold standard. The French boasted of their great hoards of gold buried in safety vaults under the city. There was a raid on the American dollar and it was confidently announced in Paris by so-called financial experts that France was the one safe and stable nation and that pretty soon she would be the only one remaining on the gold standard.

Now all has changed, on the surface at least. France still maintains her hoard of gold but now her parliament complainingly announces that the nation is unable to make a payment of nineteen million dollars on the French debt to America.

It seems therefore that the condition of the French finances depends on whether the nation is advertising for more gold at the expense of less fortunate neighbors or is faced with the necessity of making a payment on a debt which she has acknowledged that she owes.

To prove that this is true one has to go no further than to quote from the words of Premier Herriot himself, uttered in the recent debate in the French parliament. M. Herriot announced that he was being overthrown because he was trying to defend the honor of the signature of his country. Continuing he said:

"England and Italy will pay. Belgium invokes her incapacity to pay. But the world knows that France cannot claim she is incapable of paying $30,000,000. Peace, world freedom, law and order oblige France to maintain her honor with Great Britain and the United States. If France disrespects her own signature what will Germany do?"

These are the words not of a bill collector but of the man who was at the time head of the nation which owes the money. No further evidence of the justice of the American position could be asked.

We have heard of one Nebraska farmer who annual two dollar subscription in corn but the offered to pay the editor of the county paper his editor didn't have any place to store that much grain.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank F. Litschett

Word comes from Albany to the effect that the Democrats will lose no time in starting to rebuild an effective party organization. Shortly after the New Year, it is said, Chairman Farley will journey to Washington to make plans and extend the work of the Democratic National Committee. The dispatches continue that both the President-elect Roosevelt and Mr. Farley are convinced that with the proper sort of organization the Democratic party can hold much of the sweeping gains it made in the recent election, mostly, of course, in Republican states like Iowa and Michigan.

This once more brings to mind the popular fallacy that it is political machinery which wins political campaigns. Yet the truth is that such machinery plays a minor part in the result, especially in a campaign like the one through which we have just passed. It is necessary of course to have political organization and well supplemented political publicity. But at the same time it must be admitted that Mr. Farley's organization played a minor part in bringing about the election of Mr. Roosevelt in November.

If the Democrats under President Roosevelt want to retain the sweeping gains they have made in Republican territory, there is only one way they can do it, and that is to restore prosperity to the American people. If they do this and can convince the people that there policies brought about the return to normalcy, then they have a chance to retain power until such time as factional differences disrupt party lines again. But if the promises they made in the last campaign are not fulfilled, if they do not restore prosperity, then a dozen chairmen in Washington and an equal number of efficient Charley Michelsons sending out publicity will not be availing.

So while it is right and proper for the Democrats to revamp their organization at Washington and start their publicity all over again as they did after the 1928 election, let them not forget that the only way to keep on winning is to do what they promised to do in the 1932 campaign. It is a large sized order but it must be accomplished if the party is to retain control. If they do so their machine may run smoothly and their publicity run true. But if they don't the engine will start knocking and the news releases will sound like wails of anguish by the time the next election rolls around.

ADEQUATE DEFENSE ASSURES PEACE

Adequate national defense assures national peace in the opinion of Rev. Herman L. Turner, who is the chaplain of the 167th infantry, of the Alabama National Guard. In an interesting article on the subject in the current issue of the National Republic, Major Turner says in part:

"We are living in an age of paradoxes. Half of the world's gold is in the banks of America and yet we have bread lines and soup counters; the people are ragged because we have raised too much cotton here in the South; the people are homeless because we have built too many homes; the people are hungry because we have just gathered the greatest crop in years, and they are jobless because they are willing to work; while much discussion prevails about world peace, every reader of current events recognizes that there is much high tension in our international life.

"The question of disarmament is occupying the front page of the press and is uppermost in the minds of the people, especially so since the Geneva Conference is to meet next month. There are two types of patriots: the militarist and the sincere pacifist. Both are patriots but they differ in their methods.

"'What is a militarist?' asks Dr. William Lindsay Young, in 'Mustard Gas or Mustard Seed'. A rabid pacifist would describe a militarist after this fashion—a pugnacious sort of fellow, strutting around in uniform, with medals strewn on his puffed chest; a sword dangling at his side and in quest of a battle, saying, let us have war—we can lick any nation on the face of the earth. We want to make the earth run red with the enemy's blood! Obviously that picture is grotesque, and just as ridiculous as it is false. Militarists are men who love their country and despise war. Probably there is no man in the United States today who is more anxious to maintain peace with other nations than an outstanding militarist such as General John J. Pershing. Many of our military leaders are conscientious and avowed followers of Jesus Christ, and active in the work of supporting the church.

"What is a pacifist? Should you ask a 100 per cent militarist who is as ill informed and rabid as the pacifist, he would say that a pacifist is—a round shouldered, pigeon breasted, water eyed, spineless sort of a slacker who wants to enjoy the privileges of his country but who will not share in protecting them. He is one who would not defend his wife's honor or his mother's good name. Such a picture of sincere pacifists is overdrawn. They, too, are men who love their country and have the best interest of their fellowmen at heart.

"I repeat that both the sincere pacifist and the sincere militarist are patriots—both love their country and want the best. Let us have peace is the cry of both groups. If they both want a warless world wherein do they differ? They differ in methods of reaching the goal. The militarist says that peace is to be had by national security with adequate defense. The pacifist says the way to peace is by the processes of reason based upon mutual confidence and good will.

"I am quite sure that we all believe in the ideal of peace, but while that ideal is being achieved, we must see the actuality of things as they are. A budget for national defense is essential for internal protection, to guard our borders, and be ready to overcome any outside power."

From The Sentinel Files

Thirty Years Ago

Hon. R. W. Paddock will leave Sunday for Lansing to begin his legislative duties as representative from Charlevoix County.

The Beaver Island Lumber Co., of St. James, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $75,000. This is the company which is planning extensive operations in timber on the island, even to the extent of building a railroad six miles in length.

Petoskey Daily News: Monday morning's southbound Pere Marquette freight seems to have been especially unlucky.

In preparing to make up the train in the morning the engine ran amuck from the turntable thus delaying her departure until about 10 o'clock. The train had reached a point several rods this side of the Charlevoix station when happening onto a broken frog eleven cars of the train were derailed and piled in various attitudes on and around the tracks.

Forty Years Ago

Our Churches

A Review of the History of the First M. E. Church of Charlevoix.

The church history of Charlevoix reaches back to a period which, in the annals of the town, is almost pre-historic. Before Charlevoix was known as a village, the banner of the cross was planted here by that grand old pioneer of Christian work, the M. E. Church.

In the summer of 1867 Rev. A. J. Sensabaugh organized the first class on what is known as the Charlevoix Circuit. Mr. Sensabaugh was at the time, station in mission work at Antrim City. The organization took place at A. D. Brady's home in Marion (then known as Barnard) and Jas. Clark was appointed as class leader. The following names composed the class: Joseph Clark, Eliza Clark, A. D. Brady, Martha Brady, Chas. Hogan, Jane Hogan, William Clark and Geo. Clark. This work was then known as the "Antrim Circuit," which extended from Antrim to "Pine River". Rev. Mr. Sensabaugh therefore, stands upon Methodist records as the pioneer preacher of that denomination in this part of the Lord's vineyard.

In the fall of the same year, Charlevoix was made the head of a circuit and Rev. J. Gulick was appointed as the first preacher in charge. Mr. Gulick therefore was the earliest resident pastor on the Charlevoix charge. Rev. V. G. Boynton was then Presiding Elder of the District.

The work of the pastor was then one which carried with it all the deprivations, toil and discouragements of pioneer church-work. Mr. Gulick, a portion of the time, was compelled to add to his income by clerking in the store of A. Fox & Co. The old settlers will remember the zeal and fortitude which characterized the ministry of Bro. Gulick. The society had already secured the lots upon which their church and parsonage now stands.

The records state that a satisfactory degree of prosperity attended Mr. Gulick's labors. The first quarterly conference was organized Oct. 20, 1867. The following members of the conference appears on the church record of that date: Samuel Horton (exhorter), Isaac Pierce, A. D. Brady, Wm. Clark, S. H. Seeley, N. Clark and included the present elder and pastor At this conference trustees were appointed, and steps taken toward providing a home for the pastor. The following were the first trustees: S. H. Seeley, A. D. Brady, Jas. Clark. In 1868 Rev. J. Gulick, the pastor, loaned the society $250, with which, in addition to the amount raised by subscription, the old parsonage was built.

On the first day of January, 1868 a class was organized in Charlevoix, with a membership of 17, Isaac Pierce, leader. The following names appear: D. H. Pierce, James Headley, Mary Headley, C. A. C. Gulick, Jennie Miller, Joseph Dixon, Lottie Stockman, Luna Green, Maggie Cotter, Ella Miller, Mrs. Shepard, Mary Dougherty, Joseph Willis, Margaret Willis. But five of these resided in the village.

As a result of extra meetings held at the Brady appointment during January and February, 1868, the membership was increased to forty-one. Notwithstanding the wide scope of territory covered, the Charlevoix charge prospered under Mr. Gulick's labors in his two years' pastorate.

In the fall of 1869, Rev. A. J. Wheeler came to the Charlevoix circuit as a "supply." During the winter a class of 16 was organized at Horton's on Pine Lake, but this and the Barnard class, the record says, did not prosper. We remember Mr. Wheeler as a young man, well meaning, but not calculated to be a successful pioneer pastor. His two years pastorate was not attended with spiritual or temporal growth to the extent desired by the little flock.

In the fall of 1871, Rev. Wright Barrett was appointed to the charge. The class then, numbered but twelve full members and three probationers, but the Barnard class was greatly revived, and 28 names added to the roll. Mr. Barrett remained here but one year.

In 1872, Rev. Mark Browning of the Norwood charge, was appointed to supply the work, and preached here once in four weeks. Bro. Browning's work for that year, while but a "supply," stands upon the records of the society as fruitful of results in the work of building up the temporal affairs, and implanting courage in the hearts of the struggling flock. By his efforts the mortgage on the parsonage with accumulated interest, amounting to about $400 was paid, and the mortgage discharged.

The annual conference of 1872 appointed Rev. G. N. Cole but recently a graduate of Albion college, to the Charlevoix charge. The membership was then twenty-four, divided as follows: Barnard, 12; Charlevoix, 6; Horton's, 6. In the fall and spring of 1872-3, repairs to the amount of $65 were made on the parsonage. During the winter 16 names were added to the Barnard Class, and the work also otherwise prospered.

In 1873, Rev. Mr. Cole was returned to the charge. In February, 1874 a class of twenty-five was organized at Birch in the Pine Lake charge. Here years the services of the Charlevoix Society was held in the little old school house standing on the site now occupied by the sash and prase factory, and the successor of that "temple of learning" later destroyed by fire. During the winter of 1873-4 protracted meetings were held in this village, and thirty names were added to the church membership.

During the following summer a movement was inaugurated for the erection of a house of worship. The foundation was laid, and by August, 1874, the corner stone was laid by Rev. J. W. Miller, presiding elder.

Rev. Mr. Cole was returned that fall for the third year. Although the church membership increased somewhat during that year, no progress was made in church building, owing to the stringency of the times. But the society congratulated itself upon being free from debt. The pastor closes up his year with the following entry upon the church record: "It is with joy and satisfaction that we are able to state at the close of our three years of labor in this part of the Master's vineyard that they have been years of rich experiences of glorious victories and abiding peace with God and all the people."

During the years 1875-6, Rev. Wm. L. Tilden was the pastor in charge. During these years, the charge prospered spiritually and temporally. The membership increased largely, and the church edifice was completed, but not sufficiently on the interior to permit of occupancy.

In the fall of 1877, Rev. B. H. Whitman was appointed to the charge. During that fall and winter the church edifice was completed, and in the spring of 1878 the society dedicated it, Rev. W. L. Tilden, A previous pastor preaching the dedicatory sermon. The presiding elder was present, and congratulated the church upon the possession of a commodious place of worship and home for their pastor, and without a dollar of debt upon either. Mr. Whitman's three years of labor here were most satisfactory to the society and to the community, and he retired with the good will of all. The annual conference of 1880 sent Rev. Mr. McIlwee to preach here. He remained but one year, but under his ministration the present parsonage was erected.

In 1881, the new pastor was Rev. Grover Daniels, (since deceased.) He occupied the pulpit two years and was a faithful and devoted pastor and Christian gentleman.

Rev. J. T. Iddings followed and for three years this upright Christian minister and grand man preached from the M. E. pulpit. No pastor ever lived nearer the hearts of his people, and few men possessed in a larger degree the essentials qualifies of a successful Christian leader.

Following him for three years came Rev. W. H. McCartney, a superannuate of a New York conference, a preacher of large ability and power. He still occupies a superannuate relation with the New York conference and is in business here.

Rev. D. O. Ball was the next pastor and preached here one year.

Rev. G. S. Barnes, a clergyman of large experience and a gentleman of culture followed by two years' service, most acceptably to the church.

The present pastor, Rev. David Engle, has already endeared himself to his charge and evidences are not wanting that his ministration will be fruitful of results.

The society has a valuable property in the heart of the village and enjoy the prestige of being the pioneer Christian Society in Charlevoix County.

Fifty Years Ago

Nicholl's sawmill is in operation.

The Charlevoix, Ironton and East Jordan telegraph line will be in operation Monday.

The Charlevoix Cornet Band were out on the street on Christmas, playing in various parts of the town, and it has been remarked that the boys made pretty good music.

The Congregational Sunday School, on Monday evening, had a pleasant time at the school house, a large and well loaded Christmas tree being the attraction. The attendance of the older ones was large, and the occasion is spoken of as a success.

The amazing rapidity with which our young people are dropping off from single blessedness is a cause for a corresponding rapid falling off in the stock of cigars in Charlevoix. This time Capt. Oscar Smith "set em up" to the boys, the bride being Miss Sarah Thompson, daughter of Warren D. Thompson, of Marion. Our congratulations. Rev. G. Daniels performed the ceremony.

The most successful and enjoyable event in the history of Masonry in Charlevoix was the installation and banquet in the hall of Charlevoix Lodge, No. 282, F. & A. M., on Wednesday evening last. The day was the greatest of all Masonic holidays—the Festival of St. John the Evangelist. After the installation of the newly elected officers, which was performed by Past Master Hon. E. R. Green, assisted by Past Master Hon. Archibald Buttars, the center of the floor was cleared and as if by magic, a twenty-four foot table appeared laden with the products of the largers of some of the best cooks in Charlevoix. The Stewards and their assistants served the guests at table and the larger number who could not be seated, with hot coffee and the large variety of good things, amid a most happy and jovial good feeling. After all had partaken of the viands to their utmost capacity an "exposo" of Masonry, from Peck's son, was read from the "East", causing a quarter of an hour of uproarous and healthy laughter. Over a hushel of eatables were left, and distributed among poor families.

The crowd was the largest that ever assembled in the Masonic Hall—over one hundred invited guests being present.

Sixty Years Ago

Apologetic—Christmas last Wednesday. Vacated editorial chair for short respite from labor. Three days in country. Too much turkey. Returned home late in the week. Poor paper this issue.

The Lecture—As we stated last week, Rev. G. L. Cole, of this village, will deliver his lecture, "Life Motives" at the school house on Tuesday evening next. The plan that has been adopted warrants a large audience and we hope to see the room crowded. No admission fee will be charged, but a collection will be taken up for the hell fund. Let every person come prepared to give liberally toward this enterprise, and next season we shall hear the musical clang of a bell from the belfry of our school house.

SCHOOL NOTES

During the early part of January the Charlevoix High School will be honored with three speakers. Dr. C. B. Moffat who will speak on nutrition and immunity, Dr. F. F. M.M. Iain on "Are you going to have rheumatism?" and Dr. C. J. Winder will speak on dental hygiene.

"Bethlehem and the Christmas Story"

By Robert Wood

Bethlehem, a small town in Judea is the birthplace of Jesus. This town still contains much to help us visualize the first Christmas. The narrow winding street, and lanes are cobble stone paved. The old homes, vine yards, olive yards, terraced gardens, and customs tell as much about the Christmas story.

The town lies at the top of a hill Except for a few Moslem neighbors its one-thousand inhabitans are all Christians and live together in peace. The people of Bethlehem are thrifty and industrious. All of the main streets of Bethlehem lead to the market square in front of the church of the Nativity. This is one of the oldest existing churches. The best authorities agree that it stands on or near the place of the first Christmas. The entrance to the church is so small that one must stoop very low to get in. It is closed by a heavy iron studded door. The interior of the church is very simple. There are double rows of pink pillars which are supposed to have been brought from the ruins of the temple of Jerusalem.

Around the walls are scattered patches of gold and colored mosaics. Below the transept elsewise, part cave and part masonry, is supposed to be the birthplace of Jesus. A silver lustered to the flagstone of the floor marks the place where the birth of Jesus was supposed to have been. Across the room is an altar where the cradle is thought to have stood. These half cave dwellings are still in daily use.

The "Well of the Magi" is supposed to be the place where the three wise men stopped to water their camels on the way to Bethlehem. The shepherds still watch over their flocks by night just as they did at the birth of Christ.

Sunday School, 12:15.
Mid-week Service, Thurs. at 7:30.
Ironton—
Morning Worship, 10:00.
Sunday School, 11:00.

We will celebrate the Lord's supper Sunday morning at the Ironton church at the 11:00 o'clock service. The subject for the meditation will be in keeping with the New Year and the communion service.

Beginning Sunday, January 8 we will commence our series on the Teachings of Jesus that was interrupted several weeks ago. That series was proving very interesting and helpful and we hope we will be able to complete it without further interruption.

We will say that the community program given in the high school auditorium on Thursday before Christmas will go down in our memory as one of the best we have witnessed. It was not only interesting but no serious minded person could go away without a renewed sense of the meaning of Christmas. Everyone who took part is to be congratulated and the community should congratulate it self because it has Mrs. Stelter who gives herself so completely to put out one such a production.

NATION'S LAW MAKERS SEEN AS HARD WORKERS

OUTLINING legislative procedure, Robert V. Fleming, President of the National Bank, Washington D. C., gave the recent convention of the American Bankers Association a clear picture of the difficulties and problems confronting the lawmakers. Mr. Fleming said in part:

"The most important part of organization of the two branches of congress is election of standing committees. There are 34 standing committees in the Senate and 46 in the House. These are the workshops of Congress and the real work of lawmaking is done in committee Rooms.

"The task of assigning the 180,000,000 people to a membership on the 81 odd years approximately 3,000 bills are introduced annually in the two houses, truly a small percentage do become law. But this goes to weight the committee assignments as anything has been regarded rejected out and then considered on the floor.

"Lawmaking involves about 80% of hard and unrewarding work and about 10% of pressure. Few enjoy as much as we do and are as diligent as we in matters of sound and constructive legislation. Few individuals in any business or profession work harder or longer hours than the members of the legislative committees during a session. I have great sympathy for the committees of Congress whose assignments exceed and vital attention to every thing of legislation a which they can be interested. From my personal observation this extremely and conscientiously endeavor to do all that is humanly possible.

Public Hearings

"When a bill is introduced referred to committee and printed the next step, if it is a matter of considerable importance, is to conduct a public hearing. The committee makes an effort to listen to anyone who wishes to be heard either for or against a measure, although witnesses are frequently limited as to time. Members of the cabinet and other officers of the administrative departments of the three branches usually testify on matters in which they are interested and furnish the committee information by way of opinion or otherwise. In this way the Administration takes a prominent part in shaping legislation.

"Due to pressure of work and the fact that it is impossible for members of Congress to be technical experts on every subject of legislation the committees are inclined to give considerable to the merits of arguments presented in testimony and the recommendations of the cabinet and other officials. It is therefore plainly desirable, both from the standpoint of Congress as well as those affected by proposed legislation, that the latter have an opportunity to discuss frankly the effects of such legislation.

"It's sometimes essentials stand the technicalities of legislation, but when we observe organized minorities endeavoring to force class legislation through one House it is a comfort to know such measures may be eaten in the meshes of technical procedure in the other and there suffer what is termed automatic asphyxiation."

A Country Editor Looks at Banking

"With rents failing and unpaid, real estate does not possess a happy future. Nor does the owner of farm fully protected bonds feel any happier, with a knock-of three going wrong. A lot of folks very carefully invested in preferred and common stocks in the finest companies in the world and have seen them fall to perilously a result of what they paid for them and are still blonds at all. Some folks kept their money in savings accounts in banks and some banks have closed and left them high and dry. But the situation is worth looking at very carefully.

"In government, nationally, most banks that closed were really solvent but for frozen assets and popular credits. Gradually the closed banks are coming out from under and depositors to even 100 cents will get at least 50 per cent of their savings. That's worth of course, nobody likes to lose half of what they can scrimped and sacrificed and saved. But when you hoard and stick the roll of bills in a coffee pot or under a mattress some pilgrim's coupon slips and burns your feet till you tell him to take it and welcome.

"And what about the great majority of banks that weathered the storm, met all comers and are doing business as usual, carefully and conservatively, but safely? What about the savings in those banks? They are a full 100 per cent today and they are the only ones we know of at 100 per cent anywhere. They are in solid and done a good well managed bank is still the best place in all the world for money or savings. Right now in Ohio the banks pay the taxes on all stocks and pay their depositors not interest on their savings. We can't think, right now, of many other investments that are a bank as safe as a savings account in a solid bank. Why, even a savings account in a closed bank is actually worth more today than most stocks."

Returns to Ann Arbor

Paul Sloan, after spending his Christmas vacation with his parents here, returns to Ann Arbor and his student work at the U. of M. today, via the motor route, accompanied by his father, H. F. Sloan, Sr., who will make a short stay in the University City.

Francis Lynde

Francis Lynde is one of American prolific authors, but he has never been accused of writing "pot boilers" since 1899, when his first book was published, he has just about every novel published in the front rank of "best sellers," and his popularity has increased with each new story.

Mr. Lynde started out to be a railroad man, and succeeded in being a good one so long as he stayed on the job. As a result some of his stories have a railroad background, but that is not true of his "Black Box of Silence", which is to be our next serial treat for our readers, and which we know every reader will enjoy.

The public remember especially such stories as "The Grafters," "Empire Builders," "Trust for Love", "The Honorable Senator Stagbottle", "The Real Man," "The girl, a horse and a dog," to mention only a few of Mr Lynde's many successes.

We urge that you watch with the first chapter of "The Black Box of Silence," and know this story on sight. It will not be necessary to urge you to continue reading it. It is a gripping story.

"TEMPTATION"
By J. K. Swipes

Ever since the first creation
Man's had to buck against temptation
It didn't take old Satan long
To get Mother Eve to going wrong
And when she did with Nick embark
Why Adam was an easy mark.
Since then temptation habit springs
Has lasted for the hidden things.
There are many men of many kinds,
And many faults of many kinds,
While some the world pronounces tough
Are simply diamonds in the rough—
While other men, considered pious,
Walk in paths extremely bias.
Some are tempted it is plain,
To rob a bank or wreck a train;
Others with souls congealed,
To the murderous tempter yield.
Some one (by temptation set)
That youth-destroying cigarette,
While others the vile tempter chase
And get in whiskey's strong embrace.
Temptation with some men is rife
To make love to their neighbor's wife
While some behind a temperance screen,
Take choral, cocaine or morphine.
Thus it seems the tempter's plan
To test the nerve of every man.
We have good laws now and then
We heard the tempter in his den;
But there are people so erratic
They want a law that's automatic.
For all these faults there is a law
On which all injured folks may draw
Yet when the temperance microbes hit 'em
They pull for laws ad infinitum.
In making laws we find that many
Are never satisfied with any;
Shall neighbor A to B declare
What he shall eat or drink or wear?
Shall A be a self-appointed Judge
For those who take a little budge?
Those who pose as a free sample
Of all that's good and choice and ample
To take the other fellow 'round
Of temptation's battle ground,
Will find perhaps, they have been dreaming
Or done some consummate-ate scheming.
Whiskey has been drank by man
Ever since the world began.
Jim Nasby, fresh from the flood,
Could have nipped the evil in the bud
Yet his ark had hardly rested
Before he had its grapes invented;
And now some over klin-dried folks
Don't care if everybody chokes.
A habit that's been nursed so long
Is growing on some pretty strong.
And, if it takes as long to quite it
As it has to get it,
Generations yet unborn
Will hob-nob with John Barleycorn

A LIFE SAVER

It's so easy to be fresh
When the Merry Christmas rush
Comes along with all its jollity and cheer.

Just a little every week,
Never miss it, so to speak
But it's working day and night throughout the year.

When December rolls around,
And the snow is on the ground,
What about my Christmas giving—
there's the rub.

Then you open up your mail,
Find your Christmas Savings Sale,
Do you wonder that I love my Christmas Club?

GEORGE W. BEEMAN SERIOUSLY INJURED

PINNED UNDER CAR 2 HOURS

IN PARALYZED CONDITION

Will Be Taken To Ann Arbor Hospital By Airplane

Information received here on Tuesday was to the effect that Mr. George W. Beeman, well known Charlevoix resident, was in the Newberry hospital where he was taken for treatment following an automobile accident that happened early Monday evening between Newberry and St. Ignace near Moran as he was returning from Petoskey to Newberry after spending New Years day with Petoskey friends.

From the information received here it is understood that the car in which Mr. Beeman was riding overturned pinning him beneath the machine and he was found by passers-by some two hours later.

Examination at the hospital revealed that Mr. Beeman's injuries were serious but just how serious has not been determined, while it is probable that they will not be definitely known until a further examination is made at the state hospital, Ann Arbor, to which institution he is to be removed as soon as his condition will warrant, according to present reports.

That his injuries are serious is evidenced by his paralyzed condition. The principal injury is in the region of his back which from early reports indicated that his back was broken. Later evidence to some extent refutes this report, but that the injury is serious is amply corroborated by surgeons in charge of the case as well as by reports from his Newberry friends.

A report received from Newberry early today (Thursday) is to the effect that arrangements have been made to take Mr. Beeman to Ann Arbor today by shiplane and that Bud Hammond, a friend of Mr. Beeman's at Newberry with his plane ready to make the trip as soon as is advisable. Mr. Robert Bridge, cashier at the County Bank, with whom Mr. Beeman was associated for a term of years, left for Newberry Wednesday accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Albert F. Bridge and, Miss Minnie Cooper, the latter an aunt of Mr. Beeman.

The sympathy expressed for both Mr. Beeman and his mother, Mrs. Adah Beeman, who recently closed her Charlevoix home to be with her son at Newberry during the winter months, is both universal and sincere, with the hope that the injuries sustained are far less serious than are anticipated at this writing.

DON'T MISS THIS BROADCAST JAN. 7 BY LEGION CHIEF

Pronouncement On National Defense Will Be Made

Shall we sink our navy?
Therefore our national guard?
Eliminate all navy reserves?
Have we already passed the point where Europe will listen to our pleas for reduction of armaments?

These and many more vital questions regarding national defense will be answered by Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, in the outstanding address of this administration upon this subject, to be delivered at the annual Sojourners' banquet in Washington, D. C., the evening of Jan. 7.

Thirty minutes of the address will be broadcast over N. B. C. from coast to coast, 10:30 to 11 p. m., Eastern Standard Time. The 10,645 posts of the Legion throughout the country and in some foreign department are preparing for special meetings that evening to be devoted to national defense study and to listen in to their national chief's pronouncement of the Legion program in this regard.

The national commander has announced that the text of his address will be taken from the Bible, a quotation from Luke: "A strong man, well armed, keepeth his palace in peace."

"The American Legion is the thing that is keeping the army and navy in these United States and God giving us power, we are still going to try and keep up the standard of the national defense of 1920," he has declared.

President Hoover has recommended certain vital reductions and it is rumored that basic elements of the national defense act are no wio be destroyed through refusal to appropriate necessary funds on the plea of economy. Mr. Johnson will explain these basic elements and reveal the source of danger to their elimination.

"The concern of the Legion and of all Americans who have the welfare of their country at heart, and the point on which we should interest ourselves, is the direction from which the budget bureau and the committees of congress are approaching reductions in military service expenditures," the national commander points out. "That direction is against the civilian components of our armed forces."

FIRST REPORT MADE ON SALE OF CHRISTMAS SEALS

Summ , Shows $167.18 Received from Charlevoix Co.

Summaries on the 1932 sale of Christmas seals, compiled by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, show a total of $167.18 received up to December 31 in Charlevoix County.

"In view of the times, a truly remarkable response has been made to the Christmas Seal sale," Tuberculosis Association officials acknowledge. "Letters accompanying remittances reflect the denials families made to buy this year their usual quota of seals.

NEW SHERIFF TAKES OVER DUTIES IN HIS OFFICE

Announces the Appointments Of New Deputies

Sheriff Ikens, succeeding Henry M. Steimel as sheriff, assumed the duties of his new position with the opening of the new year and is now on duty at his office, from which he announces as members of his new force the following:

Under Sheriff, Henry M. Steimel, Boyne City; Chief Deputy, Joseph Moore, Charlevoix; Deputy Sheriff, Samuel Rogers, East Jordan; Deputy Sheriff, Everett Cole, Beaver Island and Fred DeNise, Boyne Falls.

DEMOCRATS IN STATE OFFICES

Political House-Cleaning Program Starts 1933

With the opening of 1933 general political house-cleaning was the order of the day in Lansing. In this procedure Republicans walked out and Democrats walked in, taking possession of all state offices with the exception of that of Secretary of State, Hon. Frank D. Fitzgerald retaining that office, thereby succeeding to that position and the only republican elected to state office at the general election held last November.

Nor was the house-cleaning program confined to state offices in Lansing. The victory for the Democratic party carried the state both as to congressional representatives and members of the State Legislature as well as county officials in many of Michigan's eighty-three counties. In this Charlevoix county with its heavy Republican majority elected the entire Republican nominees but by reduced majorities, a condition prevailing in the state as a whole.

But few changes were made in the official force at the Charlevoix County Court house, two new officials assume their duties January 1st. Mr. Floyd Thens succeeding to position of Sheriff and Arthur L. Fitch who succeeds Rollie L. Lewis as prosecuting attorney.

MAIL SERVICE BY THE AIR ROUTE IS ESTABLISHED

Haul R. Schneider Takes Over Transportation Work

Mail service via the air route between Charlevoix and St. James was established Monday by Haul R. Scneider who was recently awarded a contract for the winter months.

For some time the freighter Rambler carried the mail over this route, this following the laying up of the S. S. Redfell, mail ship during the season of navication under a contract awarded to Captain James H. Gallagher.

The Rambler continues to make this port and unless there is a decided change in weather conditions will continue as a freighter over the route for the balance of the winter.

The Seth Parker Club will meet in the Community Room Tuesday evening, Jan. 10 from 7:30 to 8:30. All interested persons are cordially invited.

Mrs. N. H. Roderick and little daughter Betsy Jane have been guests of her parents Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Myers during the holiday season.

50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

FORMER LOCAL RESIDENTS

Mr. and Mrs. John Shapton Left Here 25 Years Ago

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Shapton was celebrated last Sunday at a dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Foster A. Shapton.

Mr. and Mrs. Shapton were married at Charlevoix, Michigan, and removed to this city 25 years ago where they have since resided. They are the parents of Mrs. H. J. Means, of Seattle, Miss Sadie B. Shapton, Mr. John C. Shapton and Mr. Foster A. C. Shapton. They have the following grandchildren: John, Robert and Donald, children of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Shapton, and Harry Means, Jr., of Seattle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Means. The children and grandchildren were all present for the anniversary dinner.

The dinner table was decorated with a miniature wedding party and gold candelabrum, bearing gold candles lighted at the table. The cloth was of ecru lace. Golden colored pom pom chrysanthemums were used in the rooms, and golden bells, large and small, added to the decorative motif.

Mr. and Mrs. Shapton were the recipients of many tokens of congratulation and remembrance in honor of the occasion.

Mr. Shapton is a brother of Mr. R. S. Shapton and in early years resided on a farm in Norwood township. For 14 years just prior to going to Aberdeen Washington, where he now resides and where the golden wedding anniversary was celebrated December 13, last, he was foreman of lumbering operations for Mr. W. F. Porter at East Jordan. Mrs. Shapton prior to the wedding of one half century ago was Miss Margaret Cameron, a sister of the late Alexander (Sandy) Cameron. The write up given above is taken from a Seattle newspaper.

CRIBBAGE CONTEST BEGINS BETWEEN MASONS AND I.O.O.F.

First Session Monday Evening Finds Masons Ahead

Members of the local F. & A. M. and I.O.O.F. fraternities engaged in the first of a series of ten cribbage games at I.O.O.F. Temple Monday evening, January 2. The series is to be played Monday evenings of each week excepting the third Monday of each month, this being left open in order that contestants can attend other local functions.

Thirty-four players equally divided as to fraternity membership engaged in the contest Monday evening. At the close of the first of the series the Masons were leading by 166 points.

Mr. Leo Carey is captain of the Masonic team and Mr. John Curtis holds a like position for the Odd Fellows.

High score was awarded to Mr. W. C. Bellinger who made 963 points for the Masons. In this he just nosed out Mr. Fred Bergmann for Odd Fellows, who came throug with 962 points to his credit.

ROOF FIRE CALLS DEPARTMENT TO THE HALLETT RESIDENCE

Prompt Action Soon Brings It Under Control

Members of the fire department responded to an alarm turned in from the Jos J. Hallett residence on Belvedere Avenue Tuesday evening where a fire near the chimney on the roof was in progress.

Prompt action on the part of the firemen soon had the blaze under control, with but a moderate amount of damage to the residence, such as can be repaired without heavy expense to the owner

FIRE CALLS OUT DEPARTMENT

Charles Marshall Meets With Injury From Ladder

The first fire of the new year called the fire department to the home of Mr. Joseph Seymour on East Upright Avenue, January 1st at 5 o'clock in the morning, at which time the fire had gained considerable headway.

Some fifteen minutes later the alarm again sounded a call for more assistance to help combat the flames. The fire was finally placed under control but not until extensive damage had been caused to both the residence and household equipment.

The residence was a comparatively modern home occupied by two families, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour occupying the upper floor of the building and the lower floor by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Floyd. Both families lost a considerable part of their household equipment, while Mr. Seymour being the owner of the residence, means with a heavier loss.

Charles Marshall who has charge of the chemical truck was quite seriously injured during the progress of the fire when his head came in contact with one of the ladders with considerable force cutting a bad gash over his eye, such as necessitated medical and surgical attention, requiring several stitches to properly care for the wound. The wound will cause Mr. Marshall some annoyance temporarily. Fortunately the eye escaped injury.

Resident There Since 1899; Is Well Known Here

Mr. Lew Briggs, well known in Charlevoix, a resident of St. James since 1899, passed away Monday, January 2nd, age 76

During the years of his residence on Beaver Island Mr. Briggs was engaged in business for the first few years in a livery business. With the advent of the automobiles he established a taxi service which he continued until the time of his death

He is survived by two sons and two daughters, of the latter, one, Miss Goldie Briggs lives in Detroit and Mrs. Delphus Peltiere, Frankfort. Mrs. Peltiere arrived here early last Monday from Frankfort and continued to St. James by airplane making the trip upon receiving information of her father's condition.

R. H. Weller of Bay township was a Charlevoix business visitor Tuesday and Wednesday.

NEW LOAN TO BE AVAIABLE TO CO. FARMERS

County Loan Committee Has Been Appointed

The machinery has already been set up in the county to make loans to farmers. The loans will bear 5 per cent interest and may extend for a maximum period of 12 months with shorter periods recommended.

There are several types of loans available but the one no doubt that will be largely taken advantage of is commonly known as the "Barnyard" loan. Under this loan a farmer may borrow money to increase his herd of cattle, to purchase feed with which to more adequately balance up his farm program; and secure a loan to pay current bills and other indebtedness.

However, it is necessary that each applicant have adequate security to cover the loan. In the majority of cases it will be necessary to give a chattel mortgage on all live stock and in case this is not sufficient, you may be asked to give a mortgage on your machinery and equipment and even the real estate itself.

If you are interested in this proposition you should see the nearest committee man or your county Agricultural Agent, and secure full details concerning this loan. The County Committee consists of Walter G. Cornell, East Jordan, Chairman, George Meggison, Charlevoix, Dan Swanson, East Jordan, Dan Herrington, Boyne Falls, Wesley Dilworth, Boyne City.

On the loan application it is necessary for each applicant to state his financial condition fully and to have a good knowledge of his farm income, especially the live stock sales and receipts.

You will recall that the government Seed Loan which was available last year, was for the purpose of loaning money to purchase seed, fertilizer, spraying materials and fuel for the work units, while this loan has a broader interpretation, and can be used for more purposes than was the case of the seed loan.

The committee announces that applications will be made out from January 1, 1933 until each final date as the committee later announces.

Co. Agr. Agt.

NEW YEAR'S EVE BASKETBALL GAME WAS CANCELLED

Polar Bears To Play Harbor Springs Here Tonight

The basketball game scheduled for the Polar Bears and the Midland Terrors on New Year's Eve was cancelled, due to the inability of the two teams to come to a financial agreement.

However, the Polar Bears will meet Harbor Springs on the local court tonight, January 5. This promises to be a good game, with the Polar Bears slight favorites, but Harbor may win. The two second teams will play the preliminary and anything may happen in this.

PRICES REDUCED

All malt extracts, Big Master, Blatz, Stroh's and Blue Ribbon reduced 10c per can until supply is exhausted. Also all 25c pipes now priced at 20c and all 50c pipes going at 35c.

RECREATION PLACE

LEGION STARTS NEW YEAR OFF

Over 12 Cords of Two Foot Wood Is The Result

Members of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, turned New Year's Day to good account. Some fifteen of them sallied forth Monday with axes and cross-cut saws to cut wood on the city property, just south of Coulter's between Highway 66 and the Lake. Assisted by a car and trailer, a team and wagon and two extra horses to drag out the wood the "lumberjacks" (most of whom were quite amateurish) succeeded in cutting some 12 cords of 2 foot stuff for the Legion ball fund pile. The gang finished their job Tuesday by hauling up the logs and most of it is now in the basement of the hall. A good day's work.

Arrangements are now perfected for the Stag card party on Tuesday evening, January 10th, and the "hard-luck" dance on Friday the fatal 13th. A good attendance is expected at both affairs, as—to far as known now there are no conflicting events scheduled for those dates.

The Legion, all over the nation, is commencing to feel the strong, guiding hand of the new national commander, Louis A. Johnson. He has already dealt several paralyzing "haymakers" to "NEL" and the gang of "plotter", admirals and other "brass-hats" who would like to see the disabled veteran thrown back upon the tender mercies(?) of local government and their own income taxes thereby reduced, and will probably hand 'em a few more before he is through. They are not fond of some of the things he is proposing, such as the scandalous government mail contract of which Archibald Roosevelt, one of the "big boys" in the NEL organization—is said to have been the chief beneficiary.

Saturday evening, at 10:30 E. S. T. over a coast to coast broadcast as the NBC network the national commander will give a thirty minute address on the subject of National Defense and the part the Legion is playing in preserving our country from becoming absolutely defenseless. If you are in doubt as to the value of Legion activities don't fail to listen to this broadcast.

GLENN S. SEE DRIVES TO DETROIT WITH AMBULANCE

Was Resident of Petoskey; Funeral Service Held Today

Undertaker Glenn S. See drove his ambulance to Detroit Tuesday afternoon and returned Wednesday morning, the trip being made to transfer the body of Mr. Frank Coveyou to his former home in Petoskey.

Mr. Coveyou with his wife and daughter went to Detroit several weeks ago where they contemplated remaining for the winter.

He was an uncle of Mrs. Glenn S. See of this city. Funeral service will be held at Petoskey this forenoon.

Celebrate Birthdays

Two Charlevoix residents who celebrated their birthday anniversaries during the Christmas holidays just were not on the list published in the Sentinel of December 29 were Mr. Frank G. Hines whose anniversary was December 29 and Miss Minnie Payton December 30.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

While this is a good season for the motorist to determine that he will drive more carefully during 1933, it is also a proper time for the pedestrian to resolve that he will avoid those errors which in 1931 killed 14,500 walkers and injured nearly 300,000.

The following are a few good resolutions to make for the coming year:

For the City—I will not cross the street diagonally or between intersections.

I will not come from behind parked cars without observing what is before me.

For the country—I will not forget to walk on the left side of the road so that I can face oncoming cars.

I will not cross at a sharp curve or just at the brow of a steep hill where I cannot see what is coming.

THE RAILROADS AND TAXES

No small contributor to the present plight of the railroads is their tax bill. It has grown constantly, during long years of small and declining earnings, until now it is an intolerable burden on the lines and increases the price of all commodities which are shipped by rail.

Between 1900 and 1913 railroad taxes increased 150 per cent—from $48,000,000 to $122,000,000. This was largely offset by increased earnings. In 1913 taxes represented 3.8 per cent of gross revenues and 15.1 per cent of the net. Between 1913 and 1931 taxes took another 150 per cent jump, and in the latter year aggregated $307,000,000—7.3 per cent of the gross and 57.8 per cent of the net.

In the first six months of the current year taxes accounted for 9 per cent of the gross, and gogvernment received 32 per cent more railroad money than the lines had to spend for meeting the interest charges.

A business which has to pay sixty or more per cent of its net in taxes offers little attraction to the investor. It is an industry which cannot find the funds necessary for expansion and improvement. It is an industry which must cut its payroll to the bone, not willingly but because it simply hasn't got the money. When this occurs, in an industry of such great importance as the railroads, every citizen feels the unfortunate result.

There is much talk of a new transportation policy nowadays in which a changed tax policy must be a major factor. Every industry feels the weight of excessive taxation, everyone realizes the need for rigid government economy—and the railroads are in one of the worst positions of all

TAKE THE LONG VIEW

In any discussion of the cooperative movement, the long-time view must be paramount.

Any farmer who expects his cooperative to immediately raise prices, open up his market and bring prosperity back with a bang, is doomed to disappointment. No human agency can do those things overnight. The strength of cooperatives is in that they are carefully and soundly laying the foundation for future prosperity—not boom prosperity, which goes as fast as it comes, but prosperity of a real and permanent nature.

In doing this, the cooperatives must ask members to make temporary sacrifices. It is occasionally possible for the non-cooperative farmer to get a slightly better price for what he sells than the cooperative farmer—but profit of that kind is dangerous indeed. It stems from a well-defined effort to wreck the cooperatives—and again put the farmer where he has only his own puny resources to lean upon.

Better prices, steadier markets, improved living and working conditions for agriculture—these are what cooperation stands for. If they are worth achieving, every good cooperative is worthy of all support and loyalty from the farmers of its territory.

LOOKING SOUTHWARD

As, three-quarters of a century ago, our nation looked to the west for an outlet for its products, so it is today looking southward, toward Latin America.

Here is one of the vastest lands in the world —larger in area than the United States, with almost as much population. Here is a potential outlet for millions of dollars worth of American goods and, as a result, the source of employment for hundreds of thousands of American workmen.

Anything we can do to encourage better understanding between the two hemispheres is thus of economic, as well as social, importance. Latin America has suffered tremendously from the fall of raw material values, as is evidenced by revolutions, wars and frequent changes in government. Today she is passing through a period of chaos—but that she will come out of it is beyond doubt. The stuff of which great and permanent nations are made is within her borders, and that is the important thing.

Raw material prices will not always be depressed. Foreign money will once more flow in to Latin America, in exchange for her coffee, tin, sugar, tobacco, petroleum, etc. Much of that money will find its way into this country, buying automobiles, typewriters, farm implements and other manufactured articles she needs. When that time comes, our Latin American trade will be a vital cog in the economic wheel.

A COMMON CAUSE

The National Board of Fire Underwriters, which has long served the public by its fight in the interest of better fire protection and prevention, has recently inaugurated another activity which is of vital importance.

It has recognized that the greatest problem confronting the nation today is reduction of taxes. Consequently, it is to run a series of advertisements in national magazines emphasizing this need. It has likewise prepared a booklet entitled "Taxes—You Pay Them All," which will be sent to anyone requesting it.

The National Board's booklet emphasizes a vital and often-forgotten fact—that you don't have to go to a courthouse to pay taxes. You pay them wherever you are, and for almost everything you do—from eating a sandwich to smoking a cigarette. If you make $50 a week, nearly $2.50 of it goes to the tax collector, though you may never see him. He takes it out of your electric bill, your rent, the cost of operating your car, your food, your entertainment—he is never far away.

It is to be hoped that more basic industries will adopt programs of this nature, in the interest of the public at large. Too much attention cannot be paid to the tax problem—too much effort cannot be given to solving it. Taxes MUST come down—and they will come down when the bulk of our citizens unite in the common cause.

OLD-AGE SECURITY

A writer in the American Mercury recently observed that there is one way of eliminating the danger of poverty-stricken old age—and a way which does not require government panaceas with added taxes, bureaus and thousands more public employes. That way is by taking advantage of the annuity plan, which has long been offered by life insurance companies here and abroad.

There are two means of buying annuities—by the payment of a single premium, which is, of course, a means pursued only by persons of some wealth, and by the payment of small monthly or annual premiums out of income. Almost any wage earner can afford an annuity in some amount, even though it be small. It is the finest form of savings, in that the principal cannot be touched until the age stipulated in the tract has been reached—and then a definite monthly income is paid to the policyholder as long as he lives.

The importance of the annuity is tragically demonstrated by the spectacle of millions of aged men and women without incomes of any kind. Many of these once had money, many others once held well paid positions. Today they are the wards of the state, or must depend for existence upon charity. The annuity would have saved them as, in the future, it will save those who take advantage of it now, when they are able to earn a good living and spare a few dollars a month for the sake of old-age security.

THE NEXT TIME

The attitude of France concerning its American debts has undoubtedly grown out of a spirit of antagonism in that country against the United States. Evidently France speaks for several Nations in serving formal notice on the United States that these Europeans expect their debts to be forgiven. It is a hard blow to the millions of Americans who went the limit for the Europeans at a time when they faced destruction in a great war.

France has done worse than default on money matters, since that government has defaulted on its signature. The event should be remembered in view of the fact that the great military establishment that is being perpetuated by France is likely to involve that Nation in a future war. Perhaps the United States will have sense enough to stay out, next time!

LET THEM DEFAULT

Falling adjustment, the United States appears to be confronted with the question of whether it shall cancel the debts owed by other nations or permit them to default. In such an alternative, the latter would be better. It appears now as if the United States may have blundered in going to the defense of the allies. It paid the expenses of its own participation and asked no indemnities. The debts owed to the United States are for loans to the allies. If it comes to forgiving the debts or default on the part of our debtors let them default, and let their defalcation stand as a practical demonstration of the folly and moral wrong of war.—Presbyterian Advance.

Senator McKellar has introduced a bill requiring all Americans going abroad to pay a fee of $5,000 for passport into a country which has defaulted on its debt to Uncle Sam. At that most of them would get more good out of $5,000 donated to Uncle Sam than they would in spending it in Europe.

A noted publicist passes the news along that "angels don't eat." Well they say conditions have been bad everywhere.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

Origin of Public Schools in America

Among the many acts of wisdom of George Washington was to provide a fund for the teaching of orphans and children whose parents were unable to defray their expenses in school. This is the building still in use at Alexandria Virginia, and the fund was supplied from the dividends of certain bank stock which General Washington owned. In this act of Washington is found the origin of the public school system in America.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

With his usual faculty for getting at the core of a situation, Will H. Hays, in a recent address at the annual dinner of the Indiana State Bar Association, at Indianapolis, with the terse topic "Where Do We Go From Here," pointed out the importance played in our present difficulties by the ever increasing cost of government, through activities which we could well do without. In part, Mr. Hays said:

"The problem of mounting taxes—city, county, state and federal—is of primary importance. Before we can basically rid our situation, we need to tear down the superstructure of unnecessary taxation that municipal, state and federal governments have erected; and means that we must drastically alter the superstructure of bureaucracy which municipal, state and federal governments have erected on the taxpayers back. * * *

"Figures published during the past year tell the story more eloquently for the present period. In 1920, the cost of government, we are told, was 14 billion and interest charges on debts, commercial, and otherwise, was six billion dollars. Time and again the warning has been sounded against the dangers of mounting government costs imposed by legislation which assumed an inexhaustible source of revenue for the United States Treasury.

"In 1932 the cost of government and interest charges remain the same while our national income has shrank 41 per cent. This makes a drop of more than 50 per cent in the amount of money we actually have and can use above operating costs, as compared with the year of 1929.

"The road to tax reluction is the elimination of governmental waste. It is for government to remain as far as possible in the business of government, rather than in the business of industry or finance, through further experiments in our bureaucratic control."

There can be no successful controverting of the statement quoted from the former Postmaster General. The question of the reduction of cost of government, through more efficient government, and a curtailing of unnecessary activity and unnecessary government is vital to our future welfare. We have now reached the point where budgets, national, state and local, can no longer be balanced by increased taxation. The tax burden now has our people and our industry at the breaking point. Prices of commodities, and wages, are approaching the pre-war level and profits have in many cases disappeared. Rents are falling—too slowly in many instances. If we are to get on a solid foundation and start to build our prosperity over again, it will be necessary that our taxes be brought back to fit the changed conditions of the present. This can only be done by governmental economy. New sources of taxation are disappearing. Only rigid economy and governmental efficiency will save the day, in nation, state, city, town and village.

"BUY AMERICAN"

Officials of the importers association are beginning to sit up and take notice of the way the "Buy America" movement is growing over the United States. The default of certain European nations on their debts has given impetus to the movement.

The importer-propagandists gave vent to the old bogey that was raised during the fight on the Smoot-Hawley tariff—to the effect that if we participate as a nation in a movement to buy goods made only in America foreign countries will retaliate. The import-guild fails to take cognizance of the fact that the movement of buying at home started in Europe and that in Great Britain it has grown so airtight that newspapers, magazines and billboards are full of it.

British subjects are spending their vacations on the English channel instead of the Mediterranean coast, and wherever possible are buying only British produced goods. The movement over there has grown to fine proportions. The other day the newspapers carried a cable dispatch that tobasco sauce has been placed on the blacklist because it has to be imported. Tobasco—that is, real tobasco—comes principally from Louisiana, and it is to be expected that the Honorable Huey Long will take due note of this attack on his soverign state.

But why shouldn't British people spend their money at home and why shouldn't people in America do the same thing? The argument about 10 per cent of our production that goes abroad being more important than the ninety per cent we use at home is growing a little thin. If the American industries could have the differences between what they sold at home in 1929 and what they sold in 1932 most of them would be willing to forget all about exports. But if the wishes of the import hund were followed we would turn over our great home market in the expectancy of getting a market abroad which exists only in the fertile imaginations of the gentlemen who are seeking to get imported goods into America at a profit to themselves.

Let us by all means have foreign trade but let it be built up not at the expense of the American producer. More than fifty per cent of our imports now come to America duty free. This talk about a tariff wall having been built around America is the bunk. Maybe we would be better off if we had such a wall. At any rate the depreciation of foreign currency has destroyed what protection the American producer had, in many lines, and we need some sort of a barrier until the world money is stabilized. To say that this could be brought about by buying abroad and throwing the rest of our labor out of jobs, is a little too thick to go down. Outside of the die-hard theoretical free traders, only one who expected to profit financially by flooding the country with foreign goods would advance it.

A paragraph or two from a recent issue of the soundly American Saturday Evening Post very tersely sums up the situation with regard to the Buy American movement:

"England, France and Germany have their internal dissensions, but when there is an external threat against their trade or their prestige Englishmen line up shoulder to shoulder for England, Frenchmen for France, Germans for Germany. This is as it should be, for it is the plain duty of every man to consider his own fireside and his own country first. European countries are nationalist to the core where their own affairs are concerned, and are internationalists solely for a national advantage. Only a mind of sugar-plum sweetness could arrive at a different conclusion on surveying the European scene. * * *

"America must tighten her lines, not by way of reprisal but for self-protection. Europe has made the game; two can play it. Think American, buy American."

From all sides we read of improvement associations, or boards of trade, organized for local benefit or industrial progress. Is anything heard from Charlevoix? No! All is silent as the tomb! We hear kicks on the taxes, growls about the price of wood, a bit of scandal now and then, and occasionally a word of exhortation from George Van Pelt; but only that and nothing more. Busy? Yes; a frog keeps busy, holding down a lily pad and croaking. But a beaver has more fun by a dam site, in his efforts to improve conditions and accomplish something.

The council may as well begin pulling its wires with the engineers for a job of dredging in the lower channel the coming spring, as work will be absolutely necessary there before the Manitou or Illinois can enter without dragging. The bail should be opened at once and in earnest.

Capt. O. E. Wilbur Acquires Ownership of the Fox Estate, Bridge St. Property

The most important transfer of real estate in Charlevoix for some time occurred yesterday, when Capt. O. E. Wilbur purchased of Mrs. Ella Fox the 165 feet on Bridge street extending from the river to the Sentinel building, including also the thirty feet dock property in the rear of the aforesaid building.

The property may be said to have two frontages—as the rear furnishes the best steamboat docking facilities in Charlevoix harbor. Capt. Wilbur has occupied the property the past eleven years under a lease, which was to run yet fourteen years. His lease also includes the dock front on the Gillick property.

Capt. Wilbur will not tell what price he paid for the property or what his plans are concerning it; but it is more than likely that it will be improved.

STATE PARKS MORE POPULAR EVERY YEAR

The rapidity with which miles of stream and lake shore have been barred to the public through "no trespassing" signs has been perhaps the outstanding reason for the remarkable growth in popularity of state parks in Michigan, according to P. J. Hoffmaster, superintendent of state parks in submitting a report of the activities of his organization for the past year.

The value of water privileges has always been high, and the state, in developing its parks system has attempted to acquire as much lake and stream frontage as possible, the report said. However, during the past few years as clubs and individuals have purchased large blocks of frontage and have banned the public, in many instances the public areas have become inadequate thru overcrowding.

The recent decision of the Supreme Court relative to reicted lands, while definitely settling title to shore property, may mean more water privileges removed from the public and an added burden on the parks.

Since the beginning of the state parks service in 1919 the state has acquired for park purposes 36,506 acres of land in 81 sites. While some of the earlier parks were without water frontage, all sites now acquired must have some water facilities.

Within two years 18,000,000 people of which nearly 500,000 occupied camps, visited the parks. The trend of these visitors has been to parks having bathing beaches or other water facilities.

Parks development in the future should be toward the augmenting of water facilities for public use and the acquisition of as much desirable shore property as financially possible, it was stated.

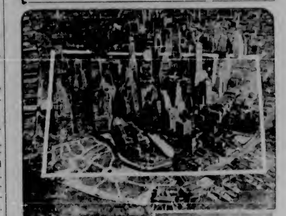
SUBSTANCE SIZE OF A PEA LUBRICATES MILE-SQUARE AREA



A REVOLUTIONARY new automotive lubricating fluid has been perfected which was on its chief ingredient a highly lubricating substance (not fiber substance) so finely subdivided that a volume the size of a pea would cover a mile-square surface with a film only one-millionth of an inch thick.

The startling statement was made by Dr. H. A. Allen, head of the chemistry department of the University of North Dakota and state-oil chemist, at Grand Forks who is a nationally recognized authority on oils following the exhaustive tests with the fluid.

The fluid which was used in preparing the mixture of both an automobile motor oil and a gear lubricant was perfected by W. N. Holden, Grand Forks newspaper man, of La Crosse, Wis.

"The amazing colloidal particles of the substance, when introduced into a motor by either the motor fluid or the regular crankcase oil, are attracted to the surfaces of the cylinders and cylinders, forming a very thin but smooth and uniform lubricating film that thoroughly fills the loose pores and crevasses of the metal," Dr. Allen said. "As this lubricator may enter every pore in exceptionally rounding by friction, density of the colloidal particles in the oil attracts. These particles, which, earth, pass through the coarse filters, carry electrical charges that cause to resist and repel even them from entering into large or masses and uniting and so to carry on their the fluid does continue doing more to prevent settling and to keep the oil in better condition."

Dr. Allen said that "this new lubricator may be used in any motor with any kind of oil, but for best results it should be used in connection with the substance in a new motor or one that has been thoroughly cleaned with a flushing oil."

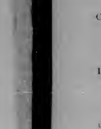
THE TAX MENACE A GROWING CRISIS

By FRANCIS H. SISSON
President American Bankers Association



F. H. SISSON

No danger, economic or social, more seriously concerns our life, liberty and prosperity than the rising tide of taxes which threatens to engulf us. This is not simply a problem of the depression. It has been developing for many years, growing more intense all the time. The depression merely brought it to a climax. Unless drastic steps are taken to reverse this trend the problem will not end with the depression. It will continue to watch down and retard progress for an indefinite period.

In 1913, county, state and nation the cost of spending has run on it is estimated that in the United States the total cost of all governments is nearly five times what it was before the World War. Many localities have been brought to the verge of bankruptcy by their expenditures, while many have modified their extravagance only after they had become heavily burdened and hampered their progress for years to come.

The total cost of Federal, state and local governments in the United States is estimated at more than seventeen billions a day. Based on national income in 1930, this represents about one-fifth of the total income of our people, or about $150 for every individual in the nation. Total taxes in 1931 are estimated to have taken more than 12 per cent of the national income. It is a reflection for serious thought on the part of the people when one day's income out of every four or five must be contributed to the maintenance of government machinery.

Reductions Possible

United States Government expenditures were reduced one hundred and forty million dollars during the first quarter of the current fiscal year. The recent action of bankers in calling a halt to extravagant expenditures of New York City as unreasonable no doubt will reduce the cost of government in that municipality materially, which is second in its expenditures to only the federal government. No state in the Union, in fact, no other government in this hemisphere, spends half as much as this one city. These savings in federal and municipal costs are only the beginning of a movement sweeping throughout the country, if we are to be led out of depression into prosperity.

Unless the people can be made to realize that misery for all permanently expenditures can come only from their own pockets as taxpayers, cutting the glowing efforts to hold down government and general business, there is no assurance that the movement for lower economic conditions similar to those that have so seriously handicapped our industries. The question is not primarily one of merely putting government economy or wiping budgets, but rather of curtailing governmental activities for which we cannot afford to pay.

The idea that money for these needless extravagances can be raised by following the slogan "Soak the rich" is utterly ridiculous, for such a policy will silently exterminate "the rich" and eliminate sources of revenue. It is also important to realize that corporate taxation in this country is so great due to withstand the effects of indefinite advances in taxes. Current figures and reports reveal that fact beyond shadow of doubt. The tax base must be broadened and it therefore seems likely that Congress, with its responsibility for so-called relief, will at least as a temporary measure be forced to some rational condition in the nation's finance.

Deposit 'Guarantee' Fails of Purpose

LOS ANGELES—While the idea of the guarantee of bank deposits by some legally enforced plan seems to appeal to many people who give it casual thought, the fact is that it has not only failed in every instance in the eight states where the experiment was tried, but actually produced unsound banking and increased the number of failures. It was declared by the recent convention of the American Bankers Association held here.

"Guaranty of bank deposits carries in its train such serious appeals to people in general on casual consideration," the declaration said. "However, its principles are unsound and its practice is unworkable. It has been tried in eight States and it has not only failed in every case, but it has resulted in increasing the number of bank failures. Taking prosperity unsound banks to make up losses of sound banks is not only unfair and unreasonable, but it weakens the whole banking structure. Again, guaranty of deposits places the incompetent and reckless banker on a par with the conservative and able and conservative banker, which encourages unsound banking at the expense of sound banking. We are therefore opposed to the passage of any law carrying a guaranty of bank deposits and believe that it is against the interest of the people of the United States to develop any such system."

NATION'S LAW MAKERS SEEN AS HARD WORKERS

OUTLINING legislative procedure, Robert V. Fleming, President Riggs National Bank, Washington, D. C., says the recent convention of the American Bankers Association a description of the difficulties and problems confronting the law-makers. Mr. Fleming said in part:

"The most important part of organization of the two branches of congress is election of standing committees. There are 34 standing committees in the Senate and 46 in the House. These are the workshops of Congress and the real work of lawmaking is done in committee Rooms.

"The task of legislating for 123,000,000 people is a tremendous one. Of recent years approximately 20,000 bills are introduced annually in the two houses. Only a small percentage become law, but they must be weighed in committee, accepted or rejected, perhaps amended, reported out, and then considered on the floor.

"Lawmaking involves about 95% of hard and unspectacular work and about 5% of oratory. Few tasks appear so easy and are so difficult as enactment of sound and satisfactory legislation. Few individuals in any line of activity work harder or longer hours than the chairmen of the important committees during a session. I have great sympathy for the members of Congress whose compliments expend undivided attention to every piece of legislation in which they may be interested. From my personal observation, they earnestly and conscientiously endeavor to do all that is humanly possible.

Public Hearings

"When a bill is introduced, referred to committee and printed, the next step, if it is a measure of considerable importance, is to conduct a public hearing. The committee makes an effort to notify anyone who cares to be heard either for or against a measure, although witnesses are frequently thrust on us by some Members of the Cabinet and other officials of the administrative departments of the Government usually testify on measures in which they are interested and furnish the committee information in executive session or otherwise. In this way the Administration takes a prominent part in enacting legislation.

"Time is pressure of work and the fact that it is impossible for members of Congress to be technical experts on every subject of legislation, the committees are inclined to give consideration to the merits of arguments presented in testimony and the recommendations of the Cabinet and other officials. It is therefore highly desirable both from the standpoint of Congress as well as those affected by proposed legislation, that the latter have an opportunity to discuss frankly the effect of such legislation.

"We sometimes complain about the technicalities of legislation, but when we observe organized minorities endeavoring to force class legislation through one House it is a comfort to know such measures may be caught in the meshes of technical procedure in the other and there suffer what is termed automatic asphyxiation."

A Country Editor Looks at Banking

"With rents falling and unpaid, real estate does not present a happy picture here. Nor does the owner of carefully selected bonds feel any happier, with a bunch of them going wrong. A lot of folks very carefully invested in preferred and common stocks in the finest companies in the world and have seen these fall to perhaps a tenth of what they paid for them, and on dividends as all. Some folks kept their money in savings accounts in banks, and some banks have closed and left them high and dry. But the sit-aition is slowly righting at very carefully

"The government authority, most banks that closed were really solvent but for frozen assets and proper liquidity. Gradually the closed banks are coming out, time under and the positions in even bad cases will get at least 50 per cent of their savings. That's tough of course, nobody likes to lose half of what they have scrimped and sacrificed and saved. But when you board and stay, the roll of bills in a coffee pot or under a mattress, sometimes only comes along and burns your feet till you tell 'em to take it and welcome.

"And what about the great majority of banks that weathered the storm, met all comers and are doing business as usual, carefully and conservatively run? Safe? What about the savings in those banks? They are a full 100 per cent today—and they are the only thing we know of at 100 per cent anywhere. After all is said and done, a good, well managed bank is still the best place in all the world for money or savings. Right now in this the banks pay the taxes on all savings and pay their depositors not interest on their savings. We can't think just now, of many other investments that are a tenth as safe as a savings account in a solid bank. Why, even a savings account in a closed bank is actually worth more today than most stocks."

SEED PRODUCTION, MARKETING COURSE OFFERED AT M.S.C.

Announcement has been recently received from the Michigan State College that a one week's short course in Seed production and Marketing will be offered the week of January 23rd to 27th.

This short course should be of interest to any farmer who wants to know the latest findings along the line of good cultural practices. During the last three years a large number of those taking the course have been farmers who were interested in better cultural practices than in seed production. Many methods that are practiced by a good grower can be properly followed by any farmer.

The expense will indeed be nominal. In fact, there will be no charge for lectures, no books to purchase, and rooms can be secured in East Lansing at the rate of 50c per night. Board also is very inexpensive. It would seem that the total expense of the complete week should not be over $7.50.

If interested, your County Agricultural Agent has the complete outline of the topics to be discussed.

GEORGE O'BRIEN IS PERFECT IN FILM "GOLDEN WEST"

Western Star Gives Best Performance of Career

George O'Brien gives one of the best performances of his career in Zane Grey's "The Golden West," his latest outdoor romance produced by Fox Films, which is at the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday.

O'Brien appears in a dual role, a space of 20 years in the action covering the opportunity.

The colorful story is based on a family feud that involves an aristocratic Southern family and disrupts the romance of a boy and girl. Circumstances compels the youth to go west where he marries a girl he meets on the plains, and a son is born to them. When the child is three years old, Indians attack the little settlement where they have located and the father and mother are slain. The Indians take the child and he grows up among them, finally to become their leader.

In a railroad construction camp he meets the daughter of his father's enthrall, and, although he is forced to kidnap her, she finally falls in love with him. The ancient feud once more manifests itself, but peace is finally restored and romance continues to a happy ending.

Janet Chandler, who plays the leading feminine role, is beautiful and talented. The masked ball, the wagon train and Indian sequences are well done and a delightful music theme, which runs throughout the entire picture, adds much to their effectiveness.

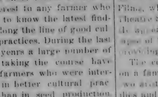
Francis Lynde



Francis Lynde is one of America's prolific authors, but he has never been more successful writing "Red Rock" than in 1926, when his first book was published, he has now after years of labor and sacrificed and served. But when you board and stay, the roll of bills in a coffee pot or under a mattress, sometimes only comes along and burns your feet till you tell 'em to take it and welcome.

"And what about the great majority of banks that weathered the storm, met all comers and are doing business as usual, carefully and conservatively run? Safe? What about the savings in those banks? They are a full 100 per cent today—and they are the only thing we know of at 100 per cent anywhere. POLAR BEARS BEAT HARBOR

Locals Start New String With Kipke in Line-Up

With Ray Kipke back in the line-up at guard, after being out for the last three games, the Polar Bears staged a nice third quarter rally to defeat the Harbor Springs Merchants on the local basketball floor last Thursday night. They had previously won five games in a row, only to lose the sixth to Alma College.

Davenport and Ikens shared scoring honors, each making 10 points. Brown made 8, and Kipke 2. Cooper also started the game. Three five played continuously for three and one-half quarters. Then, with the Polar Bears nicely ahead, Manager Todd sent in Beaudoin and H. Davenport for A. Davenport and Kipke. Harbor Springs was ahead 3 to 1 in the early stages of the game, but Charlevoix held 6 to 5 at the quarter. The lead see-sawed during the second quarter, but the Bears led 16 to 14 at the half, and were never threatened thereafter. The score was 24 to 15 at the finish of the third quarter, as the locals made 8 points while holding Harbor to 1. The final score was 39 to 19.

Brotherston of Boyne City, refereed and Smith and Newman kept the time and score respectively.

Quinn and Francis were tied for high scoring honors for the visitors with 6 apiece. Hill had 5 and McBride 2. Linehan also started. During the second half Johnson and Taylor were inserted to replace McBride and Linehan. The two teams will probably meet at Harbor Sugs on February 2, in order for Harbor to get revenge, if possible. The Polar Bears had a game scheduled last night with the Manistee Iron Works at Manistee. A report will be given next week. They are also trying to get games with Boyne City.

The Cubs played the Harbor second team in the preliminary to the main game last Thursday. For Charlevoix, the opening lineup was Bergman and Kendrie, Supervaw, McCall and Foster did not work so well. With the score at 8 to 1 in favor of Harbor Springs Todd sent in Bergman and then Charlevoix started playing better. This was in the middle of the second quarter. The Cubs' defense tightened up right away, with Bergman leaping high into the air many times to intercept passes. Neither team scored for the remainder of that quarter Harbor made one in the third round. Both teams scored a few in the last period, with the locals making five points and the visitors four. Supervaw made 3 points, Foster 2, and Yemmens 1. The final score was Harbor Clerks 13, Charlevoix Cubs 6. The Cubs looked teamwork, but so did the visitors. It was their long shots that made the difference.

"THEY CALL IT SIN" WITH LORETTA YOUNG COMING TO PALACE

Drama and Comedy of the Gay Life in New York City

New York with its up-to-the minute swirl of gay life is the sparkling background against which is etched the drama and comedy of "They Call It Sin", the First National picture that comes to the Palace Theater Saturday and Sunday.

The blending of drama, comedy, and music is made possible by the story which takes its characters behind the scenes of musical comedy production, night club and pent-house party life, and portrays the love of three men for one girl who, in turn, loves a man she cannot have.

This picture marks the second important role in a carefully chosen story in a series destined to raise Loretta Young to first-rank stellar rating. The promise of great ability which was demonstrated in her earlier films has come to maturity in her most recent picture, "Life Begins" and now in the film "They Call It Sin."

To add still further popular appeal, Miss Young is teamed with George Brent, whose recent and rapid rise to stardom is a Hollywood sensation. This bit of casting is a result of the approval which met the teaming of these two young players in "Week End Marriage."

An important role played by Una Merkle provides the picture with fine comedy touches delivered in that young comedienne's unique style.

16 AGRICULTURAL MEETINGS WILL COVER ENTIRE COUNTY

Discussions Will Include Livestock, Soils and Crops

A rather extensive series of meetings is scheduled for this county for the next two weeks beginning January 16th and continuing until January 26th. The discussions will be very similar to the series last winter at which time the subjects closely associated with soils and crops were studied.

Farmers today are finding themselves in a precarious position. Their incomes have been decreased at least 55 per cent, and what to do about it is the big problem. This certainly means that emergency measures are necessary in order to meet the new readjustment program on every farm.

At these meetings the county agent will have considerable material and data in regard to today's agricultural situation, taxation problems, government aid to farmers, and many other subjects of deep interest at the present time. It is a well known fact that a good herd of cows, or other livestock, on every farm is almost essential. Again the income from dairying has shrunken considerably. This obviously brings up questions regarding feeding and management. How to adjust your feeding program and other practices will be discussed to a large extent.

All farmers and others interested in farming are cordially urged to attend the nearest of the following meetings:

Tuesday, January 17, Boyne

DEATH SHOCKS LOCAL CITIZENS

There comes a time in the course of human events when we are called to perform certain duties, certain obligations, certain tasks, the undertaking of which appears hard and is difficult to accomplish as well as painful to satisfactorily and completely fulfil. Such is the condition of the subject that confronts the writer as he pens this article.

We may be able to review our past with a high degree of complacency, but not one of us can contemplate the transition from life known to the unknown without emotion. Our past is comprehensible, our lives understandable. Death is a mystery. Following death all is unobservable.

From day to day we give scant heed to notices of those formerly living at a distance who passed on. Occasionally like notices come to our attention from near by to which we give a passing thought. Again the blow falls in our own neighborhood, possibly in the family circle. It is then we give pause, meditate over the past and endeavor to pierce the future.

Today we are in perfect health! Tomorrow? Who can give the answer? Not one, no not one!

At this moment we are healthy mortal beings. In another instant we may be robed in immortality. Such is the way of human life.

Monday, January 2, George W. Beeman, 52, until about 9 o'clock p. m., as near as can be estimated, was in the prime of health, in full possession of his mental faculties, in the prime of young manhood, and with friends innumerable, with every appearance of a happy prosperous future. As late as 8 o'clock on that evening he left St. Ignace to drive to Newberry where he held the position of cashier in a bank. He was a good driver, thoroughly familiar with the highway over which he was driving, having covered the route many times. Secure in the thought of skill as a driver and the knowledge that his car was in perfect condition, without thought of impending danger he proceeded on his course to a point near Moran, it was at that point an accident happened and tragedy unexpected and unforeseen took its place in the ill-fated night drive.

There was a curve in the highway covered with ice. As the machine ran upon the slippery ice the car skidded. Some part of the mechanism failed. The automobile turned over pinning Mr. Beeman underneath from which position he was unable to extricate himself and not until two hours later was he released by others who were passing along the route.

An ambulance was called and Mr. Beeman was placed in the Newberry hospital for treatment, some five hours after the accident, where effort was made by the hospital staff to save his life. With their efforts fruitless he was taken by airplane to Ann Arbor Thursday. Men skilled in the medical and surgical profession engaged in efforts to ameliorate his conditions but all efforts proved hopeless and a few hours later, conscious until the last moment of life, he passed away.

Soon after the passing Charlevoix friends were notified and arrangements made to transfer the body from Ann Arbor to Charlevoix by Glenn S. See and upon receipt of this information Mrs. Beeman had died Robert Bridge accompanied by his mother, Mrs. A. F. Bridge, drove to Ann Arbor Thursday night and returned with Mrs. Beeman the following day.

Practically the entire lifetime of Mr. Beeman was spent in Charlevoix. It was here he received his early education and later at the University of Michigan where he completed his commercial studies. Soon thereafter he accepted a position with the Charlevoix County bank and as assistant cashier most acceptably both with the bank, his co-workers and the public, filled that position for about eight years retiring from the Charlevoix institution in 1922 to take a position as manager for the Charlevoix County Bank at Boyne City, a branch of the same concern. Later, in the early fall of 1932 he retired as manager of the Boyne City branch and accepted a position as cashier of the State Bank at Newberry, this terminating with his tragic death January 6th.

In his dealings with the public he was courteous, pleasant and honest. In social affairs affable, popular and a gentleman. He was a lover of the great out-of-doors life and spent much of his leisure time during the season, of the favorite trout stream or with his gun in the search of birds or other game and in this he was a true sportsman.

He was a member of the local fraternities F. and A. M. and K. of P. and the funeral service held Sunday afternoon at the Methodist Church with the pastor Rev. W. W. Hurd officiating was attended in a body by each organization thereby showing their respects for their brother member. A large number of local people and many from distant points, Boyne City, East Jordan, Petoskey, Big Rapids, and Newberry attended the service.

He is survived by his mother and other more distant relatives. Interment at Brookside.

TAXES REDUCED IN THIS COUNTY FOR HIGHWAY PURPOSES

Cut of Over Fifty Per Cent Is Report From Lansing

Taxes for highway purposes in Charlevoix County have been reduced 53.60 per cent in the past year, according to statistics compiled by the State Highway Department.

Economies instituted by the county and township officials and this has adopted by the legislature, made the reduction possible.

In 1931 the total county tax was $45,097.69 but this was reduced to $20,927.24 in the last year. This includes reductions in County, township and Covert Road levies.

The total reduction of local highway taxes in the state amounted to 68.5 per cent.

I. O. O. F. TAKES LEAD FROM MASONS IN CRIBBAGE SERIES

Win Second Evening of Play Leading by 404 Points

In the second of a series of cribbage games arranged between the I. O. O. F. and F. and A. M. fraternities, played Monday night at the Masonic temple the Odd Fellows took a decided lead in the contest by scoring 20,677 points to their opponents 19,507 thereby winning the evening play by 570 points.

In the game played one week earlier the Masons took the lead with an advantage in their favor of 166 points Now at the conclusion of the second game of the series the I. O. O. F. take a commanding lead of 404 points.

The high honors of the evening also went to the I. O. O. F. with the credit going to Mr. James McGeagh who had a perfect score of 968 points with Captain Frank Partridge a close second with 962 points to his credit and making this contribution to the total F and A M. Score.

Eleven tables were engaged in the evenings play for the series which will be continued at the I. O. O. F. temple Monday evening, January 23, when the third game will claim the attention of cribbage fans, at which time it behooves the F and A. M. players to be in their best form otherwise the I. O. O. F. lead will be again increased.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH HOLDS 50TH ANNUAL MEETING

Church Veterans Are Honored And Officers Elected

The church held its 50th annual meeting Tuesday evening. The meeting marked the close of 32 years of continuous service as clerk for Mrs. Horatio Hart. Mrs. Harsha refused to accept another term because she felt she could not do justice to the work. A committee was appointed to prepare suitable resolutions that would convey to Mrs. Harsha the appreciation for the church for her long and useful service.

Two other veterans were honored with the distinction of emeritus. Mr. W. H. Miller who has served the church for years either as a deacon or deacon and Mrs. Mary Shores who for many years has been a leader among the ladies organizations. This honor does not remove these members from the official family but relieves them of active responsibility. A change is being made in our constitution in order that Mr. A. F. Bridge, a veteran also among the deacons, may be retained in office.

The following officers were elected:

Clerk, Mrs. E. L. Dawson; treasurer, Mrs. R. F. Sloan; trustees, N. Tilbotson, D. H. Wood; deacons, E. L. Dawson, A. F. Bridge; deaconesses, Mrs. M. Rife, Mrs. Eva McDonald.

STATE'S FUTURE IN HANDS OF FEW

Legislature Faces Greatest Responsibility Since Statehood

By Elton R. Eaton
Lansing, Mich.—The destinies of a great state, the fate of over five millions of people, and the future of the school boys and girls of Michigan today is placed entirely in the hands of less than one hundred and fifty men who are gathered in the state capitol to consider problems growing out of a world-wide depression and years of after war crises against living.

These men comprise the members of the state legislature and the state officials—men that have come to Lansing as representatives or senators of your farms, your village stores and offices. At the time this statehood was granted to Michigan has a legislature had thrust upon it such far reaching responsibilities and problems as this one.

One of the early questions they must consider is the one concerning the advisability of asking the people of Michigan to call a constitutional convention. Governor William Comstock in his brief message to the legislature recommended that the legislature place this question before the people at the April election. No one in the legislature has yet had the time to go over the merits of the proposal but the suggestion is one bound to provide plenty of debate. Governor Comstock did not enumerate the changes he believed should be made in the constitution with the exception of a general suggestion that because of conditions brot about by the depression, there is need of a complete re-vamping of the state governmental system. It is to be assumed that some of these changes include the establishment of the township form of government, the possible consolidation of counties, the elimination of several county and state offices as well as a new system of taxation.

With the house and senate organizations completed, the governor's message in hand all preliminary work finished, the legislature this week is down to serious business. Before it at the present time are a large number of bills that were prepared by the legislative commission appointed during the last session of the old legislature to recommend ways that state government expenses can be cut and reorganized to give better service to the people.

The appointment of this commission was the direct result of a series of articles prepared and published in Michigan weekly newspapers by Rep. Virgil C. Brown, the newspaper publisher set out to show to the people of Michigan just where and how its money was being spent and how it could be saved. Former Speaker Fred Ming of the house saw to it that Mr. Brown was a member of the commission that his articles made necessary to appoint. In cooperation with other members of the commission, over six months of diligent study was given to every state department and every state institution.

Before the legislature for their immediate consideration are the scores of bills that Mr. Brown and his committee pre-

THE TIME FOR SUMMING UP

Three years of depression have ended and we can begin to sum up.

Hard times have brought ill winds—but they have also brought some healthful breezes.

Businesses and individuals have been forced to "write down" fictitious valuations and standards. This has naturally caused a great deal of hardship and a long black list of bankruptcies. But real readjustments had to occur to put a sound foundation under family and business life.

Those who expanded and operated on the principle that that which goes up need never come down, and that boom prosperity would continue unabated forever, had to be deflated.

The individual has found that it is possible to live happily and comfortably on a pre-war basis. He has found that the arbiter of wages is what the dollar will buy. He's come down to earth.

These are the "healthful breezes" of depression. The decks have been cleared for action, and the way to recovery is open.

As for the problems of depression, they are still vital and intense. Writing in the Yale Review, Sir Arthur Salter observed that 1933 will be one of the most crucial years in modern history.

The pressing and increasing weight of taxation stifles the capital (industry) of the world, creating unemployment and preventing industrial expansion and the further investment of money.

The burden of armaments, with their drain on national incomes and their constant threat to world peace, grows greater. In every important country the cost of wars, past, present and future, is the major item in the national budget.

The question of foreign trade looms large on the economic horizon. In normal times, foreign sales amount to ten per cent of the gross in this business. Today foreign trade is almost non-existent, due largely to a new and intense spirit of economic nationalism which finds its expression in tariff wars and embargoes. Almost every economist of distinction, here and abroad, stresses the need for revitalizing foreign trade as a factor in the work of recovery. Tied up with this is the problem of silver, which affects the purchasing power of half the world's people. When silver is depressed, as at present, the silver standard countries are unable to buy in the gold standard markets.

The picture at home is undoubtedly more encouraging than the world picture. We have the finest industrial organism in existence—we have the factories and the machines and the farms that are adequate to our needs. Our utilities, our railroads, our oil companies, our insurance institutions, are the harbingers of American progress. They represent honest national assets, as against the fictitious assets we counted on in the boom days. Because the machinery of distribution has slowed, it does not mean that the machinery of production is lacking or faulty.

Our greatest single problem is unemployment. Ten million of our working population is at present out of a job, and its buying has come to a stop. Much of this unemployment is temporary—part of it is the result of machine displacement of labor. Today the foremost industrialists are working towards plans to shorten the working day and the working week, and to provide some means of unemployment insurance that will assure the able and willing worker a livelihood in bad times as well as good. It is difficult to believe that their efforts will end in failure. The weight of taxation, which forces retrenchment, is preventing the employment of many of those now seeking jobs.

This is America at the opening of 1933—a vast and incalculably rich land, which is gradually emerging from depression and entering a new era. It is still a land of promise, as it was in the days of the Argonauts. It has lost nothing that it really possessed. Its earth is still fruitful, its mines are still filled with metals, its factories are ready to make the necessities and luxuries its people want. Its people are conscious, and they still have faith. Its leaders retain those vital qualities—intelligence and vision. America will pull out of the depression, and, from the lessons that depression has taught, it may find a means of preventing both extreme rises and extreme drops in the economic and social cycle, and of creating genuine, permanent and sound prosperity.

Let the people curb the tax bill and the first great step will be taken toward industrial recovery and employment.

"MADE IN AMERICA"

"Made in America" is taking on a new significance. The movement to buy American made goods is said to be growing by leaps and bounds especially in the larger cities. When Great Britain adopted "buy British" as its slogan, it started something that has set Americans to thinking and their thought is that if it is a good thing for Britons to patronize British industry, it may not be a bad thing for Americans to patronize American industry.

It is being rapidly discovered, too, that some of the foreign goods that are flooding our land are just as cheap in quality as they are in price.

Several of America's important corporations with 600,000 on their payrolls have joined a cooperative movement to buy only American goods when these are available in competition with foreign goods. The effort is to be made in the interest of giving jobs to jobless Americans. An educational committee to teach the public the value of buying American goods only when these are available, is to be named, but there should be any great need of education along on this subject. It should be evident to anybody that if he buys, say a chair that is made in Germany, he has given employment to a German instead of an American chair worker; that if he buy a German made chair, most of the money he pays for it will go to Germany, but if he buys an American made chair all the money he pays for it will remain in America.

Americans often have been allured by the statement of a store clerk in response to an article, "But this is imported". The word "imported" carries a certain amount of "class" with it to one class of Americans. But these are being gradually educated to the need of buying American goods if we are to protect our own manufacturers, our own jobs, even. That does not mean to boycott foreign-made goods that are not or cannot be produced in the United States. You cannot demand an American-mined diamond, nor American-grown coffee and tea, of course, nor American silk. But we can and we should demand American steel, American toys, American woolens, American hats and cravats and American foods whenever these are obtainable.

WHERE IS THE IMPETUS TO PROSPERITY?

The lending of money to financial institutions the creation of public works and the providing of adequate charity have not brought back prosperity. We may better face that fact than to hide from it. To be sure, the things we have done in an effort to end the depression have been valuable. They have prevented the situation from becoming worse than it was and is and they have placed up in a position to go forward if the impetus is given, but where is the impetus?

The impetus can only come through a resumption. The eight or ten millions of unemployed would supply that impetus if they had work and wages. And right here we come up against one of the fallacies of argument—that the major cause of our difficulties is overproduction. There cannot be overproduction so long as there is underconsumption and no economist, business leader or statesman would have the hardihood to say that consumption has reached its limit.

There can be no overproduction in this country or in the world at large so long as there is a single person who needs and should have some article that he is unable to buy.

The great obstacle in the way of prosperity's return is the inability to adjust our unfairness that one dollar will be placed in a position to buy the things he needs and should have, and this condition will not improve until some method is found to give employment to those who wish to work and who cannot now find productive labor.

One who can devise a way to get the millions back on their jobs at good wages who are now working occasionally at low wages or not at all, will have solved the entire problem. And it is a problem for America to solve for Americans. We need not worry much about our foreign trade if we can keep all our domestic trade and see to it that American themselves are able to purchase the goods they need and can produce and would produce if given the opportunity.

WHAT EVERY SENATOR OUGHT TO ASK

Before any senator votes to put the United States into the permanent court of international justice, commonly known as the League Court, he should first discover the answer to an important question: Through what channel would the American government deal with the court if it were a member?

The statute of the court gives it jurisdiction over the interpretation of treaties. Under the Constitution of the United States treaties are made by the executive, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Once the interpretation of a treaty was handed over to the League Court how much would the Senate have to say about the fate of the treaty?

The Root protocol now before the Senate declares that the court "shall not, without the consent of the United States, entertain any request for an advisory opinion touching any dispute or question in which the United States has or may claim an interest." Who would give that consent—the President, through the State Department, or the President plus the Senate? Who would decide and say whether the United States has or claims an interest?

The Constitution contains no answer to these questions for the reason that the framers of the constitution never dreamed of such a surrender of sovereignty as is proposed by the proponents of adherence to the League Court. None of the Court propagandists has answered them for the reason that they suggest trouble of the sort that is certain to follow American entry into the court.

But they ought to be answered, if there are answers, before the protocol comes to a vote.—New York Sun.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

COLONIAL LANDMARKS AT JAMESTOWN, VIRGINIA

"And he removed from thence and digged another well." This quotation from Genesis 24-22 aptly applies to this old well from which the new arrivals in America drew their supply of pure water. Nearby are the ruins of the old church, its broken tower marking the way to tragic scenes in Colonial history. Both are now in the keeping of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Is The Eskimo Sorry For Us?

According to a report made by Governor Parks, of Alaska, to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, those Eskimo American citizens who live along the coast of the Arctic Ocean between Bering Strait and Point Barrow, the northernmost tip of the continent, are doing their bit toward alleviating the depression. Their contribution is to toward the relief of their fellow Eskimo or other natives of Alaska but that of white men from the south who have come to live at such places as Ketchikan and Juneau, 2,000 miles down the coast toward Seattle.

These Eskimos have volunteered to supply reindeer free of charge as food for their fellow Alaskans. They have contributed 200 head of reindeer which have been butchered at these points on the Arctic Ocean and are finding their way to the south aboard the government boat, North Star, which is now returning from its last cruise of the season to the far north.

Eskimo land, Governor Parks says, feels the touch of the depression very little. To be sure, prices have fallen off on the furs and reindeer of the north which constitute their chief saleable product. The food that through the ages they have garnered from the northern ocean is, however, as abundant as usual and in addition to it they have inexhaustible supplies of meat and skins from the reindeer herds, which were introduced by the government and which have prospered beyond belief through all this area.

All of which give rise to the speculation as to whether or not the Eskimos do not feel sorry for us in spite of our sky scrapers, our gay white ways, our automobiles and our radios.

They are not bothered by complex problems of production and distribution, surplus, deficit and so on. Production is arranged for them by Providence and the problem of distribution is an easy one. All they have to do is to go and get it. Of course, they don't know anything about Greta Garbo and Robert Montgomery, twin six autos and steam heat, but what you don't know won't hurt you

Just as the Eskimos have felt the depression less than their more civilized brethren, the people in our small agricultural communities, close to the food supply, have suffered less than the men and women who live in the great city where life's problems are more complex.

It has always been the custom of the city dweller to look down on his Main Street brother, although it is to be admitted that good roads, the high powered automobile and the radio have lessened the cultural advantages of living in the city. But in days of depression it is the fellow in the rural community who suffers the least. That may be one reason for the back to the land movement now evident in the United States.

Of course few of us want to become Eskimos but if they do feel just a little sorry for us now we can't blame them. And at any rate it is good to know that they are doing their little bit toward helping. It seems that one touch of depression makes the whole world kin.

Job Insurance Fails

Among the various object lessons that European nations have provided in recent years is the collapse of the ambitious scheme of work insurance in Germany. According to an independent investigation by the National Industrial Conference Board of the United States the system set up in Germany five years ago for mass unemployment relief and insurance has failed completely. Coming at a time when similar projects are being urged in this country the miscarriage of the carefully planned German insurance measure so earnestly supported by both labor and government leaders should be carefully taken into consideration.

Inaugurated in October, '27, German unemployment insurance by March, 1931 had called upon the government for advances that will never be repaid, amounting to $564,000,000. During the remainder of 1931 the drain upon the nations' treasury became so big that its support had to be suspended. Drastic measures of economy were inaugurated by the directors of the insurance fund, but the conference report shows that in spite of all efforts the final collapse of the unemployment insurance plan came in June of this year.

Thus was ended the most extensive experiment in social insurance ever undertaken. Its failure is charged to the fact that depressional unemployment is not an actuarial risk and that unemployment insurance can not be placed on a sound financial basis. The theory of the German plan was similar to those proposed here. Contributions from workers and employers were to provide the funds for unemployment insurance. The original law of 1927 divided the levy of 3 per cent equally between employees and employers. Within two years the assessment was found to be inadequate and successive increases finally raised the levy by 1931 to 6.5 per cent, or more than double the original contributions.

Even the increase of more than 100 per cent in the assessments was not sufficient to meet insurance demands, and while the levy rates were being raised insurance benefits and the duration of benefit periods were both being curtailed. In the manner the heavy losses of the early years were reduced, but the fund was only able to balance its budget by throwing out of the unemployment scheme more than half of the beneficiaries. Those ejected added to the burden of the government dole system, already overtaxed.

Within certain limitations unemployment relief funds established in times of prosperity have definite fields of usefulness. In times of depression, with reduced industrial activity and protracted unemployment such insurance apparently can not be counted upon to support beneficiaries indefinitely in idleness. — Washington Post.

Jas. R. Dixon and family leave next week for Ohio.

The Charlevoix Lumber Co. on Monday opened a lumber camp on the Walker place in South Arm township with Chas Gagnon foreman. The logs will be skidded on the railroad near Ellsworth, brought to Pine Lake by rail, and rafted to the mill. About a half million will be the output of the camp.

The D. M. Ferry Seed Co., of Detroit recently purchased a site on Pine Lake of Mrs. Sweetland, adjoining the old Eaton factory, and will next spring erect a warehouse for the sorting, cleansing and shipping of seed peas. Mr. L. D. Coulter will have charge of the plant.

Norwood Notes

The death of Mr. Hilton takes another of the old settlers of Charlevoix county over the dark river and one who will be missed by a large circle of friends. He settled in the town of Norwood in 1866, and has taken an active part in all the interests of the township from first to last, having almost continually held some township office. Norwood will always miss friend Hilton, especially on election day.

Charlevoix has not, since the days of the Petoskey stage line suffered such a blockade of mails and travel as that of this week. From the time the morning train went south Monday morning, no trains moved either way until Tuesday night. The first train to arrive was at 2 p. m. on that day. During a part of Monday and all day Tuesday, there were six trains stuck at Williamsburg, with two snow plows pounding at the snowdrifts.

Work on the main Bridge Street sewer south of Clinton street, began yesterday morning.

If we had Eg. Carpenter, Morris Stockman and Geo. F Brown here, we would rub their faces in a snow bank, just for pure spite.

At the last regular meeting of the L. T. P. A., the following officers were elected: President, S. M. Rose; vice president, Chas. Noyes; Secretary, R. O'Neill; Treas., P. D. Campbell; Trustee, S. Lynch, Henry Sherman; Conductor, P. Mc Cafferty; Chaplain, E. Small, Tiler, Thos. E. Nowland. The president and vice president will leave Saturday to attend the annual session of the grand lodge. The President reports the local lodge prospering and the membership increasing.

On the evening of Jan. 5th, about sixty friends and neighbors met at the home of Mr and Mrs. Peter Block, at Barnard, to remind them of their silver wedding. They were entirely taken off their feet but Peter was quickly "on his taps" and made each one heartily welcome. All present will fondly remember that night. The way these Hollanders can entain does really "beat the Dutch." After refreshments a beautiful silver tea set was presented as a token of kindes wishes, with the sincere hope that God may grant them as happy a golden wedding.

At the last meeting of the Charlevoix Scotch Club the following officers were elected: President, H. I. McMillan; Vice Pres., Andrew McGill; Bard, W. H. McCartney; Secretary, A. Ross, Treasurer, A. A. Swinton; Pursuivant, Wm. A. Shields; Warder, A. A. McKinnon. On the evening of Jan. 24th, the Club will celebrate Robert Burns birthday by a social at the home of W. H. McCartney.

Now that the steamer Reaver has laid up and Capt. Billy Finucan is expected home from canada, in a week or ten days, meetings of the S. S. S. are expected to be resumed at the old stand. The annual election of officers will occur early in February, at which time tobacco assessments will be made on the members. We are told that Capt. Wilbur insists upon the wood hill being provided for in the same manner, a project that will tend to drive the members to the L. L. P. A. hall, and thus materially impair the moral influence of the S. S. S. meetings. The usual contest for the presidency between Capt. Pete Campbell and Capt. Billy Finucan is expected to stir up things at the first meeting. As there are some serious charges pending against Capt. Pete, it looks as if Capt. Billy would carry off the plum but some talk of a compromise on the editor of this paper is being made among the more respectable members. While the editor in no wise seeks the honor, he is in the hands of his friends and would in the interest of reform accept. One thing is certain—we should, if called to the former place of residence to settle his business and will return the first part of April with his family to make Charlevoix their permanent home. Mr. Jeffries will resume his place in the meat market on his return.

The Board of Supervisors closed their session Wednesday having done nothing of importance except, perhaps, the very commendable appropriation in aid of the South Arm and East Jordan bridge. Mr. Wood of this township, being the mover. No vote was taken on the county seat question, as was predicted by some.

The Charlevoix Florida party was made up and departed for the land of oranges Wednesday. The party comprises M. J. Stockman and wife, Dr. G. W. Crouter and wife, and Egbert Carpenter. They go direct to New Orleans, thence to a point on the coast of Florida where they leave the ladies. From there the gentlemen will take their shotguns and seek the timber and swamps in quest of alligators, bears, chipmunks, gophers and mosquitoes. They will be absent six weeks or two months, and their friends will hear from them through the columns of the Sentinel.

APPLICANTS WHO HAVE TELEPHONES USUALLY GET FIRST CALL

When employers need additional help, they usually take the easiest and quickest way of reaching applicants and former employees —THEY CALL THEM BY TELEPHONE.

Other things being equal, the applicant or former employee who can be reached by telephone usually is the one who gets the job. Just one such call might more than justify the cost of telephone service for months.

The Michigan Senate Elects Hon. Archibald Buttars as its Presiding Officer Pro Tem

A private dispatch to the Sentinel last evening announced the fact that Senator Buttars had been elected President pro tem of the state senate.

This action on the part of that body puts the seal of verity upon all the Sentinel has ever said concerning the rare qualities and superior ability of our respected fellow townsman.

It is a high compliment to a man who has sprung from the humblest walks of life and whose active participation in politics had so recent a beginning.

Senator Buttars has hosts of friends who will heartily rejoice at his preferment among so many distinguished gentlemen.

The editor returned from the seat of war at Lansing Wednesday night.

A BANKER ON THE BONUS

By George C. Call

The following article taken from the December issue of the American Legion Monthly on this much discussed question presents the viewpoint of one well qualified to know:

George C. Call is president and owner of the Call Bond and Mortgage Company and president of the Terminal Realty Corporation, both of Sioux City, Iowa. He was formerly manager of the First National Bank and the Security National Bank of Sioux City, and has been president, vice president or director of many other banks in Iowa. He was a delegate to two Republican National Conventions 1896 (McKinley), and 1916 (Hughes). He was chairman of Greater Sioux City Committee for two terms and has been on its executive committee since it was founded. He was chairman of the Executive committee of Morningside College for ten years. His son, George R. Call, was a second lieutenant in the Signal Corps during the World War and is a Past Adjutant of Monahan Post of The American Legion in Sioux City.

Opponents of the bonus have somehow succeeded in surrounding their side of the argument with an air of sanctity and patriotism. Therefore anyone who favors the immediate payment in cash of the adjusted compensation certificates is supposed to be both unsanctified and unpatriotic. In fact, to listen to the hue and cry of the anti-bonus forces one might well conclude that anyone who favors the bonus is not only mistaken but has practically been caught with his hand in the pants pocket of the Treasurer of the United States.

If I were one of the individuals who would receive the bonus cash, I might hesitate to speak up in its favor, for it is never pleasant to be accused of placing self-interest and love of money ahead of country. Actually I belong to the very class of folks who are most universally opposed to the bonus, who are its bitterest opponents. I am president of a mortgage company in my home city, president of an elevator company, own a good deal of city real estate outright and not mortgaged. So by all the rules I ought to believe that payment of the bonus now would be a great national catastrophe.

I believe nothing of the sort. I believe that the payment of the bonus, in United States currency is the crying need of the times. When I began to agitate the immediate payment of the bonus last winter, in the form provided by the Patman bill in the House, my friends and business associates sincerely that I was a bit cracked. They all adhered to the conventional idea that paying the bonus would plunge this country into financial chaos.

It seems a forceful testimony to the inherent soundness of the idea that, despite this universal opposition and rising doubt in my own mental powers, folks are gradually coming around to agree with me.

Things have progressed to the point in our city where it is actually possible nowadays for a leading business man to advocate in public the immediate payment of the bonus, and still keep his reputation as a sound business man. A surprisingly large number of these naturally conservative people are today preaching the doctrine in our district, and are daily converting more and more people to the true gospel. And I look for this movement to continue, and to gather momentum steadily.

There is no need of going into great detail about the merits of the veterans' claims to the bonus cash. A great many veterans urgently need the money, and the nation has acknowledged the debt by passing the adjusted compensation act. It may be presumed, and I believe is admitted by even the bitterest opponents of the idea, that getting the money would be of considerable help to those service men who need cash. The question, from the standpoint of the nation's welfare, is what effect the immediate payment of the Adjusted Compensation Certificates in full would have on the people at large.

It is on this basis that I advocate immediate payment in cash. No other single method has as yet been proposed would do so much to improve the financial condition of the American people, no other move would give such an impetus to greater general prosperity. As an American I want our people's prosperity restored to a decent level, as a business man I want prosperity as a means to permit all business to earn a profit once more instead of using red ink in the profit and loss account. This the bonus will bring about more quickly and surely than anything else that has so far been suggested.

We have all heard repeatedly during the past three years that depressions follow great wars. To be sure, they have followed the Civil War and the World War, with the panics of 1873 and 1929 as conclusive proof. But to say that such a depression follows a great war is a half-truth. It follows the war but because of the war, but because after each of these wars the financial policy of the nation has been to decrease rapidly the supply of money in circulation. What causes the depression is not war, but artificial shrinkage in currency.

In 1865, the era of the Lincoln shinplaster - greenbacks, this country had through good, active work of the printing presses put $31.18 in circulation for every inhabitant. By 1870 this had been contracted to $20.10—and the panic of '73 followed as a matter of course. In 1896 we had $23.24 in circulation—this was during the depression that followed the panic of '93. At about this time Congress ordered the purchase of 500,000,000 ounces of silver to be held in the United States Treasury, and the issuance of paper money against it. This was inflation, printing press money, exactly what the opponents of paying the bonus are now saying would follow this step. But it broke the back of that depression, and prosperity continued steadily, with only slight temporary recessions, as the volume of money in circulation steadily mounted to $34.84 per capita in 1910.

As a result of the World War the printing presses were started and our money in circulation per capita increased by 1920 to $51.32. Then the Government, through the Federal Reserve Board and the War Finance Corporation, began a forcible decrease in circulation by shrinking credits and forcing payment of loans. We had in a single year a decrease of circulating money to $46.38 per capita in 1921. And this movement continuing downward year after year is what brought ruin to the farmers and primary producers of the country with no let-up in the pressure even while Wall Street was whirling with the giddy dance of the stock speculators which looked like prosperity but which everyone now admits was nothing but a poor imitation of the real thing. At the end of 1930 the money in circulation had decreased to $36.71, a shrinkage of $14.61 in ten years and sufficient to bring to an end even the orgy of speculation. Now all of us—farmers and manufacturers, merchants and factory workers and miners and capitalists — are in the same boat. We are hard up, and do not like it any more than the farmer has liked it since 1920

GAS TAX MISUSE CITED AS DANGER TO FARM OWNERS

Grange Chief Says Diversion Will Prove Boomerang

Diversion of gas tax funds fro mtheir proper use in building and maintaining highways threatens to react severely on American farmers, according to Louis J. Taber, Master of the National Grange.

"Farmers pay their gas taxes in good faith; believing that the tax will be returned to them in road economy and the extension of highway systems. But more and more of these funds are being diverted to uses far removed from their original intent; there is set in motion a series of forces which eventually boomerang and bring new woes to the already harassed farmers.

"Gas tax diversion automatically reacts on county 'farm to market' roads," said Mr. Taber, "because the states become unable to make the usual gas tax refunds for county projects."

Mr. Taber cited figures to show that the actual diversion of gas tax funds in American states in 1932 totals at least $125,000,000, and that in addition some states are mortgaging their gas taxes and motor license fees for many years to come.

"The gas tax is an easy mark for politicians," said Mr. Taber. "It is ready money, paid cheerfully under the impression that it is really a service charge for the use of our improved roads and highways. The amount and the availability of it make it the envy of our state interests. Thus gas tax money is now diverted to maintain fish hatcheries, docks, sea walls, schools, unemployment relief and states' general funds.

"The Grange does not quarrel with the importance of any of the uses to which diverted gas tax funds are being put. Relief, in particular, is an obligation we must meet. But I do feel that reliance on gas taxes to provide relief imposes a burden on a single class of people —motorists—most of whom are small income folks. Farmers, for example, own and operate a quarter of all the trucks on American roads. The economical operation of these trucks is of prime importance to agriculture. And by far the greatest number of motor cars are operated by people whose income is $2400 or less."

The "boomerang forces" as mentioned by Mr. Taber work in a direct series, he maintains.

"Diversion of gas tax funds from its rightful purpose will finally mean the crippling of the finances of state, county, and township highway systems. More serious, however, will be the danger of increased taxation on real estate. For every dollar of gas tax money diverted means a dollar paid by real estate or other forms of property. Farm taxes are now at the breaking point. In some states more than 35 per cent of the taxes on farm land are delinquent. Any addition to farm taxes means confiscation."

This subject is the third one under the topic "Sin and Salvation" of the series of sermons, "The Teachings of Jesus." Jesus is viewed today as a Friend, Wageshower, Example, Philosopher, Martyr, etc. These are not erroneous opinions but they do not do justice to this great Man. He becomes the above because He is the Man John the Baptist found Him to be. As John saw Jesus walking near him one day he said "Behold the Lamb of God that Taketh away the sins of the world. Come and hear about this Man who is your best Friend because of the fact the Baptist uttered.

Obituary—Mrs. Alice S. Kerr

Addie VanZant was born in Marion Township, March 15, 1887, and attended the Marion Center school, and graduated from the Charlevoix County Normal with the class of 1906. She taught school in Charlevoix and Otsego Counties. Was married in 1908 to Alex S. Kerr to which union eight sons were born. Seven remain, together with her husband, to mourn her loss, one having died in infancy. She leaves also her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. VanZant of this city, a brother, Carl VanZant, of Marion, and a half brother, Joseph VanZant of Onaway, and a large number of other relatives and friends. She was a most kind and loving wife and mother, and will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

The funeral service was conducted Friday afternoon, by Rev W. W. Hurd, at the home of her father on Antrim street. A large crowd was in attendance, of her many friends, both in this city, and from Marion Township, where she had resided so long.

MARION CENTER NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Ingalls who have been visiting their daughter Mrs. James Courier of Muskegon, returned last week.

The funeral of Mrs. Alex Kerr was held Friday at 2:00 p. m. at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Van Zant, Antrim Street, Charlevoix. Rev. W. W. Hurd, pastor of the Methodist Church officiated. Mrs. Kerr was a Marion Center girl and sister of Mr. Earl Van Zant. The family and relatives have the sincere sympathy of the entire community.

Mr. and Mrs. Thia Velrigo ette of Elk Rapids visited Mrs. Charlie Herrington last Tuesday.

Mrs. Charles Maschi is quite ill with the flu. The families of Ernest and Fabian Ecklund are also confined to the house with the flu.

Franklin and Marion Cellner who have been ill the last two weeks are still unable to attend school although much improved.

All persons having accounts with the Charlevoix Association of Commerce are requested to present their bills to the Secretary-Treasurer, F. V. Tyler.

Caught In Net

That the net thrown over the county by officials was extensive in order to capture four men who robbed the bank at Kaleva and killed the cashier is evidenced by the fact that H. A. Craig was put on the spot between Charlevoix and Central Lake one one of his trips to the last named place early this week by the man hunters, while Robert Bridge met with two like experiences on his trip to Ann Arbor. The bank robbers were later captured and of the four men three are now serving life sentences at Marquette and the fourth is in a hospital seriously wounded, perhaps fatally so. The three lifers in custody of Manistee County officials passed through Charlevoix Wednesday on the way to their permanent home at Marquette.

W.C.T.U. Meeting

The January meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held at the Community Room Friday at 2:30 p. m. Leader, Mrs. Hart. Topic: "International Relations."

Fire Destroys Residence

Fire destroyed the residence of Mr. Lazarus Willis Wednesday. The home is located in the neighborhood of "Orchard Bay Farm." Only a small amount of household equipment was taken from the burning building.

Change In Weather

Following a stretch of mellow weather conditions changing Tuesday night, Wednesday was just more than an ordinary winter day, cool with variable disagreeable wind. Today is an improvement, some snow in the air, but little wind, with thermometers registering 12 degrees above at 8 a. m.

Returns Home

After spending two weeks with Charlevoix relatives and others at points south Mr. and Mrs. Emory Pierce and son James returned to Sault Ste. Marie Saturday.

HEALTH UNIT NEWS LETTER FOR MONTH OF DEC.

Summary of Activities In This And Other Counties

Antrim County—Some scarlet fever has been reported this month. This disease was also the cause of one death. Measles are also been prevalent. Miss McCloy has made 26 contagious disease home calls.

One hundred seventy - five school children completed the immunizing treatments against Diphtheria. The next series of immunization treatments will be started sometime around the first of April. Until then, examinations of school children will be done.

Dr. Qainlan, our dentist, will be leaving the county about the middle of January. During December 131 children received dental care. Dr. Qainlan has also made 400 dental examinations.

Charlevoix County — During the month most of the school work has been examinations and vaccination of children. One hundred thirty-four children were examined and of these 38 previous defects were found to have been corrected.

Two hundred seventy-one children were vaccinated for mallpox. At the school in East Jordan we were fortunate in having the help of one of the local physicians.

Miss Lockwood has made over 150 home calls. She has also inspected 81 school children.

Emmet County — A number of the rural schools has been visited and 300 children examined. The parents of 30 of these children were present. Thirty-five defects found previously in the children had been corrected.

As in the other counties, we plan to offer immunization against diphtheria about the first of April. During January we expect to Schick test those who received immunization treatments last summer.

About 160 home calls have been made by Miss Warner.

Dr. Qainlan will be located at Harbor Springs about the middle of January.

STATE'S FUTURE

pared, which provide a reduction of something like $10,000,000 in the operating costs of the state per year.

Just whether these bills fit into the legislative program that Governor Comstock has in mind, has not yet made itself manifest. The governor has indicated that he is in sympathy with most of the recommendations made by Representative Brown's committee.

Both Governor Comstock and Lieut. Gov. Stebbins have indicated to the legislature that they do not favor a mass of bills covering all kinds of legislation, and that it is their wish to follow a certain line of directed economy legislation.

Never before at a change in the administrative government of Michigan has there been such a demand for public jobs as at present. Not dozens, but hundreds of Democrats from all over Michigan, are tramping through the hallways of the capitol building looking for jobs. Not only are Democrats looking for work, but Republicans who have served years and years in the various departments, are hoping that they will not be asked to join the army of the unemployed. Up to the present time there has been nothing to indicate that the most of them will not be out before long.

Representative Brown of Mason did stop one onslaught of house Democrats last week when he held up the appointment of a new postmaster for the house. He suggested that he thought it would be good economy to have but one postmaster for both the house and senate. It has always been customary to have a postmaster for both branches of the legislature. Claude Aldrich of East Lansing was the Democratic candidate for the house postoffice job.

From what can be heard around legislative halls it is quite apparent that there is a possibility that there will be legislative consideration of the appointment of Edward Frensdorff of Hudson as director of prison industries at $12,000 per year. The big salary is the thing that has caused the talk. Mr. Frensdorf was at one time warden of Jackson prison. No one associated with the prisons has ever before been paid a salary of such vast size, but Frensdorf states that he can in return save the state over a million dollars per year in the operation of prison industries.

Democrats have let it be known that they are not at all satisfied with the selection of two or three office holders under Republican administrations to retain their positions. Budget Director Thompson, who has drawn a salary ranging from $6500 to $7500 under the last two Republican administrations, has been kept on the job by the new governor. Possibly the appointment is but a temporary one, say some, and will later be filled by a democrat. When created, this job paid $5,000 per year.

Many prominent Democratic physicians of the state are said to be hopefully looking for the appointment as state health officer. This position, a few years ago, a $6,000 job, has been paying $10,000 a year during the past few years, plus an automobile for the health officer and an expense account. Governor Comstock has not yet indicated who will be named for this position.

Former Sheriff Fred Collins of Berrien County is the new sergeant at arms of the house. The ex-sheriff was a popular officer when he served in the highest executive office of his county and he has already made friends around the house.

Speaker Bradley who hails from the Upper Peninsula, has let it be known that he is opposed to all legislative junkets to various state institutions.

Predictions are freely made that this legislative session will be one of the longest in the history of the state. This statement is based upon the immense amount of work that confronts the new legislature.

POLAR BEARS MEET DEFEAT

Furious Last Quarter Rally For Manistee Wins 26 to 20

(By Newman)

The Polar Bears, Charlevoix's leading independent basketball organization, put up a nice scrap last week on the slippery Manistee court, but they were finally forced to go down in defeat by a 26 to 20 score.

No team needs much of an alibi in losing to Manistee by the score the locals did, but for the benefit of those who want a substantial reason for Charlevoix's defeat, we will say that the Manistee floor, which is usually in fine shape for dancing and therefore in poor shape for basketball, was even worse than ordinarily in this game. Of course, it was a handicap to both teams, but more so to the locals than it was to Manistee.

Manistee scored 8 points before the locals got going, and it was 8 to 7 at the quarter. Manistee held the 1 point lead in the second quarter, and led 13 to 12 at the half. The score was 18 to 16 at the end of the third quarter. Charlevoix started out fast in the last period, and led 20 to 19, with four minutes to play. Then Davenport was put out of the game and Manistee scored 7 points in the last four minutes to win the game from the Toddmen.

With the exception of the first 8 and last 7 points scored by Manistee, the Polar Bears had the game in hand scoring 20 points to 11 during the middle stages. However, Manistee's two strong rallies were too much for the Bears to overcome. Davenport and Supernaw led the locals in scoring.

The Bears now have a record of six victories to two defeats.

Polar Bears Badly Scared

On the night of the last practice before the Polar Bears went to Manistee, most of the members of the second team, called the Cubs, were on hand for scrimmage. Manager Todd hunted around and finally found five players who were all either too old or too young to make the Cub team. They consented to give the Polar Bears a workout, and they played under the name of the Dubs. Loud is Wallace opened the scoring when he made a long one go in for the Dubs. Newman followed with a one-handed shot, and Wallace made another. The score was then 6 to 0 in favor of the Dubs. The Polar Bears got scared, and they sent all their vast resources, including Mr. Brown, to the task of catching up with the Dubs. The Dubs fought hard, though, with other members of the quintet, including Yemmens, Foster, and Hebert, all contributing to the scoring. The Dubs were still ahead, 10 to 4, when Wallace ran out of wind and had to leave the game. With the score 16 to 10, Manager Todd, who wanted the first team to win, removed The Old Kid from the Dub team and the Polar Bears started catching up. They made some tricky plays work perfectly, and the final score was 24 to 21 in favor of the Bears. Todd took no chances, and called the game off the minute the Polar Bears were in the lead. The Dubs have promised to play the Cubs and Bears both on the same night if there is a satisfactory referee on the floor.

Polar Bears Want New Mascot

Some of the Polar Bears are inclined to blame their two defeats this year on the fact that they have no satisfactory mascot. It is hard for one waterboy to carry water enough for all the players and the present idea is to get a second mascot, and have one carry water for Brown, and the other one carry water for the other players. Manager Todd has a fine looking mascot in mind, but as far as we know now the proposition has not been accepted. The chief trouble seems to be that Brown's mascot would have nothing to do while he was resting on the bench. Further developments will be reported later.

PILOT SCHNEIDER SHOWS HIS SKILL IN LANDING WEDNESDAY

Loses Tire and Rim On Take-off From Beaver Island

Pilot Schneider in taking off with his airplane Wednesday from Beaver Island threw one of the tire casings from the wheels, thereby forcing him to make a delicate landing at the Charlevoix airport. This he did most successfully with scarcely a jar to either himself or passenger.

A large number of local citizens hearing of Schneider's predicament motored out to the field expecting to see a spectacular landing with possibly some damage to the plane when it hit the ground. Those who anticipated getting a thrill out of the scene were disappointed as the pilot maneuvered his machine dextrously and in such a way that it came down as nicely as a bird.

Card Party Enjoyed

A large number of citizens attended the card party at St. Mary's hall Monday evening and enjoyed the several games put on as a diversion and entertainment provided for the occasion. In the whist games, Mrs. Joseph Foster was awarded first place while Captain James Sanford was proclaimed ace of players in the pedro contest. Mr. J. Hallett was presented with the door award and Mr. Joseph Foster captured a ton of coal.

Condition Improved

Mr. H. R. Fowler, for some time past not in good health, and in more recent days in serious condition, has made wonderful improvement during the past two weeks. He was down in his office a short time Monday and expects soon to be able to attend to his business affairs regularly. His improved condition is a source of gratification to his family and Charlevoix friends.

Suffers Stroke

Information came to local relatives and friends that Mrs. Charles Carey and family in Washington, D. C., suffered a severe stroke of paralysis last Saturday. Her condition at first was pronounced critical. Later reports are much more favorable with prospects of continued improvement in her physical condition.

Bridge Party Planned

St. Mary's Hall will be the scene of another regular whist, pedro, etc. or what not parties next Monday night, with the festivities starting promptly at 8 o'clock. Captain James Sanford says "you had better be there on time, otherwise you miss some enjoyable features of the entertainment."

Mrs. Sarah Dagwell of Indian River is a guest of her daughter, Mrs. F. F. McMillan and family.

WELL KNOWN E. JORDAN CITIZEN DIES SATURDAY

At Home of His Daughter; An Early Resident There

The death of Mr. Alexander Bush of East Jordan was reported last Saturday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Nellie Hudson, with whom he has made his home for some years past.

He was one of the early residents of East Jordan to which place he came in 1881. Previous to that he lived at Saginaw for a term of years.

He was born in the state of New York 95 years ago. When a young man he made a trip to the west coast where he joined the gold rush in California. Later he entered the service of Uncle Sam as a soldier and at the close of the Civil War retired with the rank of Captain and as Captain Bush he was respectfully addressed throughout his life time by his associates.

Mr. Bush was well known in this entire region. In his business affairs which were extensive over a long period of years, he was recognized for sterling honesty and business ability.

For a term of years Mr. Bush was a Park Avenue resident in Charlevoix where he made many staunch friends who with others in northern Michigan will mourn his death.

CENTRAL LAKE TAKES POLAR BEARS INTO CAMP

Greatly Improved Team Trims Local Team 22 to 20

The Central Lake Independent basketball outfit which met the Polar Bears Tuesday night on the Central Lake floor was a vastly superior team to the one that bowed before the locals in the opening game of the season. The score was close all the way. The Bears led 8-7 at the quarter, 13 - 12 at the half. Central Lake tied the score at 17 at the end of the third period, and shot two baskets with less than a minute to play in the last round to make the final score 22 to 20.

The game was rough, with near fights on certain occasions. The Polar Bears are after revenge, and they challenged Central Lake to a deciding game to be played on the local court this next Wednesday, January 25th.

In order to have as large a crowd as possible see this game and the admission will be cut to 10c straight. A fast, hard game is promised. Central Lake has a much stronger team than in former years and both organizations are anxious to annex this rubber game.

There will be a red-hot preliminary game. Details have not as yet been made public, but a scorcher is promised.

Mrs. Maggie Sharrow and son Junior, for some weeks past at Ann Arbor, where Junior was being treated at the university hospital, returned home Saturday.

C. H. S. LICKS HARBOR SPGS.

Final Score Was 28 to 7; Play Traverse Friday Night

With Captain Joe Smith leading the way, the Red and White quintet from the local high school scored a decisive victory over their rivals from Harbor Springs last Friday night on the local floor. Charlevoix led all the way, and the issue was not in doubt after the first quarter.

In addition to Smith, the following boys also played: Chew, Kirby, Foster, Ance, Potter, and Rose. All turned in creditable performances.

The local Reserve team also came out ahead in the preliminary struggle with the Harbor Reserves.

Tomorrow night the boys have another game on their home floor. They will meet the Traverse City Trojans and attempt to reverse a previous decision. They lost to Traverse by a narrow margin in the first game of the year.

To date the Kipke Speedsters have won three games and lost two. They won twice from Petoskey and once from Harbor Springs, and they lost to Traverse City and Boyne City. Counting only Class C games, they have a winning average of .500.

AGRICULTURAL MEETINGS CONTINUE THIS WEEK

Second Week of Series To Begin Monday, January 23

The second week in the series of Agricultural meetings being conducted in the County will begin on Monday, January 23rd.

These discussions are very similar to the series last winter, at which time the subjects closely associated with soils and crops were studied.

Thus far these meetings have been very interesting and the discussions enlightening. The following is the schedule for the second week:

Monday, January 23rd, Norwood Town Hall, 10 a. m.; Barnard Grange 2 p. m.

Tues., Jan. 24, Ray Shore Restaurant 10 a. m.; Marion Center Grange, 2 p. m.

Wed., Jan. 25, Maple Grove Grange 10 a. m., Hortons Bay I. O. O. F. hall, 2 p. m.

Thurs., Jan. 26, Carl Stevens Farm, Walloon Lake, 10 a. m.; Frank Russell Farm, E. Jordan 2 p. m.

Your attendance at these meetings will give you many facts and additional information which will enable you to better make your future plans.

O. D. HAMMOND SUFFERS INJURY BY FALLING TREE

Narrowly Escapes Death; Confined to Bed Helpless

Mr. O. D. Hammond was struck by a falling tree while cutting wood on his place just south of town last Thursday and was seriously injured and at the same time narrowly escaped instant death.

Fellow workers assisted Mr. Hammond to his home where he has remained since confined to his bed and practically helpless. The report made is to the effect that no bones were broken, but that he has many bruises that practically cover his entire body.

COLOR INSPIRES PLAYERS THOUGH LENS REJECTS IT

Black and White Screen Costume Really in Colors

The most alluring color combinations conceived by Paris and Fifth Avenue fashion experts are used in designing the costumes worn by motion picture actresses during the filming of pictures—this in spite of the fact that under the camera's eye all colors are reduced to variations of black and white.

But there's a reason for it, and a good one, according to Josef von Sternberg, ace Hollywood director, who made Marlene Dietrich's latest starring picture, "Blonde Venus" that comes to the Palace Theater Saturday and Sunday.

Players do not work in costumes of sungle black and white because the monotony of the combinantion would kill every spark of creative effort, he explains.

To the camera, VonSternberg points out, red, dark blue, orange, brown and purple appear black, with light blue and practically all pastel shades either white or light grey. It would be an easy matter to clothe all players in black, white and grey, and to build all settings in the same colors.

But they aren't because Von Sternberg explains, "To play a part there must be inspiration from without as well as the urge for artistic creation from within. Garments must blend with personality in the theater as in other places."

Miss Dietrich has nearly a score of costumies in "Blonde Venus". As a woman who goes to work in a night club to earn enough money to save her husband's life, she ultimately gets the money from a boss.

MASONS PLAN JOINT MEETING WITH O. E. S.

Program of Varied Entertainment, Friday, January 27

Members of O. E. S. and F. and A. M. with their families will hold a special joint meeting of entertainment at the Masonic Temple Friday evening, January 27th.

An elaborate program consisting of music, dancing, and games, together with a pot luck lunch is being arranged by a special committee in charge, and in which the interest of the fraternity members centers.

The present outlook points to an extra large attendance at the feature to be presented. It is a family function in which special care is being taken in order to provide entertainment by those in charge and in a variety that will be enjoyable to all in attendance.

COASTING ACCIDENT SENDS GIRL TO HOSPITAL

Loses Control of Sled And Hits Fence Post Injuring Skull

A coasting accident at Central Lake last Saturday resulted in serious injury to Miss Sylvia Sue McMillan, 12 year old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. D. McMillan.

Losing control of the sled upon which she was coasting the sleigh crashed into a fence post Miss McMillan's head hit the post with force such as to cause a bad fracture of the skull. The young girl was picked up in an unconscious condition and immediately taken to the Charlevoix hospital. Pictures taken revealed that the fracture is of a most serious nature and while she shows some improvement there is some doubt her injury will prove less serious than is anticipated at this writing.

Missionary Rally

The Missionary Rally of the Grand Traverse Baptist Association will be held in the local Baptist Church, Friday, January 27, lunch and dinner will be served to those coming from out of town and the meeting opens at 2 p. m. and at 7 p. m. The speakers will be Mrs. W. H. Durrance, President of women's work of Michigan; Mr. Edward H. Clapp-himn; Miss Ethel L. Ryan, California; Rev. Ralph Taylor Anidem, Executive Secretary of the Michigan Baptist Convension.

Guests Here

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Anthony of Eastport were guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Rose Tuesday. Mr. Anthony has hotel Charlevoix with Mr. Rose in the past summer season. He recently purchased the Eschelman barber shop at Central Lake and hereafter will conduct the same.

Dinner Guests

Rev. and Mrs. Koopman and son Peter were dinner guests at the Congregational Manse last Monday evening. Rev. Koopman is pastor of the Atwood Dutch Reformed Church located four miles west and south of the village.

DEAD LINE FOR LICENSE PLATES

Instructions Relative to Securing New Plates

With the time drawing near when all car and truck owners in Michigan must equip their vehicles with 1933 license plates or be liable to arrest and fine, it is well to roundup some of the things that are necessary to be done in order to procure a license.

While no official information has reached the local branch office reports have it that the deadline for the use of old license plates is midnight, January 31, 1933.

The hours of sale at the local branch office at the information bureau in Charlevoix during February and March will be 8:30 a. m. to 12 noon, and from 1 p. m. to 6:00 p. m. In cases of urgent necessity, special arrangements for attention outside of office hours may be made by telephone, Charlevoix No. 105.

Do not forget to bring your certificate of title as absolutely in no case will plates be issued unless that certificate is presented. The little square white slip issued at the time the plates are sold is the certificate of registration. Bring this with you as it carries all necessary information regarding your vehicle and should always be carried when driving. This is the only document required to be shown when crossing the border into Canada. The above applies to trailers and motorcycle certificates as well.

All trucks, vehicles remodeled since last licensing and trailers must be weighed each year, as official weight tickets issued by officially registered scales, S. M. Sorensen & Sons, Argo Milling Co., and Charlevoix Cooperative Association scales are official in Charlevoix.

If you buy a new car from a dealer or a second-hand car from either a dealer or an individual, the law requires that you make application for title within ten days of date of sale. If the car is purchased second-hand and bears 1932 license plates, or was licensed in 1932 whether the plates are on it or not, and the dealer fails to procure prior to February 14, 1933, you must pay one dollar for transfer of title and also an extra dollar for transfer of '32 license to your name, except that, if you apply for new title within ten days of date of the transfer to you by the original owner, you have the privilege of applying for 1933 plates and surrendering the 1932 plates, in which case only one dollar for transfer of title need be paid.

If you buy a second hand car truck or motorcycle insist that the title to same, properly transferred and notarized are turned over to you at the time the vehicle is delivered to you. The law requires this. If the vehicle is bought from an individual see that part one of the transfer sections on the back of the certificate of title is properly made out; if from a dealer, parts one and two should be O K before you accept it. Never accept a title signed in blank—that is, simply signed by the owner without having appeared before a notary or filling in the facts. Such a transfer is worthless. Every signature to a transfer must be written in the presence of a notary public, justice of the peace, or other officer authorized to administer oaths and the notary must

LEANING ON GOVERNMENT

Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, said some things that are worth repeating, in his annual New Year statement. Among them were the following:

"Then, too, we need to undertake a concentration upon national problems. Internationalism may be an idealistic profession, but it can likewise be a mistaken one. The world is not helped by professing internationalism, while America goes to pieces. * * *

"We enter 1933 facing a change in government. Many find hope in that fact. I should like to give warning against too much dependence upon government. Government can, and we hope, will be helpful. But government cannot and should not do all things. We shall pay dearly for every step toward paternalism and bureaucracy. * * *

"The greatest safeguard against too much dependence upon government is cooperation between voluntary groups within industry. We have no condition that cannot be remedied with the instrument's at our command. We have no need for despair if we but use the tools that are at our command. * * *

Certain it is that, in spite of the international bankers, we cannot find the remedy for America's troubles in Europe. America is and always has been willing to cooperate in any constructive program for the alleviation of the world's troubles. Our moves toward disarmament are abundant proof of this. What the average American does object to is internationalist proposals to lighten the burdens of Europe at the expense of the American taxpayers. The proposal of having Uncle Sam do all the sacrificing gets a little monotonous when repeated too often.

Mr. Woll well stated also that we must not depend too much on the government to pull us out of our difficulties. The government through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and similar agencies has lightened the shock of the battle in property to advantage and has slowed the course of deflation.

However, despite some of the elaborate statements during the campaign the government cannot in itself cure the depression and pay everybody's debts.

The government was not responsible for the depression and the government alone cannot cure it. The people must come themselves. A beginning has already been made. As a people we are passing out from under the clouds of abject despair which a year ago seemed to envelop nearly everyone with the belief that economic chaos was at hand. We are now twelve months farther along the road toward recovery than we were at the beginning of 1932. Some of the worse hurdles have been overcome. The shock of most of Europe's falling from the gold standard has been alleviated, and Uncle Sam is no longer the victim of a gold raid. Prices seem to have reached bottom. It is time to come out of the cave of depression and scan the horizon for breaks in the clouds. Next will come the task of rebuilding. This must be done by the people themselves. The government cannot do it for them. The cooperative effort of every one of us is required. If we keep our minds and our hearts in America and rely a little on our individual powers of recuperation things will come along. But if we look for a pot of gold at the end of the European rainbow and wait for Congress to make us rich we are still in for a lot of difficulties before we turn the corner, if we ever do turn it under such circumstances.

SENATE AND DEBT CANCELLATION

The question of World War debts to the United States and their proposed cancellation got a thorough airing in the United States Senate the other day and if any of the nations which owe has conceived the idea from the statements of our international bankers that Uncle Sam was on the verge of agreeing to cancellation the report of the senatorial debate must have come to it as a rude shock. Not a voice was raised in favor of cancellation. Many arguments were proposed against it.

One of the favorite arguments of the internationalists who want debt cancellation is that by relieving Europe of its honest debts we will enable Europeans to buy more goods from us and thus restore prosperity. But the internationalists fail to tell us that every dollar so added to the purchasing power of Europe will be a dollar taken from the purchasing power of America for the reason that American taxpayers will have to pay the war debt bill if Europe defaults. Senator Reed in the war debate above mentioned clears up the point with a great deal of vigor. In part, he said:

"It seems to me that no more trivial and ridiculous argument has been offered than that which has been so often uttered in recent days to the effect that to take a burden off the European taxpayers and put it on to the American taxpayers is going to increase American prosperity.

"Obviously, by so much as we increase the purchasing power of the European, by exactly that same amount we diminish the purchasing power of the American, and it is only upon the theory that the European, having the purchasing power, would buy more American goods than would an American with the same purchasing power that we can conceive of any possible advantage to America, and we all know that no situation exists.

Senator Hiram Johnson of California said:

"While I deprecate the actions of those countries abroad, while I regret that they do not honor their obligations and have not kept their national faith, my feeling is deeper, it is much more intense, for those who live in this land, and profit from living here, but who render those defaulting nations in every contest they have with ours all the aid and all the comfort they can.

"The people for whom I feel the deepest resentment are not those across the sea because maintaining our self respect will ultimately make them regain theirs; the people for whom I have resentment are the men who call themselves Americans and in their inferiority complex and their flatulent toadyism are doing constantly what they think will win them a little flattery abroad. That is the class of people I cry out against.

"The press that thinks as its masters the international bankers and international finance desire, those who respond to the cry of the dollar and who wish to act for those across the water, they are the ones that have led us into this morass. * * *

"Many of them, I have no doubt, hold United States bonds. Let me tell these great newspapers and these internationalists one way in which it might be possible for us to remit a part of the foreign debt. Let me suggest to those who want to remit that debt and who want to reduce or cancel it, that they walk up to the Treasury counter with their own Liberty Bonds and their Victory Bonds and say, as patriotic Americans they ought to say: 'We want Europe released, but under the Providence of God we ask that America be released, too, and here are our bonds.'

"I venture to say, sir, that if we were to enter into an agreement by which there would be some sort of a remission of the indebtedness of Europe under such terms, one could stand on Pennsylvania Avenue until he was petrified into an Egyptian mummy and there would not be an international banker or a member of the international press that would walk down there and yield up his bonds for America and American citizens."

MAKE TAXATION HURT

One need not be an advocate of the general sales tax to appreciate that it would have one desirable effect: It would make taxation hurt. It would give every citizen, regardless of income, a new understanding of the gigantic cost of the government.

All of us pay taxes. But comparatively few of us pay them directly—and a great many persons who pay indirect taxes think they are escaping taxation altogether.

We pay a tax when we cook and eat a meal, turn on the light, attend a movie, buy clothes, go for a ride, or do a little fishing or else. These taxes may be concealed in the cost of necessities and pleasures, but they are there nevertheless.

No business can pick money from bushes—every cost of operation whether it be labor, supplies or taxes, must be passed on to the customer.

If more of us felt taxes directly, the chance for really obtaining economical and efficient government would be tremendously improved.

If the sales tax comes, government extravagance and expansion will have again added to the cost of the things we buy—and when it hurts all people, they may then demand a lower cost of government.

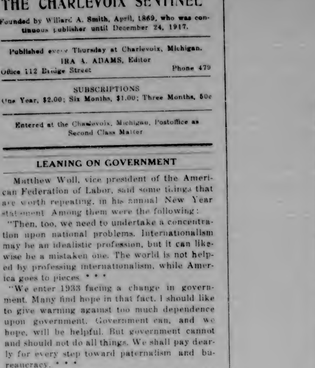
Before considering a sales tax, however, or any other new and increased taxation, public officials would do well to remember that in seeking office at recent state and national elections, they, one and all, stressed the need for economy in public affairs, reduced taxation and, in a number of instances, promised a 25 per cent cut in the cost of government.

SHARE-THE-WORK-MOVEMENT

One of the really sound plans set in motion to create employment is the share-the-work movement, which is gaining momentum in all sections of the country.

The movement has three distinct purposes: To check the upward trend of unemployment, when work is reduced for seasonal reasons, by employing the greatest possible number of workers on a reduced working schedule; To decrease unemployment by a wider spreading of work now available among a larger group of employes working shorter periods; Whenever an increasing volume of business permits employing additional personel, to do so by distributing the increased work to the greatest possible number, rather than by working longer schedules.

The result of such a movement, if adopted in all branches of industry, would be an immediate and appreciable increase in the purchases of food, clothing, shelter, and other necessary commodities and services. Millions of persons would be saved from want and despair. And, in addition, that psychological assurance which comes with a feeling of job security, would do much to stimulate the public morale and cause increased spending by those who now have jobs, but have been hoarding against the chance of unemployment.



NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

In spite of the cry from Europe that the principal thing now needed to stabilize conditions over there is the cancellation of the debt to America, one who studies the situation carefully must come to the conclusion that there are a lot more things wrong with Europe than the money which is owed to the United States. In fact the political troubles over there at this time seem fully as serious as the financial ones.

Political students of European affairs are of the opinion that the situation between Germany and Poland is becoming constantly more dangerous. The question at issue is of course the Danzig corridor, which was formed in the Versailles treaty to give Poland an outlet to the sea. The corridor divides East Prussia into two parts and the Germans have never gotten over the establishment of this corridor to the sea dividing the Fatherland. Many European observers believe the Germans are only waiting a favorable opportunity to seize his corridor.

At present such action is out of the question. Poland is protected by her alliances with France and some of the smaller nations which were carved out of the Austrian Empire by the Versailles treaty. But if the time comes when France and some of the nations of the Little Entente should be otherwise engaged there is little doubt that Germany would take steps toward settling the matter of the Danzig corridor according to her ideas. Poland would of course fight to defend this outlet to the sea which she believes is vital to her future and there is the making of a first class war here.

There are indications that conditions are arising which will engage the attention of France and some of her smaller allies in various directions. For example there is increasing friction between Jugo-Slavia and French ally, and Italy over Italy's alleged actions in Albania. Then a first class border dispute seems about to break out between Bulgaria and Jugo-Slavia. These two nations are ancient enemies. Jugo-Slavia claims that the settlement as made by the treaty of peace following the World War as to the boundary between the two countries has been violated by the Bulgarians, and that Bulgarians, or rather Macedonians living in Bulgaria have violated Jugo-Slavian territory thru raids. It is said that irregular Macedonian forces have fired on citizens of Jugo-Slavia and sought to stir up trouble. France, of course, is an ally of Jugo-Slavia and in case of trouble Italy and Germany could be counted allies of Bulgaria. Italy especially because of her enmity toward Jugo-Slavia. The dispute might easily cause another European war involving the continent all the way from the Atlantic Ocean to Poland, and perhaps farther east than that.

It is easy to see of course that here is a dangerous situation with which international debts have nothing to do. In fact the adjudiciation of finances would give the discordant nations more time and resources to start quarreling anew. Since the failure of the League of Nations to do anything with Japan in the Manchurian dispute the prestige of the international body in Europe has been greatly diminished. For that reason it is not likely that the League could be depended on in case of trouble in Europe.

It may be stated that all of the great men are not only men of great interests, but men of a great many interests. Francis Scott Key was no exception to this inference. He was keenly interested in his country's welfare, in justice through law, in the question of slavery, in religion, in literature and in poetry. Sir Walter Scott was his favorite author; he cared little for Byron, and even asked his wife to burn copies of Tom Moore.

"Religion was a dominant factor in Key's life; in fact he seemed so well suited for the ministry by inclination and talent that his life-long friend, Bishop Meade of Virginia, urged him seriously to consider entering that calling."

Portraits from History

Francis Scott Key Had Long Public Service

Americans never tire of hearing the story of the origin of our national anthem, and the mention of the "Star Spangled Banner" immediately brings to mind the name of Francis Scott Key and the thrilling circumstances under which the song was written. But Francis Scott Key performed additional important services for his country and these are related in detail in an interesting article on the author of our national anthem in the current issue of the National Republic. In part, Anne Bertenshaw Cushman, the writer, says:

"In addition to writing the national anthem, Francis Scott Key served his country thrice as U. S. District Attorney for the District of Columbia under Presidents Jackson and Van Buren.

"In a 'Sketch of Francis Scott Key,' read by Francis Scott Key-Smith before the Columbia Historical Society on May 12, 1908, Mr. Key-Smith outlined briefly several of the important cases in which Francis Scott Key figured, among them a case growing out of the capture of a slave trader off the coast of Florida. This was a subject very near to Key's own heart; his sympathy with the negro cause was well known and he freed his own slaves as a matter of conscience. Governor Poote of Mississippi tells us that in the prosecution of this case Key pictured the horrors connected with the African slave trade in a way which would have done honor to either a Pitt or a Wilberforce in their palmiest days.

"Perhaps the most important service Mr. Key rendered his country was that of his mission to Alabama, in the fall of 1833, when he acted as special representative of the United States under President Jackson to settle the dispute between the federal government and the State of Alabama growing out of the government's orders for the removal of settlers from the Creek Indian lands within the territorial limits of the State of Alabama, made necessary under the terms of the treaty of 1832. The controversy became so intense that it resulted in open resistance to the marshal and the United States troops stationed at Fort Mitchell, Ala. Several towns were burned and a settler shot and killed by a soldier. Quickly the entire frontier was in a great state of excitement that promised further bloodshed. It was at this juncture the Secretary of War instructed Francis Scott Key that it was the President's wish he should visit the State of Alabama and investigate the cause of the trouble arising out of the government's instructions for the removal of intruders from the Indian lands. His commission gave him the broadest powers possible, and the U. S. Marshall and other officers of the United States concerned were instructed to follow his advice in everything pertaining to their duty. He was to conduct the defense of all United States officers before both state and U. S. courts whenever it became necessary, and was authorized to communicate the tenor of his instructions to the Governor of Alabama if he deemed it advantageous. Arriving at Fort Mitchell on November 11, 1833, he immediately set about the accomplishment of the delicate task before him. So consciously and diplomatically did he handle the situation that in less than six weeks from his arrival he accomplished the object of his mission, without asking permission to concede a single point in negotiating the settlement, and without having once to resort to coercive measures

"History seems to teach that great men are not only men of great interests, but men of a great many interests. Francis Scott Key was no exception to this inference. He was keenly interested in his country's welfare, in justice through law, in the question of slavery, in religion, in literature and in poetry. Sir Walter Scott was his favorite author; he cared little for Byron, and even asked his wife to burn copies of Tom Moore.

"Religion was a dominant factor in Key's life; in fact he seemed so well suited for the ministry by inclination and talent that his life-long friend, Bishop Meade of Virginia, urged him seriously to consider entering that calling."

A young Fox made its appearance at the home of grandpa and grandma McCartney Monday morning. Mrs. Merton Fox is the happy mother and it is a boy.

Great fishing is reported from the vicinity of Ironton. Ed Chaloupka, on Tuesday, caught 18 fine lake trout, and other big catches have been made. Fishing shanties are thick and that locality and the sport is fine.

The U. T. D. Club met with Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Myers at "Cosy Corners" Saturday evening, Jan. 17.

Progressive pedro was the order of the evening, the head prize being won by Mrs. G. W. Priest and Chas. Shepard, and consolation by Mrs. R. B. Armstrong and D. F. Meech. A light luncheon followed the game, after which the guests departed, having spent a very enjoyable evening.

Born, Monday evening, to Mrs. Frank M. Sears, a bounding daughter, and all doing well.

As will be seen by the official notices, an intersecting sewer has been ordered constructed on Clinton street. Without question other east and west streets will follow the coming survey, which will naturally draw in the north and south streets west of Bridge. It requires no great stretch of prophetic vision to see a complete sewer system for Charlevoix in the near future. Good! As Uncle Richard Cooper says: "The sooner the quicker."

Our Churches
A Review of the History of the First Congregational Church Of Charlevoix

The work of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions in this field twenty or more years ago, should not be confounded with the origin of the present Congregational Society. Back almost as far as local history reaches, the Presbyterians had a mission here. The pastor in charge of the work was Rev. George W. Wood. He labored here about six years, when, for some cause unknown to the writer that denomination abandoned the work here; but, unquestionably, from that early Christian movement sprang the present prosperous Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

Rev. Leroy Warren was then as he was for many years after, State Superintendent of church extension, if we are correct in the title.

In September, 1882, "for the furtherance of the gospel in this place," the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, was organized with the following membership: Mrs. P. S. Dixon, Mrs. Caroline E. Nichols, E. M. Clark, Mrs. Luella Clark, Brice Suffield, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Suffield, Mrs. A. J. McLeod, and Mrs. Lawrence. On the 30th day of month a Congregational Council met at the M. E. Church with Rev. Leroy Warren as Moderator. The council consisted of the following members: Rev. Page F. McClelland, pastor of Northport church; Rev. James Davies, pastor Banks church; E. B. Marshall, deacon from Banks church; Rev. W. O. Allen, pastor St. Ignace church; A. Livermore, delegate St. Ignace church; Rev. W. D. Seaver, pastor Traverse City Church.

The council, after the preliminary formalities of recognition and acceptance of the above named members, approved the enterprise, and the church was duly constituted. The evening services were held and the charge to the church was given by Rev. Leroy Warren.

At the first regular meeting of the Society held in November of the same year, eight members were added to the church rolls. The first deacons of the church were Elijah Hudson, Brice Suffield and E. M. Clark. Wm. Kanagy was the first clerk and deacon Clark the first treasurer.

On the 30th day of August, 1883, at a regular meeting of the Society, Rev. C. F. VanAuken was called to the pastorate. The call was accepted, and Mr. VanAuken entered upon his pastoral duties soon after. The records show that several business meetings were held at the schoolhouse during the winter and spring of 1883. The membership was largely increased during these months, and much interest manifested. At a meeting held on the following September, the purchase of the lot on the corner of State and Main streets was sanctioned, the price being $800. At this meeting the trustees were instructed to push forward the work of erecting a house of worship.

Under the energetic labors of the pastor, in the year 1884 the present fine structure was erected and the membership greatly increased. In September 1886 the pastor was voted a six months vacation, and the Rev. A. T. Waterman was called to the pulpit during that time. On the 6th of December, 1886, H. S. Harsha was elected clerk, which position he has since held.

There is nothing like being classical, brother Sprague. If we don't know what it means ourselves, our readers think we do, and that satisfies our ambition.

Let us ask ourselves a few questions: Are we not as a business community, rettling down into a spirit of "old foglism"? Are we not buried up in ourselves and our personal interests to an extent which excludes from our consideration the present and future good of our town? Do we ever stop and think what other towns, similarly situated, are doing to induce capitalists to invest among them in manufacturing interests. Do we ever estimate what we might accomplish if, by a united effort, we should follow their example? Are we as wide awake as we should be to all these things, considering what we possess in natural advantages? Can we afford to sit around our stores and offices, with only one thought occupying our minds, our private interests and let all be cracked before they reach us? We have in our mind two instances of parties coming here with a view to locating enterprises of value and have gone away with no word of encouragement or information. Is this as it should be?

A BANKER ON THE BONUS

By George C. Call

Only one thing can genuinely turn the tide, can give us a real start back to genuine prosperity. There must be an increase in per capita volume of money in circulation. When this comes so shall see prices and wages rise, we shall see more money in the banks as deposits and more money passing through the cash registers of the merchants, levying a profit as it passes.

I have said a few paragraphs back that I shall not argue the merits of the veterans' claim to receiving the cash bonus now. This seems to me, and I am not a service man, comparatively unimportant. The point is that if we pay the bonus now, in cash, we shall get into circulation a good deal more money—about $19.16 per capita, if the administration figures of $2,200,000,000 are accurate. This would at once revitalize business in every line, from the farmer to the stock broker.

But why, I have been asked, choose the soldiers' bonus as the method to bring about inflation? Why throw the money away by giving it to these men who, it is claimed by hitter opponents of the measure, will immediately squander it with no real benefit to themselves? Why not, if inflating our currency will help us all, get behind the program of public works to give employment, or some other plan that would have the same effect?

The answer is simple. In the first place, the bonus money which by law must be paid in 1945 is a legal obligation of the nation. It is the only large debt of the treasury except our bond issues and our treasury certificates. Eventually it has to be paid—the government is setting aside $112,000,000 a year to meet this debt when it comes due. To pay it now would wipe it off the books, and to this extent reduce the outstanding indebtedness of the United States. Even more important, though, is the second reason for paying the bonus. It will get the money down to the grass roots, as we say in Iowa. It will distribute over two billions of cash throughout the land in comparatively small sums which will immediately find their way into the channels of trade either through the payment of debts or the purchase of new goods; the portion of it which would be directly deposited in banks as savings by the recipients would probably be negligible, though of course the entire sum would presently find its way into the banks in the form of increased deposits.

A program of public works to the same amount would not have the same effect so quickly. It would require years to get two billions in public works under construction, and completing the program and paying out the cash would take as much longer. The money would get into circulation by driblets and would therefore have far less effect in bringing us back to prosperity. An incidental public works program is this, that such of the buildings as were erected for government purposes would inevitably auch into the vacuum of their empty space more thousands of public employes who would thereafter be kept busy at the taxpayers' expense.

Opponents of paying the bonus now are fond of referring to the whole operation as creating "printing-press money" or fiat money. Those phrases look more than a little terrifying, which is of course, why they are used. They are the magic words with which the advocates of deflation hope to excorse the demons of inflation. Any of us, you or I, is bound to feel just a bit squeamish when the idea is presented that we in this country should start up the presses to create money which might presently degenerate in value until—as actually happened in Germany and Austria and Russia during the height of their inflation—it would take a million-dollar bill to buy the morning paper.

Playing the bonus in a green jacks would be inflation. This is why, from my standpoint, it is desirable. I should personally oppose issuing government bonds and selling them to obtain the money with which to pay the bonus, for this would not be pure inflation of the currency and hence would be far less desirable than simply printing two billions in United States currency and handing it out. We shall examine a little later the reasons why inflation is desirable.

But first suppose we look at the big-bear of printing press money. Within reasonable limits, printing press currency would be better for all of us. Reasonable limits?" snorts the flyed in the wool conservative financier. "There are no such things as reasonable limits. Any inflation is unreasonable, and once a nation starts on the road of inflation it never stops until it goes all the way!"

Frankly, this strikes me as so much bosh. It is a piece with the old temperance lecturer's assertion that after the first glass of beer the poor misguided fellow was lost and could only end in the gutter. It is predicted on the assumption that if too much of anything is bad for you, a little of it must be likewise harmful. There are conditions in which a tablespoon of Epsom salts will work wonders; but if the patient takes a shovelful may the Lord have mercy on him. So it is with inflation.

TELEPHONE BRINGS AID TO INJURED CHILD

An actual incident, reported to this company

The small daughter of a Michigan family, playing in the basement of her home, was painfully and critically injured.

Her mother, hearing the child's screams, and seeing what had happened, dashed frantically to the telephone and called the doctor. The physician arrived without delay, and through immediate and skillful medical attention, was able to treat the child's injuries successfully and prevent serious complications.

In such emergencies, just one telephone call for assistance may be worth more than the cost of the service for a lifetime.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Farish a daughter.

Art Larsen and Harry Pischner made the trip to Charlevoix Friday returning Sunday with the gas boat "Esthonia." They brought back a load of supplies.

Ralph Marten left Friday on an extended visit to Grand Haven and Chicago.

Mrs. Russell E. Palmer entertained the Mozart Club and their guests at a dancing party at her home Saturday evening.

Word was received here Friday of the death of George Beeman. Mr. Beeman was well known and liked on Beaver Island and his many friends here were shocked and sorry to hear of his sudden death.

Miss Kathryn McCann left this week for an extended visit at the home of her brother, Dr. C. J. McCann at Bay City.

Mrs. M. J. McCann went to Charlevoix to visit her son, Giles, for a few days. She was accompanied by her son, Omer.

Roland McDonough is spending a few days in Charlevoix on business this week

L. R. Farish left for East Lansing where he will resume his studies at Michigan State College.

C. J. McDonald of Charlevoix is visiting at the home of Andrew E. Gallagher.

George Ross returned to Charlevoix Saturday after several months stay on the island.

James McCafferty made a business trip to Charlevoix Saturday returning Sunday.

The following fishing boats, "Venus", "Betty C", and "Apnes S" left for Manistique Saturday to be placed in winter quarters, so they will be ready for the early spring fishing from that port.

Mrs. Russel E. Palmer, accompanied by her niece, Miss Gerry Smith, left Sunday for a visit in southern Michigan, going to Charlevoix by airplane.

Ralph Martin returned Sunday from a ten-day visit on the mainland. He was accompanied on the return trip by Harold Nelson of Grand Haven.

H. A. Craig of Charlevoix was a business caller here the first of the week.

Eddie McLaughlin was a visitor in Charlevoix Saturday and Sunday

The freighter "Rambler" made a trip to Charlevoix Saturday returning Sunday.

Wm. Schmidt was a passenger on the airplane to Charlevoix and back this week.

A. Sondenberg and Edw. McDonough of Manistique were visitors here the first of the week.

Over From St. James

Mrs. Russell Palmer and her niece Miss Geraldine Smith, the latter of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, a guest of her aunt at St. James, left here Monday by automobile for Grand Rapids. They expect to spend one month, possibly more, in southern Michigan, by extending their trip to Lansing and Detroit. Mrs. Palmer and Miss Geraldine or Gerry as she is familiarly called, were airplane passengers from St. James to Charlevoix Sunday. The trip from St. James was pleasant but wholly disappointing to Miss Gerry who was looking forward to a lot of thrills, not one of which was on Mr. Schneider's program for the day. This was Gerry's first trip by air. She was surprised at the smoothness of the trip together with the time made in covering the route were the only surprise in the venture. She as well as three other passengers admist the skill of Mr. Schneider as a pilot and as to the attention and courteous treatment extended to each of the party members who participated in the flight.

Mr. Alvin Stout of Lansing was a Charlevoix visitor last Friday.

Mrs. Grace Vaughan of Boyne City was a business visitor in Charlevoix Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Meggison motored to Central Lake Sunday and spent the day with his sister, Mrs. William Mudge and family.

Born Friday, 13th
Born to Mr. and Mrs. John Geer a son, Ronald Gregory weight 8 pounds, 3 ounces. Friday, January 13th.

"You say, my son,
It can't be done?
Your statement isn't true.
You mean, my son,
It can be done,
But can't be done by you."

Setting aside a prejudice against the use of the spectacular and sensational by a minister either in the pulpit or in the announcements of his sermon topics we are going to thus announce our subject for next Sunday. Our sensationalism is not in the subject but in the method of announcement, and we feel our message deserves his type of advertisement to catch your interest if possible. We throw down this challenge to every member and friend of the Congregational Church and to all who do not attend our sister churches. We challenge you to hear our sermon next Sunday on "The Teachings of Christ Concerning Human Responsibility."

We are not in a boastful mood, we are not even suggesting that you will like the sermon but we have a few truths that you should know for your own good. Every person has his or her opinions concerning his personal religion, but we are going to set forth any opinions but facts that have been proven by millions during the last two thousand years. These facts are definite teachings of the Christ. We have little patience with an alarmist but we do not hesitate to say that when all humanity will face one great and inescapable experience, untold thousands will stand mute—and disappointed.

Plans are being completed by Mrs. Stelter and the choir to sing another Easter Cantata as has been the custom for the past several years.

In order that all may be advised and prepared we wish to announce that this church will old a "Mission" during the two weeks previous to Easter. The pastor will be the speaker.

ARE MICHIGAN'S PUBLIC SCHOOLS ENDANGERED?

Are Michigan's public schools in danger of being closed or run on half-day sessions? Will thousands of children in this state be deprived of the privilege of attending school, as is now actually the case in Alabama, Tennessee, and various other states?

To provide facts rather than guesses with which to answer these questions, the Michigan Education Association has completed two months of study and research, the findings of which are published in a bulletin entitled "Educating Michigan's Children."

According to this study, the answer to the preceding questions is "yes." The bulletin states: "Half-day sessions and curtailment of all public school services by one-half or even more in many Michigan cities and school districts will probably be the coming school year under the present tax limitation on real property. Michigan will have thousands of public schools next year unless a new source of revenue other than the property tax is provided for maintaining a reasonable program of public education."

Some of the pertinent facts shown in this study are:

The public schools of Michigan derive more than three-fourths of their revenue from the property tax. Approximately 69 per cent of public school revenue in Michigan in 1931 was from local taxes. Another 22 per cent was from the Primary Fund, a state subvention distributed on the basis of school age census.

The 15 mill tax limitation on property will reduce by one-half to one-third the revenue of schools from local taxes, and will reduce the state Primary Fund at least $4,000,000 and possibly $7,000,000.

The compiled figures show that the percentage of tax delinquency in the state has almost kept pace with, and now has virtually offset, the increasing levies The estimated reduction of $100,000,000 in revenue from the general property tax under the operation of the new 15 mill amendment equals, in round numbers, the estimated total delinquent tax returns which will be rolled up during the present year.

School districts are virtually prevented from borrowing money to tide over emergencies. With operating expenses certain to require all of the school's share of tax moneys, there is little hope that loans could be repaid.

The study gives many recent instances in which latter case a bill of sale is unnecessary. If you buy a new or second-hand engine for your car, either from an individual or a dealer, see that you get a bill of sale or transfered title for it and remember that the certificate of title covering the motor vehicle you install the engine in must be sent in to the State Department to be replaced with a certificate showing the number of the newly installed engine. There is a special application form to be made out for such changes of title which must be accompanied by the bill of sale or transferred title and the fee is one dollar. The same rule about correction of title holds good when the style of body is changed, as when a roadster is converted into a pickup delivery, or a touring body exchanged for a sedan body, etc. The bill of sale, however, is only required in case of the engine. In some makes of cars, the serial numbers are stamped on the bodies and, in case of a switch the change in serial number should also be noted in the application for corrected title. A vehicle changed in any of the ways mentioned above must also be weighed before license on it can be issued.

Where a car is purchased or last licensed in another state, before Michigan plates can be issued the certificate of title or other documentary evidence of ownership issued by that state must be sent in to Lansing accompanied by a bill of sale if there is no assigned certificate of title, and an application on special form for Michigan certificate of title. The fee for this application is one dollar. When the Michigan title is returned to the owner, he may apply for his plates, or his application for plates and license tax money may be sent in to Lansing with the application for new title.

One other point to remember is that the license tax on your passenger car is the same from year to year, unless in some way you have changed the weighted of it. The tax is written in ink just under the rubber stamp impression on your certificate of registration. Try and have the exact change with you if possible, as it will save your time and that of others.

sists with regard to revenues in other states from forms of taxation other than the property tax. It estimates possible revenues for Michigan from such forms of taxation as the sales tax, income tax, business tax, inheritance tax, poll tax and virtually every other feasible method of taxation. No attempt is made by the compilers of the booklet to outline any particular policy in new taxation, but the information is presented with the view of helping the reader to form his own opinion with an adequate equipment of facts on which to base his judgment.

sign himself and affix his commission expiration stamp or date as well. No title will be accepted for transfer nor will plates be issued on same unless it is correctly filled out in every respect and no document will be notarized by the branch manager unless the signer appears before him personally to sign, or is known to him and appears in person to attest his own signature previously written. This last rule will be observed at all times and in all cases.

When buying a new car from a dealer, see that the latter gives you a reasonably detailed bill of sale to the same or fills out the Application for Certificate of Title form with its attached assignment of which all Michigan automobile dealers are supposed to have a supply, in which latter case a bill of sale is unnecessary. If you buy a new or second-hand engine for your car, either from an individual or a dealer, see that you get a bill of sale or transfered title for it and remember that the certificate of title covering the motor vehicle you install the engine in must be sent in to the State Department to be replaced with a certificate showing the number of the newly installed engine. LOCALS LOSE TO TRAVERSE

Boyne City Suffers First Defeat By Grayling Quintet

(By Newman)

The Traverse City Trojans came out ahead, 17 to 14 in their game here last Friday evening with the C. H. S.

Traverse opened the scoring with a deuce, but could not hold the lead. They made only one more goal during the first quarter and were behind, 5 to 4, at the end, as Potter had made a goal and a free throw and Ance one field goal for the locals

Traverse stepped out and scored six points in the second stanza, meanwhile holding the locals to four markers. Smith made a field goal and free toss and Ance one free throw. The score at the half was 10 to 9, Traverse City.

Traverse made four in the third round to make it 14 to 12 at the intermission, as Charlevoix only made three points in this round. Smith scored a deuce and Potter made a gratis toss good.

In the last round, Traverse made three points and Smith made a field basket for the locals, to make the score 17 to 14 at the final whistle.

Smith made 7 points to lead the locals. Potter made 4, and Ance 3. Chew and Foster also played.

The Trojans were superior in size to the locals, but they were no better in any other department of the game.

The C. H. S. team has split even in six games, losing two to Traverse City and one to Boyne City. They won two from Petoskey, and one fro mHarbor Springs.

Tomorrow night the locals go to Mancelona, and we predict a good game, but figure Charlevoix to win.

Boyne City, which has defeated every team in this region including Charlevoix, Petoskey, Cheboygan, and East Jordan, has finally had its clock cleaned. Grayling, a team over on the eastern half of the state, has proved Boyne City can be beaten. The score was 28 to 22. The game was played at Grayling, and that fact may have helped the home team.

GRAND TRAVERSE MISSIONARY RALLY HERE FRIDAY

At Baptist Church Afternoon And Evening

The midyear missionary rally will be held in the Baptist church Friday afternoon and evening. The afternoon session will begin at 2 p. m. The evening session 7 p. m.

The Executive Secretary of the Michigan Baptist Convention, Rev. R. T. Andem, will be one of the speakers; also Mrs. W. H. Clowrance, State President of the Women's work in Michigan. We will have a special treat in having two foreign missionaries with us at this time.

Mr. Edward H. Clayton, a missionary at Hangchow, China, and spent some time in Huchow, will be able to bring a stirring message out of his experience.

Miss Ethel L. Ryan, appointed to work among Italians in Trenton, N. J., later serving on the Piute Indian field in Nevada.; the Hopi field at Torova, Arizona; and with Italians in Hartford, Conn.

We extend an invitation to all interested in Missionary work.

SHERIFF HOLDS MAN IN CONNECTION WITH P.O. ROBBERY

Cheboygan Officials Make Arrest Of Suspect Held

Sheriff Ikens has for safe keeping a man who gives his name as "Duke" VanDyke who is being held in connection with the post office robbery at Walloon Lake last Friday night from which some small amount of change was taken and a considerable sum in postage stamps.

The arrest of Van Dyke was made by Cheboygan officials who notified Sheriff Ikens and the latter at once drove to Cheboygan, returned with Van-Dyke, placed him in the county jail where he is held for investigation.

It is probable that the case will be adjusted either by officials in charge of the investigation or later through court action.

POLAR BEARS WIN RUBBER GAME FROM CENTRAL LAKE

Final Score 19 to 13; Cubs Win Preliminary 17 to 11

The Charlevoix Polar Bears emerged triumphant in their game last night on the local floor, with the Central Lake team going down to a 19 to 13 defeat. The score by quarters was Charlevoix 4, 7, 8, 0; Central Lake, 4, 1, 2, 6. Each team had won one game apiece prior to this match, which was the deciding game.

The teams alternated from fast to slow and from close to rough by turns. Referee Hallett worked harder trying to keep the game under control than some of the players did.

Ardean Davenport, who was playing his last game with the locals, turned in a good performance, as usual. He led the scoring with 8 points and his game other departments was consistent. He will leave for Elgin, Illinois in a few days. He expects to play on a professional team there. His friends believe he will have no difficulty, as they say "Dean is good enough for any team." He has been the mainstay of the Polar Bears for quite a few years.

Superman scored 6 points, while Hens and Bryan L. Kipke, Beaudoin, and H. Davenport also played.

In the preliminary, Bill Superenaw was given the honor of managing the Cubs, and they played their best game of the season while his eagle eye watched over them in the first half. The score was then Cubs 15, Central Lake Seconds, 2. Bill had to leave at the half, and the Cubs started their usual form of fooling around with the result that they lost, 17 to 11.

E. N. Clink, attorney, and Mrs. Bessie Collins of East Jordan were business visitors at the court house Wednesday.

CUPID'S DARTS LESS EFFECTIVE IN 1932 THAN 1931

Divorce Stocks Take Drop Of Fifty Per Cent.

It would seem that the darts of Dan Cupid, while perhaps just as numerous, were less effective in 1932 than in 1931 as figures compiled at the court-house show that only 97 marriage licenses were issued last year as compared with 105 in 1931. Then too it is possible that economic conditions had something to do with the decline.

Divorce proceedings took a fifty per cent tumbled during the same period indicating that perhaps the sea of matrimony is a little more calm.

However civil cases began in 1932 exceeded those of 1931 by six the count being 34 to 40. Chancery cases took a slight drop with only 13 last year with 22 in 1931.

Criminal cases also showed a decline of about 20 per cent over the same period with 34 for last year as compared with 42 in 1931.

"American" is the "Buy" word of all true Americans.

MEMBERSHIP IN AMERICAN LEGION BEING STRESSED

Important To Both Veteran And Organization

Membership is the chief matter at present with the Legion throughout the nation. Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 had some forty odd members in '32 and '32 who have not as yet signed up for the new year.

There never was a time in the Legion when membership counted for as much as it does now—both to the individual ex-serviceman and to the Legion as an organization. If you can possibly manage it in anyway, comrade, pay at least your state and national dues and line up with the organization to attain its many worthy aims. Remember — it's actual, paid membership that counts when the Legion moves as a body to get things done.

Local post finances are coming along in fair shape and with a little cooperation the local post can be out of the red and then we can start some of the things we have long planned to do.

Cards will be sent out this week to members of the bugle and drum corps to turn in their instruments for inspection, overhauling and repair. A little lacquering will make the bugles look like new and the drums probably need attention as well. If you don't get the card, try and turn in your instrument at the regular post meeting next Tuesday night.

Capt. James H. Gallagher is confined to the house this week entertaining a mild case of flu.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF CANDIDACY

Petitions Being Circulated And Generously Signed

Announcement is made that Mr. L. S. See will be a candidate for mayor of Charlevoix at the primary election and as such will be opposed by Mr. Arthur Bergeon who now and for some years past has been Mayor of the city.

Mr. See is well known, a long time resident and for many years has been one of Charlevoix's most prominent business men closely identified with city business and city interests as well as thoroughly conversant with its past progress and requirements for future progress. More he is most capable in the management of big business affairs, has made a complete success in personal business matters and with his knowledge of city requirements and energy expended on all affairs in which he takes an interest should and will if nominated, make a most competent and excellent mayor.

Nominating petitions were circulated around the city last Wednesday and were liberally signed by Charlevoix business men who endorse Mr. See's candidacy.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS TO PRESENT PLAY "DETOURS AHEAD"

A One-Act Play With Seven Characters: Date Undecided

The Epworth League will present a play "Detour Ahead" with seven characters, some evening during the last part of February. Rehearsals have now been going on for sometime, and the actors are enthusiastic

This is a one-act play requiring about 45 minutes for dramatization. In order to make a full evening of entertainment, there will be other features added to the program. These include a few well chosen musical numbers and one or two "stunts." It is planned to use all members of the organization in one number or another.

More details, including the exact date, will be given later

Missionary Meeting

The January meeting of the Congregational Woman's Missionary Society held at the church last Wednesday following a cooperative luncheon was in charge of the recently elected officers of the society, namely: President, Mrs. G. R. Parker; Vice Presidents, Mrs. A. F. Bridge, Mrs. S. M. Rife; Secretary, Mrs. A. L. Fochtman; Assistant, Mrs. P. D. Campbell; Treasurer, Mrs. B. Saltonstall.

BAND CONCERT SCHEDULED FOR WEEK FROM SUNDAY EVE.

Members of the Charlevoix City Band have made arrangements for a free concert, with the date set for Sunday evening, February 5 at the gymnasium. Time, 8:30.

A splendid program has been prepared such as will be pleasing and entertaining to music lovers as well as being extraordinary in the way of production by local musicians. More particulars will appear in the next issue of the Sentinel at which time the complete program will be announced.

I. O. O. F. HOLDS LEAD IN CRIBBAGE CONTEST GAMES

Masons Gain 72 Points In 3rd Game Of The Series

Monday night members of the I. O. O. F. and F. and A. M. fraternities played their third in a series of cribbage games at the conclusion of which the I. O. O. F. lead their competitors by 332 points in the totals for the three games played to date.

In the session held Monday evening, the third game of the series, the Masons were victorious, they having scored 19,942 points to their opponents 19,870, a gain of 72 points for F. and A. M. players for the evening.

At the finish of the second game the I. O. O. F. teams led by 404 points hence at this time their majority has been reduced to 332.

In Monday nights game Mr. Harrison Bedford, for the Masons, led the field with a total of 963 points, while "Buster" Hughes took a like position for the Odd Fellows with a score of 960.

The fourth game of the series is scheduled for Monday night, January 30 at the Masonic Temple.

APPROPRIATION FOR BOUNTIES ON VERMIN DEPLETED

Amount Limited This Year To One Hundred Dollars

The appropriation of $100 by the Board of Supervisors for the payment of bounties on rats and sparrows has been depleted to less than approximately $16.10 according to records at the county clerk's office.

The statutes provide that the Board of Supervisors may or may not appropriate a sum of money for this purpose. As in past years the appropriation was made but in consideration of economic conditions it was limited to $100.00. The bounties which are fixed at 2 cents a head on sparrows and 10c on each rat, have to date totalled $83.90 leaving $16.10 in the fund.

Entertain At Bridge

Mrs. Hugh Mayne, assisted by her sister, Miss Monica Smith, entertained at her home on Dixon Avenue last Wednesday evening. Five tables of bridge were in play, honors going to Mrs. Lloyd Curtis, Mrs. Henry Boldy and Miss Edna Brown. Other guests included Mesdames Leon Soloman, A. Wade, Fay Bradley, Alfred Gill, Vane Smith, Arthur Westaff, Walter Bergeon, Charles Bellinger and Ray Kipke and the Misses Ada Yettaw, Bonita Higman, Florence Gibson, Genevieve Superenaw, Ella Gallop and Vera French.

"BUY AMERICAN"

MEN'S COMMUNITY CLUB ENJOYS PROGRAM MONDAY EVE.

Kendall Sisters Feature; Rev C. J. Kendall Speaks

Very charming and enjoyable was the programme of music given Monday evening at the Men's Community Club, by the Kendall sisters, who have become quite well known by their work over the radio. Their voices were very evenly balanced, of very pleasing quality, and their choice of selections were greatly enjoyed by the men present

Their father, the Rev. C. J. Kendall, spoke briefly on "God's Forget-Me-Nots", showing how not only every flower, every star, every marvel of nature, but also every church going boy is a forget-me-not—but we forget!

"GHOST HOUSE"
HOME TALENT
MYSTERY DRAMA

Sponsored By O. E. S. Next Thursday Evening

The cast for "Ghost House," the thrilling home talent mystery drama to be given under the auspices of the Eastern Star is the Charlevoix High School gymnasium Thursday night, February 2, has been definitely chosen.

Mildred M. Dodd, the director is the casting committee, has been very successful in securing some of the best talent in Charlevoix for this production.

Barbara Brown played by Helen French, the girl whose everyone loves and admires, Fred Wilson, played by William Brown, is a newspaper reporter who comes to get a reading of the will, stays to be involved in the mystery, and falls in love with Barbara. Martha Brown, portrayed by Mrs. Frank Fifield is the aunt of Barbara and a very lovely lady. Stan Hammond as Donald Kent, gives a very realistic portrayal of the man about town. Howard Davenport is very good as Oliver, the kingpin butler and Dorothy Hooker as Paulette, the maid, is a scream in her love scene with the butler. Mrs. Peter Adler as Mrs. Bates, the domineering wife and social leader and Fay Bradley, her hen pecked husband, keep everyone in gales of laughter Mr. O. P. North as Inspector Brooks, is quite hard-boiled. Mrs. Ray Kipke as Mandee, the superstitious colored cook makes all shiver with her moans and her groans. Dr. C. J. Winder as Benton D. Thompson, the lawyer, completes the cast with a very realistic portrayal.

The play has as special numbers between acts tap dances by fourteen high school girls.

The cast is working hard every night in an endeavor to give Charlevoix the best production that has ever been staged here.

Wedding Party

A pleasant wedding party was entertained last Saturday afternoon at the local Methodist parsonage, when Rev. W. W. Hurd united in marriage, Miss Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Heine, to Mr. Charles Reeder of Bay City. Guests were present from Charlevoix, Petoskey, Bay City, and Saginaw.

Charles Hendrickson, who spent some days with his lifelong tug on Lake Huron, returned from Alpena Saturday.

PETITIONS FOR STATE RELIEF

And Equalization of Costs Of Our Public Schools

Focusing attention on the need of Michigan's public schools for funds to take the place of those previously available from the general property tax, petitions are being circulated in the more than six thousand school districts of the state.

It is expected that early in the next month the signatures of hundreds of thousands of Michigan voters will be laid before the Governor and the Legislature, asking the state to provide some means of school support to relieve the severe burden on property, and to provide sufficient revenue so that the public schools of Michigan may be maintained at least on the 1932 level of operating costs

The petition leaves the selection of method entirely to the lawmakers, but mentions various other taxes as possible sources of revenue, including the sales and graduated income taxes.

"To the Governor and Legislature of the State of Michigan.

Recognizing that a crisis exists in maintaining the public schools in Michigan, We, the unimersigned voters and supporters of the public schools of Michigan, hereby approve the aims of the last named part of public schools by the State with an equal reduction of local taxes on property.

We endorse the principle of raising future revenue for the support of the state government and public education by means of such taxes as the inheritance and gift taxes, the graduated income tax, sales tax, utility tax, truck and bus tax or any other tax which may be feasible, excepting a property tax.

We request that the above taxes levied for education be placed in the Primary School Fund and a central state school fund for the purpose of equalizing school costs, and be used to replace present taxes collected on the home and the farm.

We request that economies be effected that will place the total operating costs of the schools in Michigan on a basis comparable with those of 1922 23, and that a cash income for such amount be provided.

We hereby petition the governor and the legislature of the

HOW OUR DEBTS GREW

For the past two years we have had an increasing demand on the part of the public for a reduction in our public expenditures. We have now come to the time when there should be some appreciable effect of this sustained movement which has finally made the people tax conscious. While the present session of Congress, judging from the current outlook, will accomplish little toward the reduction of national expenditures and the balancing of the budget, it is likely that a special session of the new Congress will be called shortly after March 4. Then the new Democratic administration will have a chance to show what it can do on the all-important subject of reducing public expenditures. If it fails, then it will be just too bad for the future of the new administration and we are apt to see some startling political changes after the 1934 election.

But all of the work of economy cannot be done by the national government. A great deal of it must come through the efforts of the states and the local government. Here again the situation is timely. Nearly all of our state legislatures are now in session or will be some time during the spring. It is now up to the people to see that their local representatives do something to help lighten the tax burden through the promotion of economy and the cutting down of public expenditures.

In order to understand just how far we must go in this respect one ought to consider for a moment just how far we have as a nation, inflated our expenditures. In a booklet recently published, it is pointed out that the estimated public indebtedness of our federal, state and local governments in 1902 was three billion dollars. In the next decade it grew to a little less than five billions. Then the fun began. Now the estimated total debt of our various units of government is around $37,000,000,000. Just think of it! An increase of 1,133 per cent from 1902 to 1932. During the same time the expenditures of our federal, state and local governments rose 860 per cent.

"To make this huge sum more understandable" the article continues, "one dollar out of every three of the total income of our entire national population is consumed in the support of our governments and their subdivisions. This orgy of spending by municipalities, with few exceptions, has been very little curtailed up to the present, even though the entire country has passed from a period of unprecedented inflation to one of dire depression during the past three years. The same voters who authorized unjustified bond issues are now demanding retrenchment in municipal and state expenditures and clamoring for reduction in taxes both personal and real.

"During the past year, reductions in budgets have of necessity been generally prevalent, but by no means have they been cut sufficiently, nor nearly as much as is possible; curtailments will have to be made in every branch of government and this requires immediate, honest, earnest and scientific study and will be forced on politicians both by grive up their sinecures, in order that municipal credits be maintained or restored.

"Retrenchments of at least 25 per cent should be made by state and local governments; expansion programs should be drastically reduced; planned public works that are not absolutely necessary should be deferred; employment of men in distress should be on projects beneficial or of a self-liquidating nature. Large curtailments in operating costs could be effected thru consolidations of bureaus, overlapping districts and departments where duplication of effort is most pronounced."

It is of course true that a start in economy has been made during the past year or so. There has of necessity been a reduction in the public bud. But there is still a great distance to go if we are to deflate our public expenditures as they can be deflated to match the new era in which we are now living. A start has been made in many localities where expenditures have been cut and taxes are to be reduced this year.

But the people must not go to sleep on the job. The good work must be continued and the numerous sessions of the state legislatures this year make a good place to continue.

LOOK TO THE SOUTH

A great many far seeing Americans believe that the next great field for our commercial expansion lies in the direction of Latin-America. They point out the fact that the countries to the South of us will develop even more rapidly in the future than they have in the past and that the question of tariffs and immigration there are not nearly so vital as they are in our relations with Europe.

Dr. Herbert E. Bolton, professor of history at the University of California, stated at a recent meeting of the American Historical Association held in Toronto that South America is the hum continent of the future. In the course of his remarks he declared:

"Importance of Hispanic America as an economic unit and as a political factor is becoming greater from day to day. It is one of the great reservoirs of raw materials. It will continue to attract foreign capital and foreign immigration.

"It is entirely possible that within a short time Hispanic America will out-number Saxon America in population. Saxon America, with its 140 million people is practically closed to European settlers. Hispanic America, with its 100 million, is wide open."

Whether Dr. Bolton's predictions of a Latin-America more populous than Anglo-Saxon America are verified within a reasonably short time remains to be seen. There can be no gainsaying the fact, however, that when the world wide depression lifts, South America will be in for considerable development. Citizens of the United States should be on the alert to take advantage of the commercial opportunities which will then be offered. A little less attention to Europe and a little more attention to Latin-America is not at all a bad idea.

"-UY AMERICAN"

It is impossible to follow the relations between the United States Government and foreign governments without feeling a desire to sneer, occasionally about the shiftiness and deceit practiced by foreigners, in the name of "diplomacy." Japan violates all its pledges as it continues to slaughter the Chinese, and France shamelessly defaults its war debt payments. Many other governments leave themselves open to criticism, and there is general distrust of their good intentions. These facts form ish the reason for the United States hesitating to join the World Court. The Senate of the United States has always believed in the underlying principle of this Court. The trouble is that the Senate does not take much stock in the nations that are already most conspicuous in the Court.

There is a good deal of imagination about the importance of our five or ten per cent foreign trade, and American business men are gradually coming around to believe that if our own people will "buy American" that it will swing the balance of actual trade in favor of our own country.

WITHOUT RAILROAD PROSPERITY—?

An article in Railway Age on "Railway Purchases—A Vital Force in Business Recovery," brings out vividly the influence of the transport problem on the lives of all workers, all farmers, all producers.

In the five years previous to 1930, railway purchases averaged over two billion dollars a year. In the past three years reductions in these purchases have amounted to almost $8,000,000,000.

The decline is greater than all the loans and appropriations made by the federal government for public works and relief.

It has brought distress to a multitude of communities, has affected every state in the Union, and has thrown hundreds of thousands of workers, in a large number of industries, out of employment.

The iron and steel industries, the lumber and copper industries, the oil and coal and electric supply business, in the past, have counted on the railroads for a heavy percentage of their sales.

Restoration of railway purchasing power is indispensable to business recovery. No one can doubt that stimulated rail activity would be one of the greatest blows we could strike against unemployment, against low general purchasing power, against depression.

MAKE 1933 A SAFE YEAR

A publication of the National Safety Council carries an excellent New Year wish: "Three hundred and sixty-five safe and happy days to you for 1933."

If that wish could bear fruit, it would be a magnificent thing for the country. It would be a magnificent thing for the country. It would save thousands of lives which would otherwise be needlessly lost. It would keep for useful purposes the billion or so dollars that is wasted annually through accidents—it would make for happier and better working conditions and more efficient industries. Nothing is so destructive to the morale of the worker as a series of serious accidents in his plant.

INTERNATIONAL INSINCERITY

When a sound business needs financial accommodation, it borrows money on proper security from another and more prosperous business. The time comes for payment, and the first business asks for an extension of time on the grounds that it is unable to spare the money from its business.

Then the creditor and debtor meet and talk the matter over—on a purely businesslike basis. A mutually fair agreement is reached.

But when two nations become creditor and debtor the result is very different. Business methods are forgotten. Politics rears its head. The debt is made a plank in political platforms. It is wrangled over, and settlement blocked for purely political reasons.

That is the trouble with the war debt problem. Instead of being treated as a matter of banking it has been turned into a political football. The decision of France not to pay, after her Premier had worked to save his country's credit, was an entirely political decision, having nothing to do with the merit of the debts. France indeed, is in a far better position to pay than either Italy or England, both of wh ch met their obligations promptly.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank Lisachert

It is generally agreed that the Democratic victory in the 1932 election was due to the belief of a great majority of the voters that a change of administrations might mean a change for the betterment of business. Few of the voters who helped bring about the change had any definite idea just how it was to be brought about. It was their belief, in many cases little more than a hope, that somehow or in some way there would be a new deal that would help things. The psychology was not unlike that of a player who asks for a new pack when the cards have been running consistently against him.

All Americans, regardless of their politics hope that some change for the better is coming. Up to this time, however, it must be admitted that the Democratic leaders have given no evidence that they have a concrete plan for bettering conditions through legislation.

For example, the leaders of the majority party seem to be unable at this time to agree on any definite course for the fundamental balancing of the budget. For a time we were given to understand that most of the congressional leaders wanted a sales tax. But this was quickly dropped when the news came out that Governor Roosevelt was opposed to the sales tax. Then came the journey of the Democratic leaders to Albany to confer with the President-elect. This was followed by statements that the additional taxes necessary would be raised by soaking the incomes of the middle classes and cutting down the exemption of those with small incomes.

But immediately there came such a kickback to this proposal that it was apparently quietly put into the background. Now we are told that the budget will be balanced not by raising taxes but by cutting expenses. If this can be done, the American people will take off their hats and admit that Congress is full of real statesmen.

But the evident lack of a definite program on taxation and the budget is already bringing sarcasm from the Republicans. Minority Leader Snell summed up the Republican view recently when he said:

"It is perfectly evident that the Democrats are not going to do anything about balancing the budget at this session. They don't even intend to try before ten or fifteen days from the end of the session. That means that they have thrown it up in despair.

"The Democratic platform was just as emphatic on balancing the budget as it was on beer and while they have spent more effort on beer than on balancing the budget it is evident they will fall down on both.

"To the outsider looking on, it looks as if the President-elect is running out on his congressional leaders before they even get started.

"Is this the much-heralded cooperation between the President-elect and congressional leaders that we heard so much about during the last campaign? The President-elect says he is only a clearing house for ideas. I can tell him without fear of successful contradiction that if he is to lead his party during these strenuous times, he must be something more than a clearing house. It will be necessary for him to have a program of his own and stand behind it for two successive days running."

But while there seems to be lack of cohesion in Democratic forces let us not become too discouraged. Let us remember that the depression may right itself without further assistance from the government. Depressions have been known to do that very thing in the past. It is about time that there were evidences of improvement. Nature will take its course regardless of Washington politics. Let us hope that the time for fundamental improvement is at hand.

Portraits from History

Israel Putnam Real Adventurer

Nearly everyone in America knows something about the exploits of General Israel Putnam in the war of the Revolution, but it is not so widely known that this famed statesman had an adventurous career outside the struggle for American freedom, that in fact he was an Indian fighter and explorer as well as officer in Washington's army. There is an interesting account of this patriot's adventures in a recent issue of the National Republic. It was written by Rev. J. H. F. Boese, under the title "The Story of Israel Putnam." In part, Rev. Boese says:

"Each particular epoch has produced produced its characters peculiar to that epoch, men who have filled is splendidly in that particular time. Their outstanding attainments, their noble character and their powerful influence for good, have stamped these illustrious careers in indelible words upon the pages of history. Such a person was Gen. Israel Putnam. He was a man of intrepidity and of exceptional courage. Of somewhat an emotional temperament and possessing an intense fervor, kindled by that patriotic fire which burned incessantly within his breast, he was ready to take immediate hold of any task, no matter how difficult, throwing his whole being into the undertaking.

"Israel Putnam descended from a noble English family. His great-grandfather, John Putnam, with his good wife, Priscilla, migrated from England to this country in 1634, bringing with them their three sons, Nathaniel, Thomas and John. The latter was the grandfather of the subject of this sketch. Israel's father, Joseph, having within his veins coursing the blood of the daring pioneers of the previous century, it stands to reason that Israel should have inherited many of the splendid traits of his noble forebears.

"It was a very unpretentious spot, that little town of Salem in Massachusetts where the hero of our narrative was born January 7th, 1718. With its quaint flat-roofed houses on a very monotonous level ground and its irregular streets, it was not a very attractive place.

"Its history had not been very complimentary and salutary due to the days of the outrages resulting from the witchcraft delusion which was written in characters of blood upon its pages. Israel Putnam's father was open in his disapproval of these persecutions. He incurred not only the ill-will of his own neighbors and certain of his relatives but also his life was endangered by his opposition to the devilish practice. Therefore he always kept his musket ready and his best horse saddled to be able to flee immediately, should he be accused of the crime.

"The name of Israel Putnam appears in the annals of the French and Indian War and in the Revolutionary War where he is depicted as being a person of great daring and remarkable bravery.

"Already in his boyhood days he exhibited that spirit of fearlessness which made him famous in years to come. General Humphreys tells an anecdote of this remarkable lad. Young Putnam had gone to Boston and while there was chaffed on account of his rustic appearance, by a much bigger boy who seemed bent on picking a quarrel. Israel stood for it a while but at length turned to his insulter and gave him a sound flogging to the great delight of the lookers-on.

"Israel Putnam exhibited during his youth uncommon physical vigor and energy. Not being cut out for the classroom, he found his sphere of activity in God's out of doors on the farm and later in the daring military exploits on many a bloody battlefield. His abhorence of life in school was not due to a lazy willful attitude but on account of his intense love of nature and the lure of field, forest and stream. This to him was an education and one which came in good stead in his later career"

Made Another Guess

The revised report of the tax commission made public last week reduced the railway assessment by $9,500,000. The cut on the Michigan Central is $2,500,000.

Can it be possible that this syndicate of wisdom committed an error in its first guess on railroad valuations?

Must the people of Michigan be humiliated by the acknowledgment that the board of savants whom they selected from their number as wise in their day and generation; as wiser even than their fellows; as having ripened and matured in erudition and perspicuity, have erred in their decrees?

Can it be that this body servant of justice has led the blind goddess from the path of infallible judgment, and made a monkey of her?

Was not this congregation of the sacred college of tithing and tribute supposed to be like Caesar's wife, above suspicion and beyond the cavilling criticism of the rabble?

Was it not written in the books that a Daniel had come to judgment, and that Antonio should yield up his pound of flesh? How are the mighty fallen! With their drapery tangled in their legs, these ministers and advocates of justice have fallen from their high estate, and the gods are weeping! "But yesterday the word of Caesar might have stood alone against the world; now lies he there."

Wherefore should these men have done this thing? Why should they only make a bluff at being wise? Having once set the pace of wisdom, why did they not keep it up?

But another horrible thot haunts our minds. If these men erred with the big fish, may they not have made a wrong guess on John Smith's house and lot in Charlevoix or Central Lake? They acknowledge their mistaken judgment in one case; will they do the same in the other?

Nearly ten millions of dollars cut in railroad assessments means no more to the railroads than a corresponding reduction in the revised assessment on the house and lot or the farm does to the Northern Michigan mechanic or farmer.

A BANKER ON THE BONUS

By George C. Call

Out in our part of the country, the farmers are getting nine cents a bushel for their corn at the elevators and seven cents for oats. They have mortgages on their farms contracted on land which was valued according to the income it would yield. I am not talking now about the interest they paid an unreasonable price for his land in a fever of boom-time speculation, but the average farmer who owns his farm at $150 or $200 an acre, which would pay a decent yield for his time and investment with corn at the old-fashioned average price of fifty cents a bushel.

Suppose such a farmer borrowed $1000 five years ago. This man he would have to sell 2000 bushels of corn to pay off his mortgage or 120 bushels a year to pay six percent interest on it. Today, assuming ten-cent corn, this farmer must sell 10,000 bushels to pay off his mortgage, 600 bushels to pay his interest. If he has what was regarded as a reasonable mortgage back when corn was selling for 50 cents a bushel he is simply unable to meet his debts. What is more, he cannot even pay his taxes—for a big proportion of his tax money goes to paying off interest and retirement of school bonds and other fixed public obligations which must be paid in a given number of dollars annually no matter what the price of corn.

I have been surprised, as has been every man who has lived with this farm price situation, at the cheerfulness with which the American public will work to pay for a dead horse. If the farmer is permitted to sell his products at prices which will yield him a bare living and meet his obligation, he does so and says very little about it. But when the prices of what he has to sell sink to the point where he can realize neither a living nor enough to meet his debts, he simply cannot go on. All hope is taken from him. Little to one-fifth of all the farms in Iowa has been taken over by the mortgages since June 30, 1926. The latter was the peak year in the current era of continuing to grind out foreclosures as rapidly as ever.

Plain common sense must prove to anybody that until the rural population of this country, which constitutes almost half the total population, can make a living and pay their debts they cannot spend any worthwhile amount of money for manufactured products. The same thing applies, of course, to the owner of city property whose salary or profits or rents have been so reduced by depression that he has no money left after paying his taxes and his mortgage interest. Our present situation of financial stagnation is due to this widespread condition, that nothing that anybody owns—unless it be government bonds is worth enough to yield the fixed charges of owning it. So we have rural destitution, city unemployment and poverty, general lack of profits among businesses and factories and banks. Nobody is doing well because we are all in the same leaky boat.

If paying the veterans' bonus now were going to drive this country off the gold standard, if it were going to precipitate any grave financial crisis within our nation or internationally I should fight the proposal tooth and toenail. But it will not, it cannot. We have ample gold in this country so that even though we should issue $2,000,000,000 of fiat money, or printing press mor.y if you prefer, our currency would still be adequately backed by gold and we should never waver off the gold standard.

I could very easily prove this using only figures taken from The Statistical Abstract of the United States, which is an official document. It would, however, require the reader to wade through several paragraphs of tabulations and dry-as-dust statistics. Take my word for it that this increase in our currency in circulation would leave this country with far more gold behind each paper dollar than we have had most of the time since 1900, and therefore nobody would or can doubt the integrity of the United States currency. A dollar would still be worth a dollar's worth of gold, either inside our boundaries or outside. And since gold is the measuring stick of a currency's stability, ours would be just as stable as it has ever been We will have forty percent of gold behind a currency that will include the greenbacks issued to pay the bonus, which any student of money and currency must admit is adequate.

How, then, would the issue of additional paper money affect the prosperity of the country? It would raise prices immediately. Here I must admit a little of the abstract theory of money as held by practically all conservative economists. Prices and money supply are closely inter-related, for the greater the supply of anything the lower its price. That is why when times are good, when business is booming and lots of money is in circulation, prices of commodities always go up. It is why today, with so little money in circulation, you can buy more wheat for a dollar, or more corn, or more automobile.

But debts which are contracted are usually stated in terms of a definite number of dollars. If I borrowed $1000 five years ago, I promised to pay $1000 today—not a given number of bushels of corn. If I had borrowed $1000 and agreed to pay 2000 bushels of corn in 1932, I would be sitting pretty—and the creditor would be hugging the bad end of a bargain. But the farmer who today owes $1000 that he borrowed in '27 is in exactly as bad shape. And after three years of depression probably two-thirds of the people in the United States owe money today. These debts were contracted when a dollar was worth less—which is simply another way of saying when prices were higher. And much if not most of today's widespread distress arises because people who borrowed a two-bushel of corn dollar five years ago now have to pay it back in a ten-bushel dollar.

If we can increase the amount of money in circulation—which is what the ultra conservative man means by "inflation"—then we shall by this much restore the relationship between what a dollar was worth when it was borrowed and when it has to be paid back. Prices would go up and the debtor who now sees no earthly possibility of ever paying for his dead horse would find himself able to pay off his debt. The creditor would not suffer any real loss, for he would probably still be paid in dollars worth more than when he lent his dollars.

I find in myself an unsuspected capacity for wrath at the misguided, if honest, individuals who object to paying the bonus or to any other method of inflation by talking about the need for this country to maintain "an honest dollar." I am myself in the creditor class, one of the folks who profit as dollars become more valuable as they have steadily become since 1928. But if it is an honest dollar which an increases in purchasing power, that the honest debtor cannot pay his debts despite herculean efforts, then I don't know what "honest" means. An honest dollar, it seems to me, is a dollar which is fair on both sides of a transaction. And today's dollar is surely extremely dishonest in its treatment of the long-term debtor.

To sum up, then, paying the bonus now, in cash and not in bonds which would offer the capitalist another safe refuge for his dollar and tax-free, would not throw us off the gold standard or impair the prestige of American money. It would raise prices, and make it possible to pay off old debts which today are simply unpayable. It would distribute the money throughout the nation lose to the great roots where it would do the most good. It would wipe the slate of unpayable debts within a few years, or raising fa m product prices, thus putting the completely farmer to work his way back to solvency. It would start the factory wheels to turning, leaving with the merchants and manufacturers and incidentally a fair profit on this business and increasing the deposits and profits of the nation's banks. It would move freight on the railroads, it would inevitably give our whole national economy a strong push in the right direction.

I have no illusion that by the simple expedient of paying the bonus, now, in cash, we should supply the nation's commercial machine enough energy to keep it going smoothly and profitably for all time to come. But I do assert, and I believe that in this article I have rather conclusively demonstrated, that the impetus thereby given to the nation's business mechanism would be enough to get it started up again, and with enough momentum to carry us over the hill and once more into the valley where can be found employment, living incomes, and fair profits.

HOLMES WAS THE FIRST GREAT CRIMINOLOGIST

Clive Brook Uses Psychological Twists As Detective

Sherlock Holmes was the first psychological criminologist, a renowned master of the art of make-up, even, on frequent occasions, fooling completely his friend and companion, Dr. Watson, with his impenetrable disguises. He was a magician who made things disappear and something else appear in their place. He was the greatest sleuth ever known, a fact that he proves again in "Sherlock Holmes", the new Fox picture coming to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday, with Clive Brook in the title role.

Miriam Jordan, English Stage beauty, who came to pictures from Broadway and made her screen debut in "Six Hours to Live," opposite Warner Baxter and John Boles, portrays the leading feminine role. Ernest Torrence, out-sailing character actor of films, enacts the role of the arch criminal "Moriarity."

Much care was exercised in the selection of the entire cast which includes such favorites as Howard Leeds, Alan Mowbray, Montagne Shaw, Arnold Lucy, Lucien Prival, Stanley Fields, Brandon Hurst, Roy D'Arcy and Herbert Mundin.

The picture was directed by William K. Howard and it deals with "Holmes" as he handles and puts down a reign of terror inaugurated by American racketeers in London. It embraces not only adventure, but romance and comedy. "Holmes" enjoys his first real love affair in this new Conan Doyle story.

"Let opportunity do all the knocking."

Many a person has looked out upon the world with hopelessness. When he meditates, apart from the clamor of the business and social world, he realizes his failure to overcome sin and his weakness in the presence of temptation. We challenge that person especially next Sunday morning.

For several Sundays back we have dealt with the problem of Sin and Salvation. The teachings of Jesus reveals the fact of Sin in all its awfulness. But He also shows how God has supplied Salvation to meet and destroy Sin and that the purpose of His mission in the world was Salvation. Last Sunday we considered Human Responsibility in the fact of the salvation. Many a hungry soul has sighed, "If I could hold out faithful I would try this salvation." Next Sunday we will tell you how Jesus teaches that it is possible for the weakest sinner can become an every day saint. Doubtful? We challenge you. Place, Congregational Church. Time, 11:00 o'clock. Subject: "Sarcstity, the Issue of Salvation."

THAT TAXES MAY BE PARTIALLY PAID NOT WELL KNOWN

Letter From Prosecuting Attorney Points Out Method

January 21, 1933.

Editor, Charlevoix Sentinel,
Charlevoix, Michigan.
Dear Editor:

There is quite a general misunderstanding of the people relative to the methods available for paying taxes. It is the general impression of taxpayers that there is no way in installments but that the whole of a given years taxes must be paid in full or none at all. This is not the case. Taxes can be paid in installments.

The taxpayer may pay to the treasurer the whole of any single item of taxes as found in any single column of the tax roll. That is, he may pay his township tax at one time, his school tax another, his state tax at another and so on until the full total of his taxes is paid. The treasurer is bound to accept such payment and give a proper receipt. Likewise taxes returned to the County Treasurer may be paid in the same way. Of course, this means some extra work for the treasurer but none of them will object on this account.

If the tax goes to sale only the unpaid portion can be sold by the state. It must be understood that the taxpayer cannot limit to the Treasurer a certain amount of money and have it applied on the whole tax. He must select and designate the item of taxes he wishes to pay and tender the amount necessary for that item. In cities where taxes are payable twice a year, the same rule applies. The taxpayer may pay any item of the tax found in a single column of the tax roll and defer the other items to a later time. This amounts to installment payments and should be a convenience to many taxpayers who find it difficult to get enough money together to pay a whole tax.

Very truly yours,
A. L. Fitch,
Prosecuting Attorney.

MASONS PLAN JOINT MEETING WITH O. E. S.

Program of Varied Entertainment, Friday, January 27

Members of O. E. S. and F. and A. M. with their families will hold a special joint meeting of entertainment at the Masonic Temple Friday evening, January 27th.

An elaborate program consisting of music, dancing, and games, together with a pot luck lunch is being arranged by a special committee in charge, and in which the interest of the fraternity members centers.

The present outlook points to an extra large attendance at the feature to be presented. It is a family function in which special care is being taken in order to provide entertainment by those in charge and in a variety that will be enjoyable to all in attendance.

Leonard Bailey of the firm of Bailey Bros, hardware merchants at Bellaire was a business visitor here a day or two ago.

TWENTY-EIGHT BOYS' AND GIRLS' CLUBS IN COUNTY

Over 570 Young Folks Enrolled in 4-H Activities

We certainly can be pleased with the splendid 4-H Club program inthat is being carried on in the county this winter. The enrollment exceeds last year by quite a margin in spite of the fact that we have one less club.

Recent visits to these clubs find their programs are coming along nicely and that Achievement Day to be held some time in April will be an occasion you are sure to enjoy.

This winter we have 10 Handicraft Clubs, 12 Clothing and 6 Hot Lunch Clubs.

An announcement that will be of interest to the many club leaders in the county is that the next leaders' conference will be held in the Boyne City Gymnasium on Thursday, February 2th, with a supper at 6:00 p. m. Mr. Kettunen, State Club leader, and Miss Sylva Wixson, will be present to help us in our 4-H Club program. A cordial invitation to be present at this conference is extended to the Presidents and Secretaries of the clubs. The cost of the meal will be very nominal, not to exceed 20c. Games and recreation will follow the supper, after which Mr. Kettunen and Miss Wixson will meet with their respective groups and discuss ways and means of improving the club work in the county.

PETITIONS ARE IN CIRCULATED FOR STATE RELIEF

tates of Michigan to enact laws in accordance with the foregoing."

Relieving property tax of a large portion of the cost of education has had the endorsement of the state's leading educators for years. The shifting of the main burden from the local property owner will in effect bring the major responsibility for the schools' support back to the state, much in accordance with the original concept of the framers of the constitution.

Maintenance of the present Primary Fund would be fundamental. The creation of a Central state school fund would be a part of the plan to equalize educational costs and opportunities. The petition asks the state to provide sufficient revenue so that the public schools of Michigan may be maintained at least on the 1923 level of operating costs.

NATIONAL DEFENSE

Assuring reports come from men who have talked with President-elect Roosevelt that he favors an army and navy big enough and efficient enough to defend the interests of the United States. As Mr. Roosevelt was once an assistant secretary of the Navy and a very active one, it was to be expected that this would be his position on the question of national defense.

The first line of defense, so far as foreign invasion is concerned, is of course our navy. And along with our navy goes the American merchant marine which would be absolutely essential to the effective operation of our iron-clads in time of national peril.

Great efforts have been made to show up the construction of the American navy up to treaty strength. All sorts of excuses have been offered by the pacifists. Some of them declare that we cannot afford it. Others say that there is no war in sight and that therefore we do not need more naval strength.

As to the question of not being able to afford a strong navy, it may be answered that we certainly cannot afford to be without adequate naval protection unless we want to take a chance on what might happen in case of a foreign attack which found us defenseless and ready for the plucking.

The other day a prominent woman pacifist declared that we could cut down expenses by cutting down our military and naval forces because there is no war in sight and no danger of war for a long time to come. The most charitable thing which can be said for this woman is that she is too busy to read the newspapers. That is the most favorable interpretation which can be placed on her words. For if she knew anything about the difficulties in the Orient, and about the sore spots everywhere, she would know that the only thing which keeps the world from war now is the lack of ready money.

Of course Uncle Sam doesn't want to get into any war which might start. But the best way to be able to stay out is to have a navy which commands the respect of the entire world.

Attacks on our tiny but efficient army are fully as violent as on our navy. The in spite of the fact that our army is little more than a police force when compared in size with the armies of a great many countries much smaller than our own.

We have for this statement the authority of General Douglas MacArthur, Chief of Staff of the Army, who told the Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives the other day that the United States is now seventeenth in point of military strength among the nations of the world.

Strange to say the nation with the greatest military strength is Soviet Russia which so many of our pacifists seem to admire. Russia has an active force of 848,600 with reserves which bring her total forces up to 18,875,000.

France is next with an active force and trained reserves totaling 6,975,000. Italy comes third with a force of 6,498,000. Other nations which have twice as many in their active forces and their reserves as has Uncle Sam are Spain, Japan, Poland, China, Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia, Yugoslavia, British Empire and Sweden.

Other nations which surpass us in military strength are Turkey, Switzerland, Belgium and Greece.

Yet a great many of these nations owe us money and say they can't afford to pay us.

A HOME PROBLEM

We have now traveled far enough into 1933 to be able to see that there will be no radical change in conditions during the first part of the year at least. Business in the early months of the year is going to be considerably better than in the corresponding months of 1933. Last year, beginning in midsummer, there was a decided pickup. It is to be hoped that there will be a similar pickup this year and that, with no national election to interrupt it, the improvement will be of more permanent character.

One of the phenomena of this stage of the depression is the continuing of the belief in the minds of a great many people that somehow or other our return to prosperity depends on Europe. This belief is of course fostered by the internationalists who are anxious to have the war debts cancelled and in sorts into the United States increased.

But these internationalists have as yet been unable to bring forth any convincing argument to show that debt cancellation will make things easier in the United States. They say that the cancellation of the debts will give the people of Europe more money with which to buy our products. There might be some benefit there if cancellation were really cancellation. But if we let Europe off about these debts the people of the United States will have to pay the debts. So, for every million dollars which European purchasing power might be increased by cancellation, a million will be taken from the purchasing power of the American people by increased taxation. So assuming that Europe would spend in our country all of the money saved by cancellation, which of course she wouldn't, we would be no better off so far as our commerce is concerned. The European taxpayer would simply be relieved at the expense of the American taxpayer.

Europe, except insofar as she started the World War did not cause our depression and cannot cure it. The depression was caused by over-expansion and extreme deflation. Now the value of our raw materials is pretty thoroughly deflated and prices of finished goods are rapidly being deflated too as are our wage scales.

What then remains to be done to insure economic convalescence? What remains to be done is to deflate taxes, and this can only be done by deflating the expenses of our governments, national, state and local. When this is done, when budgets are balanced in nation, state, city and village, and economic deflation is entirely completed, we will be ready for recovery.

What we must concentrate on now, therefore, is not Europe's problems but our own problems in the high cost of government.

So many of our financial writers are lined up with the anti-nationalists that it is conforming from bias to fact to quote from one who can see clearly. For instance, a recent article by R. W. McNeel, says, in touching on this phase of our economic situation:

"In 1932 U. S. people of this country or their representative will have to decide whether they want fewer holes in their clothes, and more holes in the street pavements, or the reverse; whether they want more comforts in the home, or whether they prefer to spend their money to support obsolete Washington bureaus, and have their waste baskets cluttered up with useless reports and statistics; whether they prefer to pay the interest on the mortgages on their homes in order that governments may continue expensive frills on our educational system, that a previous generation got along without.

"The chief solution of our troubles lies in our own back yard, not in France, or England, or Latvia, or in the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes."

IS AMERICAN INIATIVE A MYTH?

The people of the United States have a reputation for initiative and enterprise.

They start things and they finish them.

They have a chance now to demonstrate their ability as never before.

Everyone is waiting for "business to pick up." But business won't pick up of its own accord. It will pick up when the desire and the determination to do something rises again in our national consciousness.

There are about 25 or 30 million families in the United States. This means that there are some 30 million men who are actual producers.

Payrolls depend on construction activity—the building and upkeep of homes, factories and enterprises which consume every imaginable product.

Building has been going down steadily for the past several years until it has become almost stagnant. Thousands of structures are deteriorating because of lack of repairs, paint, rotting foundations, leaky plumbing, worn out heating plants, crumbling chimneys and a thousand and one other things which have been let go.

Never in years could repair work or new construction be done as cheaply as today.

There are millions of individuals and industries in this country that have savings and are well able to carry on necessary improvements now.

Starting a few million jobs, varying in amounts from ten dollars to a few thousand dollars each, would release an avalanche of money and start the cycle of industry.

Employment would increase; our nation would take heart and commerce and industry would slowly regain a normal stride.

Do it now! Investment and employment are cheaper than charity!

THE WAR AND HIGH TAXES

In the Boston News Bureau, Sherwin C. Badger explodes the theory that the tremendous increase in per capita federal government outlay is primarily the result of war.

If the war years are omitted entirely, and all war costs—such as interest and sinking fund payments arising from war borrowings, veterans' expenses, etc—are deducted, the cost of government in 1932 was $22 per capita—three times pre-war cost. If Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds and Federal Land Bank subscriptions are included, the cost was $29.12—nearly four times pre-war expenditures.

What happened was that the cost of government was immensely increased during the boom years, when gigantic revenues accrued from income and similar capital taxes. Governmental activities of all kinds were broadened; new departments and bureaus came into existence by the hundred; thousands of new employes were given places on the government payroll. Now income taxes have lost their potency in producing revenue, and government is attempting the impossible—to operate on a boom standard at a time when the national income of its people is the smallest in a great many years.

When times change for the worse, businesses and individuals make necessary changes to compensate — they adjust outgo to income. Government must do precisely the same thing if the deficit is to be conquered; the budget balanced, the national credit maintained and the taxpayers saved from ruin.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank Litschert

After each new President is inducted into office there is usually a period of six months in which the opposition party lays off so to speak and the new executive is given a chance to work out his policies. This period is usually called the incoming chief's "honeymoon". There are indications however that President-elect Roosevelt's political honeymoon will not be as extended as many of those which have gone before. There is, of course, a reason. We are now in the midst of a great depression. And a depression does not make for an extended honeymoon, either socially or politically.

The reason is that there are so many questions requiring immediate attention and immediate debate that the battle lines will probably be drawn rather quickly. A depression is no respecter of persons. It made the official life of President Hoover a burden and it is likely to do the same thing for Mr. Roosevelt, unless the clouds lift pretty quickly. Then again, the Democrats during the campaign, promised quick relief from the depression. They will be expected to make good, and if they do not do so in a reasonably short time the honeymoon will be over with a vengeance. A great many people who voted for Roosevelt and Garner expected the depression to lift the next day after the election and were surprised when there was not at once a tremendous upsurge in the stock market. Then they consoled themselves that things would be all right on March 5. Now they are beginning to wonder whether prosperity will be restored overnight even then.

Of course there was no sensible reason for expecting a business revival immediately after the election. The revival will come sooner or later, but not because of this recent election or any other election. It will come when the processes of deflation are checked or completed, and when the cost of government and the tax rate get down on a level with the cost of labor and of commodities.

The problems confronting the new administration are almost too numerous to mention. They are to be found in both the domestic and the international field. In the domestic field they include the balancing of the budget, the reorganization of the government in the interests of economy, the adjudication of liquor question and the "rescue" of the farmer. In the international field we might mention the question of debt settlements, of American adherence to the world court, of disarmament, Manchuria and our relations with Russia.

There is room for the application of some real statesmanship, political and economic, in these questions. Some of them are going to be difficult to solve satisfactorily, especially those dealing with liquor, with agriculture and economy. All of them are conducive to the termination of political honeymoons. And in addition, there will be confronting the new administration the question of patronage. The Democrats have been out of power quite awhile and there are plenty of hungry office seekers, one might say scores of office seekers for each available political job. For each man who is satisfied with a position there will be dozens who are disappointed. And political disappointment, too, is conducive to the termination of political honeymoons.

The year 1933, in other words, is fraught with grave and important issues at home and abroad. That Mr. Roosevelt and his new Congress will be able to solve them is the heartfelt wish of every American who has been touched by the depression, and that means 99 out of each 100. But if they are to be solved during the period of political honeymoon a definite program will have to be determined on by Mr. Roosevelt and the Democratic leaders of the new Congress almost immediately. Even then it is going to be a tough job. In the meantime the Republicans are in the minority. Being in the minority has its drawbacks but also its advantages. It is so much easier for a statesman to enjoy himself when he is in the minority.

New Recognition Movement

There has of late been a reopening of the movement for American recognition of the Russian soviet government and some of the friends of the movement now believe that such recognition will be attained during the next administration. There is an interesting summary of this latest movement for Russian recognition in the current issue of the National Republic. It was written by Samuel Saloman, a student of Russian affairs, under the caption 'Russia Drives for Recognition." In part, Mr. Saloman says:

"Various of our administrations, Democratic and Republican, from the regime of Woodrow Wilson to and including Herbert Hoover, have set their faces against recognition, and for many good and sufficient reasons accepted by the American people as sound and reasonable.

"They were careful, however, to point out that the form of government obtaining in Russia was no concern of ours, just as our form of government should be of no concern to Russians, but there is a real difference since Russia's activities are not confined within her own borders.

"One and all envisioned unpleasant consequences to us as a nation and as individuals, should we relent and rashly admit such unspeakable and unrepentant state to diplomatic representation and all that goes with it.

"In a sense we had extended certain recognition to Russia in that we recognized that the people of what formerly was Russia had the right to supplant one form of government and of industry with her own boundaries with another and even to employ revolution to effect such ends.

"We recognized that they had a right to the government of their choice, or none at all if they so chose, even if the governments they chose were in all ways abhorrent to us. But we have refused to grant any government the right to force its plan on us. We recognized that the government adopted, or the way have been forced on the Russian people, may become stable even though it is maintained by the bayonet and might in that manner continue to carry out its obligations as a nation, if it be in a mood to do so.

"And it must be admitted that thus far our government has interposed no serious obstacles to legitimate and fair trade between the people of the United States and the Soviet Union.

"But we have studiously avoided official recognition in a larger diplomatic sense, and it is our earnest hope that such governmental action may continue to be the policy of those who speak and act for us in the United States.

"That brings up the question, What is implied by formal, or diplomatic, recognition?

"Under international law in diplomatic recognition, the privilege is accorded the recognized nation to establish an embassy, consulates, and the like throughout our country, manned by its own representatives, the number of whom is unlimited. And it is recognized under international law and custom that these diplomatic agents have certain special privileges and immunities and these briefly are:

"They have inviolability—are exempt from civil and criminal prosecutions.

"They enjoy extra-territoriality—the courts of the receiving country, civil and criminal, are as to them without any jurisdiction.

"For any offense committed or for intermeddling in the affairs of the other country, their representative may be expelled, of course, or more generally his recall is requested on ground that he no longer is persona grata and a new one is sent.

"These privileges are extended as well to those in the diplomatic suite and to their goods and papers, in their possession or in transit to them.

"So one can readily see recognition is not quite the simple thing it is thought to be and should only be extended, as has been the practice, to a sovereign state, one that not only is able but is disposed to carry out in spirit and in letter the obligations thus solemnly entered into."

Fred Strip, the well known Charlevoix boy, who enlisted last year, is a clerk in the office of the military governor of Luzon at Manila.

The Men's Auxiliary of the Congregational church will hold an old fashioned spelling school at K. P. hall on Friday evening of this week.

On Monday evening last, Hose Co. No. 1, Charlevoix Fire Department elected the following officers: Pres., Daniel Durance; chief, A. B. Brink, assistant chief, Frank Lamphear; foreman of company, Daniel Durance; fuseman of hose, Will Rice; secretary, C. H. Lamphear; treasurer, A. B. Brink.

Supervisor John Ward announces that owing to failing health he will not be a candidate for supervisor the coming spring. And this affords the Sentinel an opportunity to speak of the public services of Mr. Ward. John Ward came to Charlevoix county in 1869, the year the Sentinel was founded —thirty-four years ago. For 32 of these 34 years he has held office, and has never been defeated. He was supervisor of Marion fifteen years, register of deeds four years, and county treasurer four years, and has been supervisor of Charlevoix township the past two years.

No county or township ever had a more capable or faithful officer than John Ward has been. As a supervisor he has been especially valuable; and it is safe to say that no one knows more about real estate valuations in Charlevoix county, than John Ward—not even the celebrated Michigan Tax Commission.

One of the greatest events in the history of Charlevoix Pythianism occurred at Castle Hall last Tuesday evening, on the occasion of the visit of Grand Chancellor Leo A. Caro, of Grand Rapids and Grand Master at Arms Palmer, of Manistee.

The visit of Grand Chancellor Caro, being of the nature of inspection, the rank of Knight was conferred in amplified form on two candidates, the work being a friendly contest between two "teams," commanded by W. E. Hampton and A. L. Fitch, respectively, while the work of both teams was admirably well done. Mr. Fitch carried off the honors with his men.

At the close of the work a banquet was spread by Caterer Culman, and it was about three o'clock when the gathering dispersed. There were speeches and a jolly good time socially.

Delegations of Knights from Central Lake, Bellaire and East Jordan were present.

On Monday the telegraph announced the death, at Chicago of Mrs. Caldwell, Mrs. C. fiedl of pneumonia, aged 57. Capt. Clifford bought the remains here for the last rites and burial. The funeral was held Wednesday at the M. E. church Rev. G. Daniels preaching the sermon. Mrs. Colwell is well known by Charlevoix people, having, from time to time, during the Captain's sojourn here, resided among us.

Capt. W. Clifford, U. S. A., has been in town for the past few days. The Captain has, during his leave of absence for the past three months, been developing himself to the introduction of his patent camp stoves A military Board convened recently at Newport, Kentucky, to examine into the merits of the stove, and their report is a most emphatic recommend and testimonial of its perfection. The Government, on strength of it, has ordered fifty stoves for use in the army, which is virtually the adoption of it in the army. The Captain is now engaged in securing a patent in Great Britain, Germany, Russia and Turkey, and that eventually it will be into the military service of those countries there is little doubt. The captain has a honanza in this invention. He left here for Chicago yesterday to join his family, and from there he joins his regiment, at Fort Bridge, Wyo.

Don't get mad and damn the snow, but think of our esteemed townsmen who are shuffling around in a country where they have gone.

From Beaver Island

On Monday Dec. 18, Bernard McCafferty, Dan O'Donnell and Frank McCafferty left Beaver Island in two boats for High Island after some packages of fish. The first named started with his boat and load of fish arriving safe at Indian Point, B. I. The other boys boat grounded near the beach which delayed them; they finally got off but the wind coming up and a heavy sea running they were obliged to run back to the north-west part of High Island, leaving their loaded boat and made their way to the school house at High Island Harbor. In the meantime there was a great excitement among their friends and relatives on the west side of Beaver Island at their non-arrival. Supposing them to be lost, they searched all night and on Tuesday went to High Island finding them all safe, built a bonfire Tuesday evening to appraise friends on Beaver Island of their safety and returned Thursday with one boat, and Friday with a boat load of fish. On the 21st the roof of Daniel Boyle's barn fell in. His son Phil, who was foddering the cattle, had a narrow escape, hearing it crack, he jumped down below just in time to avoid being struck by the falling roof.

OVER TWO HUNDRED ATTEND MEETINGS ON AGRICULTURE

During the last two weeks 16 agricultural meetings were held in all sections of the county by B. C. Mollenkamp, Co. Agricultural agent. There has never been a project that covered the county to the same extent with as good an attendance as these meetings. The weather conditions were extremely favorable and as a result everyone could attend their nearest meeting place without inconvenience.

Space does not permit a detailed account of the many suggestions offered, but briefly, most of the time was devoted to a discussion of how to properly feed the dairy cow under present conditions. First of all alfalfa hay was decided to be the very best hay to use because it is of high protein content, while Timothy hay, for instance, has only 3 per cent, thus it would take three tons of Timothy hay to give you the same pounds of protein as would be fed in one ton of alfalfa. Protein being so important factor in milk production, and also the most expensive feed to buy, it is certainly to be recommended to feed high protein feeds in the roughage to make a more economical ration. So feed as much good quality alfalfa hay as the cows will consume and the more hay they eat the more milk you get at a cheaper cost.

In regard to silage, it was brought out that silage should not be fed in as large quantities as was formerly recommended, for if cows eat too much silage they do not have the capacity for consuming as much alfalfa hay as is necessary. Silage has only 1 per cent protein while alfalfa hay has 10 per cent and protein is what we want to give the cows. Where we used to say feed three pounds of silage to 100 pounds of live weight of the animal, it is much better to feed two pounds to 100 pounds of live weight.

The next important factor is what kind of grain to feed to balance up the cow's needs and demands. In the first place, a farmer must utilize his home grown grains to the very best advantage in order to get by with the cheap price of butter fat. It was pretty well decided that a farmer today would not need to buy but a very small amount of high protein supplements if he had the right kind of alfalfa hay to use as a roughage.

In regard to grain, several new suggestions were made. The first one was that a dairyman does not need to be so much concerned with the varieties of grains as used to be recommended. Practically any combination of home grown grains can be used to very good advantage, if the proper protein balance is made. Secondly, we used to worry a lot about having the grain ration bulky, but now we find that the cow handles all feeds about the same. Third, we used to think that cotton seed meal could not be used very nicely by the animal. Now we find that cotton seed meal can be used in whatever quantities is necessary to balance a ration and with no detrimental results.

The main thing in regard to feeding the proper grain ration to a dairy animal is to have a sufficient amount of protein in it and that is about all. Thus if a person fed alfalfa hay in the grain ration he would only need to buy 100 pounds of cotton seed to mix with 900 lbs. of his homegrown feeds in order to have a balanced ration. If he fed mixed hay as his roughage he would have to buy 200 pounds of cotton seed to add to his 800 pounds to have similar results. If he used the Timothy hay then he would have to buy 300 pounds of cotton seed to give the same results Thus any dairyman can decide for himself how to balance his ration by first knowing how much protein his roughage is furnishing the animal and then buying from 100 to 300 pounds of cottonseed to balance up the deficiency in protein.

Another important factor is that of having minerals in the ration. When cows have this depraved appetite indicated by eating bones and wood and many other similar substances, then we know they lack phosphorus. In fact, in experiments, cows that lack phosphorus eat from 3 to 5 pounds less hay, which decreases their milk production accordingly and the same cows when phosphorus was added to their ration increased their consumption of hay from 3 to 5 pounds, showing that phosphorus is closely correlated with the amount of hay that the cows will consume. We would recommend that steamed bone meal be fed at the rate of 2 pounds per 100 pounds of grain or used with salt at the rate of 2 pounds of bone meal to one pound of salt, before cows at all times.

In regard to raising the dairy calf two recommendations are in order: one that most people overfeed the young calf, which in many cases causes scours and other disturbances. A better calf can be raised if you use a small amount of milk than where too much is used. We would say a 50 pound calf would get along nicely with from 5 to 10 pounds of milk per day for the first two or three weeks and that a 75 pound calf can get along nicely on from 7 to 12 pounds of milk daily. The grain fed to young calves does not need to be ground for the first six months as the calves will do better doing their own grinding on it.

The balance of the time was spent in discussing the agricultural situation supported by many facts, statistics and data. Some little time was spent on taxation problems and the balance devoted to what Uncle Sam is doing to be of assistance to farmers.

It was very gratifying to note how freely tax dairymen entered into the talks and voiced their own viewpoints. In fact with the statistics and data many people have a clearer knowledge of just what has taken place, what is taking place and what the future might hold for.

UNPAID TAXES

thousands of acres of timber lands on the said premises for the taxes so advertised for said year, his account in connection therewith as the same appears on file for publication in said newspaper in an entirely different light. His personal interest and at no time been considered. The surprising discovery of his own interest in a matter involving so important official act taken by him has caused an end of comment in Lansing in one county the treasurer reports that the auditor general's office is forcing delinquent taxes on timber lands amounting to over $10,000. It is stated that he has delinquent holdings in at least three Upper Peninsula counties. Not only are his taxes delinquent in these counties, but they are to be offered for sale in May. Stack counted before this action against public citation of these lists as an economy measure. Now that the facts are available it is very evident to whose pockets the economy was intended to imply.

Members of the legislature are still waiting for the administration's economy program. While they are waiting, they are not letting the days go to waste however because of the fact that they are advancing legislation along examining lines recommended by the commission that made a study of state affairs last year. When it is all over with, one member of the legislature says, that much of the economy legislation will be that recommended by this commission.

Senator Francis Culp of Battle Creek has let it be known that he is not in favor of handing down the taxpayers with more taxes to pay in order to build more roads, more buildings and more whatnots to provide employment for the idle. Senator Culp declares that he favors less government and more individual initiative. He says "Take the tax burden off the people and they will soon find their way out of this condition. But to tax people more in order to give the unemployed work would be making the gravest mistake we can make" he declares. It is quite evident that the legislature is being divided into two camps, one that wants more money for public work to give employment and the other group opposing additional taxation for improvements in order to provide jobs This faction seems to hold the predominant position.

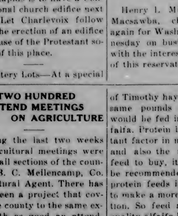
MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.



ON GUARD . . . while you sleep

Each night, many thousands of Michigan families rest more safely and securely because of the telephone in the house.

For, day and night, summer and winter, the telephone stands ready to summon police at the first unexplained sound . . . firemen, at the first ominous whiff of smoke . . . a doctor, when accident or sudden illness intrudes.

Just one telephone call, in an emergency, may be worth more to you than the cost of telephone service for a lifetime.

"The Lord is a sun and a sun and a shield; no good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly." Psalms 84:11.

Next Sunday our church program will be crowded with interesting features. The Polar Bears will worship with us. The sermon will be the first number of the third and last division of our series, "The Teachings of Christ." The Fortnightly Social program of the Senior C. E. will take place in the evening. And every one who attends the Sunday School will have an opportunity to be in a motion picture.

Our subject for the morning will be "The Fundamental Conception." The title of this division in our series is "The Teachings of Christ Concerning the Kingdom of God." That we may thoroughly understand the following sermons and their applications we must understand what Jesus meant when He spoke of the Kingdom of God. The Kingdom of God is an important fact in the lives of Christians and non-Christians. Be present Sunday with a determination not to miss one of these eight sermons.

Mr. Earl Young took us by surprise during the Sunday School hour by announcing that he would take a motion picture of the Sunday School next Sunday. The film will be displayed the evening of February 9 when the Sunday School gathers at a banquet in honor of the class that won a recent contest.

An effort will be made to organize a class for young married people next Sunday at the Sunday School hour. The rules will be elastic enough to take in the older young people who have not seen fit to launch into the sea of matrimony.

Thomas Henry Sinclair

Services for the late Thomas Henry Sinclair were held at the Orville Hilton farm home Friday afternoon January 27th, Rev. G. Russell Parker of the local Congregational church preached the sermon using for his text John 14:1,2,3.

Thomas Henry Sinclair was born in Canada August 25, 1852 and passed away June 25, 1933, aged 80 years and 5 months. In 1871 he moved with his parents to Michigan and settled on a farm near Antrim City. He spent the latter part of his life on the Hilton farm where he passed away. He was the eldest of a family of eleven children, three of whom survive. One brother and two sisters: Albert Sinclair, Mrs. Frances Crawford and Mrs. Harry Hyde all of Ellsworth.

NTER-STATE MEET ON COMMERCIAL FISHING REGULATIONS HELD

Fred Westerman Capt. Allers Represent Michigan

Apparent agreement of various commercial officials at an inter-state meeting held at Chicago and favorable attitude of the state legislature through adoption of a resolution seeking joint control with Wisconsin in certain waters has brightened prospects for standardization of commercial fishing regulations on the Great Lakes.

The states of Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and Michigan were represented at the Chicago meeting, with Fred A. Westerman, superintendent of fisheries and Capt. Charles Allers in charge of commercial fisheries law enforcement of the Michigan Department of Conservation.

Uniform regulations for commercial fishing gear, seasons and size limits were discussed with a result that attempts will be made to establish standard laws for fishing in Great Lakes waters.

Almost simultaneously with the Chicago meeting a joint resolution, introduced by Senator W. F. Doyle, was presented to both houses of the Michigan legislature. The resolution proposes the creation of a committee of the House and Senate which will "wait upon the governor and legislature of Wisconsin a joint control of the commercial fishing in the waters along the boundaries of said states."

The resolution grows out of a long time difference between the two states as to the boundaries through Green Bay. As a result enforcement of commercial fishing regulations in the area has been difficult for both states. Some sort of joint control, the resolution states, is highly desirable.

CLUB LEADERS AND OFFICERS WILL ENJOY SUPPER, PROGRAM

At Boyne City Gymnasium On Thursday, February 9th

Great plans are being made for the winter club leaders' training meeting which will be attended by Mr. A. G. Kettunen, state club leader, and Miss Sylvia Wixson, assistant club leader. All club leaders, presidents and secretaries of clubs, and club boosters are most cordially invited to enjoy this evening together. The supper will be at 6:00 o'clock and the price will not be over 25c.

After the supper, games and recreation will be enjoyed and then the group will be divided into two sections, one more especially interested in the boys' work and the other in the girls' program.

With the splendid program that is being developed in the county it is quite necessary to send from time to time and discuss the many problems that come up in regard to the 4-H club program.

It is requested that all who plan to be present will notify the county agent so that plans can be made for the number of dates necessary.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS TO PRESENT PLAY "DETOURS AHEAD"

A One-Act Play With Seven Characters; Date Undecided

The Epworth League will present a play "Detour Ahead" with seven characters, the evening of February 28. Rehearsals have been going on for some time and the actors are enthusiastic.

This is a one-act play requiring about 45 minutes for dramatization. In order to make a full evening of entertainment, there will be other features added to the program. These include a few well chosen musical numbers and one or two "stunts." It is planned to use all members of the organization in one number or another.

The Maccabee Circle will meet with Mrs. Ed. Heise, Antrim street, Friday afternoon. All members and friends are invited.

SECOND MEETING COOPERATION SERIES FEBRUARY 9

To Meet In Federal Building In Boyne City

A fine representative group is expected to attend the second meeting of the series of three being held for cooperative managers, board of directors, and others interested in the cooperative movement. At the last meeting 29 people were present, representing 7 different cooperative agencies in the 5 counties of this district.

These meetings are valuable because the subject matter discussed is of vital importance as they touch upon present day conditions and how the cooperative associations can meet the new situations.

Kindly remember that you are welcome to attend and to enter into the splendid discussions.

Held On Arson Charge

Perry Campbell of Boyne City was arraigned before Judge ReiBert Withers Monday, charged with arson. At the conclusion of the examination Campbell was bound over to appear at Circuit Court for trial and bond fixed at $1,000. A series of recent fires at Boyne City entailing the loss of considerable amounts and a robbery through which the Cooperative Association lost $250, are being traced and it is alleged that Campbell can if he will assist in clearing up some if not all of the severe crimes perpetrated. In fact officers in charge state that Campbell has confessed participating in some of the fires listed and under investigation.

Killed In Auto Crash

Miss Marian Behan, 16 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Behan of Petoskey, who was injured by an automobile accident died Wednesday without regaining consciousness. TAXPAYER IS INTERESTED IN WELFARE OF CHARLEVOIX

Expresses Views On Proposed Sewage Disposal Plant

January 29, 1933

Mr. Ira A. Adams,
Charlevoix, Michigan.

My Dear Sir:

I have read with a great deal of interest in the columns of The Sentinel, an article in regard to a sewerage disposal plant for Charlevoix. I noticed the Mayor appointed a committee and asked them to make a report on the proposition, as yet I haven't seen their report. Being interested as I am and have been for nearly forty years in what I consider the best interests of the City of Charlevoix, personally I can't see any sense for a plant of this kind. I don't know of any contamination in any of the waters of Charlevoix that would ever cause any uneasiness in regards to the health of the people of our little city. The construction of this proposition will cost several thousands of dollars and I understand they have this money in the treasury at this time, earnings of our electric light plant. That is very good. Now in spending this money for a proposition of this kind which I consider absolutely unnecessary, it would only mean another expense to our city to maintain and keep a plant of this kind in running order. That would be another perpetual expense to taxpayers as already stated. I don't think we need the disposal proposition at all.

Now if the mayor and his council want to do something that would be a credit to the city and give us some publicity, that I think would be very beneficial in many ways, take that $36,000 which they have in the treasury and which has been exacted from the taxpayers of the City of Charlevoix and run the city this coming year on that $36,000 and suspend the city tax for that period. I can't see why it wouldn't be made to perpetuate each year as the little plan will continue to earn that same amount of money each year. It would give the people of our city a breathing spell and also set an example to other communities to relieve the people already overburdened with taxation from every angle. It would give the people of Charlevoix a chance to spend a little money painting up their homes and repairing them and in many ways leave them free to spend a little of their own money for their own benefit instead of making them save and pinch every damn penny they can get to pay their taxes with and as I have said before, this money that they have in the treasury belongs to the taxpayers and it would only be spending the money that belongs to them for a purpose for which they are justly in right to participate, viz: No summer tax if the Honorable Mayor and the City Council wanted to do something that would please the entire people let them think that over instead of figuring out some way of spending the money that would add another tax to us, after they get it, to keep it up.

Yours very truly,

A Taxpayer

PEOPLE'S STATE SAVINGS BANK OF PELLSTON CLOSES

"Frozen Assets" Cause of Action; Organized 1910

The People's State Savings Bank of Pellston failed to open for business Monday, a voluntary action taken by its board of directors Saturday in order to conserve so far as possible the assets of the institution for the benefit of depositors and stockholders.

Mr. A. H. Buttars, well known in Charlevoix, has been cashier of the bank since it was organized as a State Bank in 1910 and prior to such organization a member of and cashier of a private bank that was merged into the State Bank just closed.

The closing of the bank is attributed to frozen assets such as farm mortgages, bonds, stocks and other frozen investments upon which the bank was unable to realize during the long drawn out business depression.

CARD PARTY AT ST. MARY'S HALL GREATLY ENJOYED

Clinton Cooper Walks Away With First Bridge Prize

Another big program, another big attendance and another big night of entertainment was gladly enjoyed by everyone attending the social function at St. Mary's hall last Monday night, all of whom sound loud praises for the committee arranging and carrying out of the program. William Gibson was chairman of the entertainment committee and other members were: Fred Seymour, P. E. Carlier and L. Orlowski.

In the bridge game Clinton Cooper walked away with the first prize and Mrs. James Durance was awarded a like prize in the pedro games, while Mrs. J. J. Haflett captured the door prize. Eleven tables were engaged in the bridge and pedro games. In addition the refreshments served prove to be a most satisfactory attraction.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Edwards Are Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Edwards of Charlevoix celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Friday evening of last week at their home on May Street, with their six children and eleven grand-children present. With the "in-laws", there were twenty-six people present in the family group. Several fine wedding presents were displayed and ice cream, cake and coffee were served, the honored couple cooperating in the cutting of the big wedding cake which was the main feature of the feast.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, who were born in Kent, England, within a few years of each other, about the middle of the nineteenth century, were married in 1883 at Upper Raynham near London and came to this country with their two oldest children, Herbert and Percy in 1888, first settling in the southern part of Michigan. They came to Charlevoix in 1892, following the birth of their two daughters, Ivy and Nellie —the former, now Mrs. Cameron McNally and the latter, now Mrs. Fred V. Tyler. They located on a farm near Mt. Mc Sauba owned by the late R. W. Kane. Here, Mr. Edwards began the milk business which he followed for eleven years, during which time he acquired the property which he later sold to E. C. Waller of Chicago and that became a part of the Orchard Bay Farm for which Mr. Edwards subsequently served as manager for a number of years. On the Kane place, the three younger boys were born—Edward, now warden of the Beltedere Association, and Arthur and Albert, now associated with their father and elder brother, Percy, in the conduct of the present greenhouse and vegetable business. Here also occurred the death of the eldest son, Herbert, the severe prostration of the entire family with typhoid fever and a disastrous fire that left them without a home.

LOCAL PASTOR ATTENDS MINISTERS' ASSOCIATION

Charlevoix Ministers Meet To Plan Good Friday Meet

Rev. G. R. Parker attended the monthly meeting of the L. T. B. Ministers Association on Monday in the M. E. Church at Harbor Springs. Rev. Paul Bondaugh reviewed the Commissions' report, "Re-Thinking Missions." The report was delightful because Rev. Bondaugh is a product of Presbyterian Missions, but there was a general dissatisfaction with many suggestions in the report. If such feeling is general the Mission Boards that adopt the report as a whole will have considerable trouble on their hands.

A meeting of the Charlevoix ministers was held after the Association meeting to arrange the Good Friday service for this year. Because there is such a universal sanction in this county of these meetings it seems to be the feeling that we should continue the same as the past two years. Rev. G. R. Parker was asked to submit a plan of procedure to be submitted to the ministers very soon.

MASON CRIBBAGE PLAYERS TRIMMING FROM ODD FELLOWS

In Fifth Game Of Series Played At I.O.O.F. Hall

Masonic cribbage players took a stiff neck on the chin handed to them by their Odd Fellow opponents at I. O. O. F. hall last Monday night when the fifth of a series of ten cribbage games entered into some weeks ago.

At the conclusion of the play for Monday night the Odd Fellows had added 19,826 and the Masons 19600 points to their previous score, an increase of 236 for the Odd Fellows, thereby giving them a total lead for the five games played of 1067

Individual high scores for Monday nights play made for only honors Ben Nowland for the Odd Fellows was high point man with 955 and Morris Ackert for the Masons like number 950.

The sixth of the series of games is scheduled for Monday night, February 13, at the Masonic temple.

Throughout Michigan Week of February 12 to 19

In every Baptist Church in Michigan during the week of Feb. 12 to 19 will be seen a group of Christian Young People actively engaged in carrying out the program and mission of the church.

Charlevoix Baptist Young People will have charge of all the services for the both Sundays including the Prayer-service for next Wednesday night.

Our morning service starts promptly at 10:30 and the evening service at 7 p. m.

Special features are being worked out by the Young People, for all services. We invite all to cooperate by being present, at these services.

The entire services center around the one Central Theme, "The Cross of Christ, the Challenge of Youth Today."

CONSERVATION DEPARTMENT FILM "MICHIGAN BEAVER"

Now Ready For Loan Through Educational Division

"Michigan Beaver," a motion picture several years in the making and considered as outstanding among wildlife films has been announced by the Educational Division of the Department of Conservation as now ready for loan through the state.

The picture, photographed by Walter E. Hastings, Department cameraman, details most of the better known activities of the beaver. The actual building of a beaver dam in the northern part of the state is pictured as well as other beaver workings including a beaver "canal," beaver houses and cuttings. Beaver are seen swimming beneath the surface of the water, feeding on bark, preening their fur and cutting trees.

The picture has been added to the film library operated by the Department through which motion pictures are loaned to the public. "Michigan Beaver" one reel film, is printed in both the 35mm and 16mm sizes.

If you are interested in winter sports and would like to purchase a pair of snowshoes, practically new at about one-half their actual value, call at the Sentinel office.

CHARLEVOIX CO. FARMERS WIN HONORS AT POTATO SHOW

East Jordan Potato Club Wins Blue Ribbon Prize

The Annual State Potato Show has come and gone and an annual Charlevoix County record high recognition in competition with the potato producing counties of the state.

Clinton Blanchard of Charlevoix won second place with a pack of Russet Rural potatoes being only defeated by a sample from Emmet County exhibited by Dale Nichols. After having won the sweepstakes at the Gaylord Potato Show, this is further evidence that Clinton knows his potatoes.

In the same class Harry Behling, Boyne City won 8th place, in the White Rural class Harry Behling won 4th place in a highly interesting competition.

In Any Other Variety of Merit, Lawrence Straw of Charlevoix came through with flying colors winning the Blue Ribbon on his pack of Russet Burbanks.

In the Certified Seed Rusbel competition Clinton Blanchard won 3rd and Harry Behling 4th for two more high awards In the County Exhibit competition each exhibit represented 5 peck samples. Charlevoix County won second place in a large field, being topped by Emmet County.

Our greatest winnings took place in the Boys and Girls potato Club Division, where our Club Exhibits won First. This consisted of 5 samples, all of which made a most wonderful showing. In this competition, Howard McDonald of Ellsworth won second place and Gwendon Holt of East Jordan, third. Ralph Shepard won 5th, Ernest Rude 6th and Carlton Smith an award of merit.

With the winnings from the State Potato Show, the year 1932 has been one in which our county has received the most recognition and one in which the amount of premium money exceeds $400. The year 1933 is here and let us hope that Charlevoix County can again occupy a leading position in the State of Michigan.

Yours very truly,
B. C. Mellencamp, Co. Agt

CHARLEVOIX MASONIC BUILDING ASS'N PLANS PROGRAM

To Celebrate "Burning" Of the Mortgage On Temple

Members of the Charlevoix Masonic Building Association are arranging a program for Tuesday evening, February 21 at which day they will "burn" the note paid in full mortgage that has been something of a handicap to the association for some years past.

The program will be carried out at the Masonic temple and opens with a chicken dinner to be served at 6:30 o'clock for which a charge of 25c per plate.

According to the announcement "Every member of the association with wife, sweetheart or husband, expected to be present." The request is made that you notify the secretary, H. R. Fockler, of the association by February 18 if you will attend the dinner.

The Rebekah Past Noble Grand's Club met Saturday evening with Mrs Peter Ance. After a short business session the evening was spent in playing bridge, high honors going to Mrs. Ruby Gimble and Mrs. Mertle Mitchell after which a delightful luncheon was served by the hostess.

LOCAL QUINTS LOSE GAMES

Harbor Beats Polar Bears and Boyne City Beats C.H.S.

By Newsmo

Charlevoix basketball quintets lost two important games last week. The Polar Bears were defeated by the Harbor Springs Merchants, while the high school team lost to Boyne City, the leading team in the Class C conference.

The Polar Bears journeyed to Harbor Springs on Thursday, accompanied by the Cubs and a number of friends. The Cubs appeared to do opening ball, and made a close game of it, leading at the start, but finally dropping their contest to Harbor's second team.

The Polar Bears dropped their game 21 to 15. Harbor's small floor annoyed the Bruins as they had very little room to move in, knee ied in scoring, followed by Superman in second place, Brown, Kipke and Beaston also played.

The Polar Bears have lost a number of old players and have taken on some new men. Dean Davenport, formerly a regular forward, has left town, and is now playing regularly on a professional team in Illinois. According to a report, he was the big noise in a game played by his new team on Monday of this week. Ted Cooper and Howard Davenport have severed their connection with the Polar Bears as team temporarily. Vic Smith has not played recently, but it is reported he will be with them in about a week. "Speed" McCall has been given a call and may come.

Charlevoix beat the Cubs in the last game with the Conference champions to be, Boyne City. But Boyne as a team and one player in particular, suddenly got very lucky in basket shooting in the fourth period, and the game ended in a rout.

Charlevoix led at the quarter, 5 to 4, but Boyne was in the lead 6 to 5 at the half. Boyne forged ahead in the third period, making their goals to two for the locals, and the score was then 12 to 9.

True to the writer's prediction of last week, the fourth quarter saw some high scoring but we would have left out the prophecy if it would have helped the team. Boyne made 21 points in the last round, more than enough to have won an ordinary game alone. Charlevoix only made 3 in this period. The final score was 33 to 12.

Chew, Potter, Smith and Ance started for Charlevoix with Richardson substituting for Chew in the second and fourth quarters.

Tomorrow night the boys will play East Jordan in the local gym. The write looks for a Charlevoix victory, although it must be admitted that East Jordan held Boyne City to a closer score than did the Red and White team.

BUY AMERICAN

Newspaper dispatches the other day to the effect that a party of Germans were coming to America to buy $5,000,000 worth of American foods have caused an internationalist to say when those visitors hear about the "buy American" movement they are apt to go back home empty handed and "buy German."

This is typical of the argument put forth by internationalists to the effect that Uncle Sam ought to spend his money abroad instead of at home. The fact is that the "buy American" was the last of the nationalist purchasing movements to be started in the leading nations of the world. There have been "buy French" and "buy German" movements in existence for a long time. And the "buy British" movement of old John Bull is the most complete and most perfect now in existence. If you don't believe it just pick up a British magazine and look over the advertising. Every civilized nation is now attempting to produce at home as much of what it consumes as is humanly possible.

It is only in the United States where there is much opposition to a "buy at home" movement. The reason is that we have so many international financiers and cluckers here who are more interested in the welfare of Europe, for selfish reasons, than they are in the prosperity of the United States.

It is not to be supposed for one moment that representatives of German concerns are coming to the United States to buy flour and other foodstuffs which could be produced practically in Germany. They are coming for the things they cannot produce at home—not for near beer and pretzels.

No nationalist and protectionist expects to buy American produced goods only. He is intelligent enough to realize that a great many things we use, cannot be produced in the United States and must be bought abroad. He has no objection to foreign trade of this kind. What he does object to is the purchasing of foreign commodities which can and are produced on American farms and in American factories. Every dollar which we spend for a competitive foreign article means a dollar less for the American producer. What is the use of sending a dollar to Europe in the hope that the man who gets it may send it back and spend it here, when by buying an American piece of goods we can be sure that the dollar is spent here and goes to the upbuilding of American agriculture or American business?

Sure, let us buy abroad. But let us only buy those things which we can't produce at home. Most of non-competitive articles which we import are luxuries. We can buy more of them from our foreign friends if our own people are producing and selling in the great American market the things which are produced in America.

DEBT DIPLOMACY

The verbal gyrations of the British statesmen in discussing the forthcoming Washington debt conference would seem at first thought to be confusing, but they are understandable if one grasps the whole situation. It all goes back to the conference in which Great Britain and France agreed to remit most of the German reparations. At the time British statesmen persuaded the French that John Bull would go along with them when the question of the debt to America came up and would sign no agreement that was not acceptable to the French. The British made this promise because it was the only way they could get the French to agree to a reduction in the German reparations. The scheme was, of course, to get Uncle Sam ultimately to pay the whole bill.

Next came the question of December payments. France defaulted and Britain paid. This looked like a breach of the agreement made by the British with the French on the debt question, but it wasn't.

When President-elect Roosevelt through Secretary Stimson invited the British over here to discuss debts after March 4 and did not invite the French, it put John Bull in an embarrassing position, especially in view of the fact that Uncle Sam's spokesmen indicated that other questions would be discussed. If Great Britain should come over here and finally settle its debt, giving concessions to America without consulting the French it would be a clear-cut repudiation of the agreement made with the French to go with them on the debts. For that reason British statesmen have made assertions recently that they will come over here but will not make any agreements or concessions on foreign trade, international money or pay more than they can get from Germany. This is done to satisfy the French and there is little question that in the final analysis Great Britain will stand with the French against Uncle Sam on the matter of the war debts. That is why the French are taking things so coolly.

The situation calls for a little close thinking on the part of Uncle Sam. Otherwise he will lose not only his shirt, but his ancient plug hat.

WAR HAS BEEN OUTLAWED?

The United States Senate has been importuned by a group of some 200 fairly prominent and well-meaning men and women to "outlaw war". These excellent persons should understand that war has been outlawed—by the Kellogg pact, the nine-power treaty and by agreement among the members of the League of Nations.

Yes, sir, war is absolutely outlawed. There is no such thing. Whatever it is that is going on in Manchuria is something else. More men are now under arms than when the World War Armistice was signed, but do you think that is because there is going to be another war, ever, ever? Isn't it foolish. The nations of the rest of the world are armed to the teeth and to the point of bankruptcy just to make certain that there will be no more war anywhere, any time.

We have not only proclaimed against all future wars and in the proclamation have been joined by virtually all the nations, including Japan. The big governments have conducted one conclave after another at Geneva and at The Hague at which they have discussed the size and kinds of armament and ammunition, chemicals with which to destroy civilian populations, subsea boats with which to demolish great ocean liners, bombing airplanes that could lay waste great cities, battleships that could wipe hustling seaports off the map—but not war. Not ever that!

The innocence of the professional pacifists surpasses far that of the cherubs. Their impracticability is more abysmal than the ocean's depths. They have not yet learned that the words of diplomacy are wily words, calculated to deceive; that out of the mouths of diplomats issueth forth buncombe and blather when they talk of eternal peace, because while they are talking thus they are preparing their countrymen for the shambles.

Let the Senate outlaw war again if it wishes to do so and if it will make these two hundred amiable Americans feel good, but Americans acquainted with the world situation know that the only way by which, in the long run, America can keep out of the next war is by being so well armed that no nation will have the courage to attack us. We can outlaw war in only one way—by being so strong that we need never say another word about outlawing war.

LIKE THE HORSE

If anything could forcibly illustrate the law of diminishing returns resulting from increasing over beyond a reasonable figure, the three-cent letter postage has turned the trick.

Postal revenue has been lost which will never be regained from the same class of mail, for the simple reason that the public has devised ways to use third-class mail instead of first.

The same thing will take place with gasoline. As gas taxes are shoved up beyond reasonable figures, smaller cars will be used, or larger cars will be used less, and the volume sold will diminish, thereby producing less revenue for the state.

The same thing will take place with property. Beyond a certain point, the owner cannot pay taxes. When that day comes, he will let the city, county or state take it and the tax rolls will be flooded with unsalable property, and tax deficits will mount.

The public is no different than the horse. You can lead the horse to water but you can't make him drink. You can tax the public beyond its ability to pay, but you can't make it pay.

The political subdivisions of this nation, from the smallest hamlet to the Federal government, should read just the tax bill and public expenditures to fit the ability of the people to pay.

The papers are filled with reports of meetings of tax experts, state tax commissions and other organizations of "tax spenders" who are in a large measure to blame for the present taxation problems of the people. As advisers on the financial affairs of the people, they have for years taken the easiest course, acquiescing in public demands for extravagant public expenditures without raising their voices in protest or showing where exorbitant spending was leading the people.

Even today, most of the "tax experts," instead of recommending drastic cuts in public expenditures, are hunting ways and means to increase existing taxes or find new methods of taxation.

The same thing is going to happen to every city, county, state and the nation itself, that has happened to millions of families—they are going to get along on less money than they thought was possible a year or two ago. Instead of increases in taxes or new methods of taxation to balance public deficits, there is going to have to be decreased taxation and decreased public demands on a balanced scale, which will eventually wipe out the deficits.

Families are paying up their bills now on reduced income simply by reducing their expenses below their income. Governments will have to do the same thing.

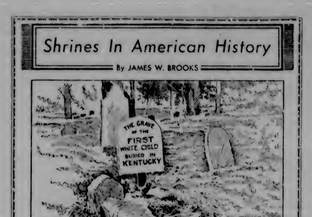
DON'T FORGET SILVER

In the welter of debate over unemployment, the war debts, tariffs, prohibition and similar subjects, we have lost sight of one major problem—that of silver.

World recovery and rehabilitation of silver are inseparable. Precisely as ruinous silver prices helped bring on world depression, so can fair silver prices help bring back world prosperity.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS



Pioneer Shrine in Kentucky

Every turn at Harrodsburg, Kentucky is a page in pioneer life. The weather vane on the Courthouse clock—a woodsman in coonskin cap—will silently signal the traveler that he is coming into a land of romance and adventure. In the replica of Old Fort Harrod will be found household utensils of 1774, and a little school room with backless benches and three books—one a Bible—will grip the hearts of passersby. Truly a pioneer shrine in American history!

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

We have heard a great deal during the past few months on balancing the budget, reducing taxes and national and local expenditures. So far as the local units of government are concerned the agitation for economy and lower taxes have had some effect. Fewer municipal bond issues are being sold than for many months. Expenses in many states and cities are being trimmed and this will eventually result in lower taxes if the people will only stay on guard.

But how about the national government? What are its prospects for the coming months? Are we to have a balanced budget through reduction of national expenditures, or are we to have still higher taxes and more economic pressure as a result? Only the future can tell. Both political parties were on record for economy and the slashing of expenditures. But enough proposals have now been brought forward to increase Uncle Sam's expense a dozen billion dollars if all of them were to be enacted. And very little is being heard about reduction of expenditures and fewer taxes at Washington. The Republicans are naturally saying little, as they are going out of power in a few weeks. Perhaps Mr. Roosevelt will say something to calm the troubled waters within the next few weeks. It is earnestly to be hoped so. He is said to favor a 25 per cent cut in expenditures.

Of the proposed outlay of billions, many of the plans are for helping the farmer. A great many people still seem to have an idea that the United States government can restore the prices of agriculture through some legislative magic. A huge program has been mapped out and introduced by the Democratic leader, Senator Robinson of Arkansas calling for an expenditure of a billion and a half to assist agriculture. The program is said to include the recommendations of the farm organizations of the country, who were promised by Mr. Roosevelt in the campaign that if they would get together on a program he would agree to it.

The plan includes a provision for a new billion dollar government agency, the "Emergency Agricultural Refinance Corporation," to lend up to $10,000 to individual farmers on first or second mortgage security providing the total mortgages do not exceed 75 per cent of the value of the property. The bill would also put the government squarely behind the Federal Land Banks.

But there are many other proposals for federal outlays of money. Senator Costigan, a Democrat, of Colorado, has introduced a measure which, it is claimed, establishes a permanent federal dole for the idle, with a half billion dollar relief fund to be administered by an 'emergency Federal Relief Board. Another bill provides for a United States Exchange Corporation with a capital of a half billion and authority to issue government debentures to the sum of two and a half billions to lend funds to corporations to provide employment, and to individuals to provide employment, and to individuals to provide them with purchasing power.

Other bills provide for federal aid to states, counties and municipalities for educational purposes. In short the number of proposals for appropriating more federal money to be raised either by more taxes, by bond issues or by inflation is so great to to make one fairly dizzy in contemplation.

In the meantime foreign made goods are flooding the country, coming over our tariff wall for the reason that depressed currencies abroad have made this possible. This shuts down our American factories and puts out of jobs American workers who could be employed to turn out products of the American farm, if the workers could afford to buy them. Damming of this flood of foreign made goods, made by cheap labor paid in tin money, would go a long way toward restoring business and agriculture in America.

Portraits from History

Was George Washington Religious?

One of the questions frequently asked about George Washington was as to the quality of his religion. Some so-called modern biographers have called into question the statement that Washington was a religious man. In an interesting article in the current issue of the National Republic, under the caption "Was Washington Religious," Mr. Albert B. Beatty goes into detail to refute in an interesting way the statements of those who would question the sincerity of Washington's Christianity.

In part, Mr. Beatty says:

"Perhaps no aspect of the meritorious life of George Washington has caused as much controversy among his innumerable biographers and has suffered as much at their hands as that of his religious habits and beliefs. Many have tactfully avoided the subject, passing over it hastily with but a few vague sentences, and frequently asking, but failing to answer satisfactorily, the question: Was Washington religious? Others, particularly those who have taken it upon themselves to 'humanize' him, have inferred, without any apparent substantial evidence, that he was not religious was lukewarm as a churchman and, at times, patently entertained non-Christian views. Two or three have classed him as an atheist, but have not advanced a single act or declaration by Washington that would tend to support their ridiculous assertions. On the other hand, a number have attempted to depict him as a devout gentleman and an orthodox believer in and worshipper of Jesus Christ. It is little wonder that the average reader is in a quandary as to what writer's statements he should accept as facts.

"To ascertain the true extent of his piety and Christian character, I was privileged to spend some time with the unusual Washingtoniana collection of the late Edward Ambler Armstrong, at Princeton, New Jersey, which is recognized as one of the most notable of its kind in the country today. From this remarkable assemblage of original letters and documents entirely in the handwriting of or dictated and signed by the Father of his Country, and hundreds of volumes of vast amount of historical data about him and his contemporaries, as well as parish records made available to me by the present rectors of Pohick Church, at Lorton, Va., and Christ Church, at Alexandria, Va., which were attended by General Washington while he was at Mount Vernon, was the material for this present article obtained.

"Anyone who has carefully perused the letters, manuscripts and documents penned by General, and has studied his daily habits and performances as recorded by himself, members of his immediate family, and reputable witnesses, will find no difficulty in determining his status as a believer in Divine Providence and Christianity. There is abundant evidence that he was a true Christian in every sense that the word implies; and, as one prominent minister wrote to me th other day, the world would be better if the religion of his detractors were as good.

"Born on February 22, 1732, at Wakefield, Bridges Creek, Westmoreland County, Virginia, the first-born of Augustine Washington and Mary Ball Washington, the boy who was destined to become the guiding star of his country was impressively christened according to the form of baptism of the Church of England on, as the record contained in the Washington family Bible shows, 'the 3rd of April following.' Beverly Whiting and Captain Christopher Brooke were the godfathers and Mrs. Mildred Gregory was the godmother.

"The religious training of Washington came in very early life, for his parents were a pious couple. While information about his father in this respect is meagre, save that he was a vestryman and an ardent churchman, it is known that Augustine Washington was of a serious tendency, and that most of the few books which he possessed were of a religious nature. Before his death, on April 12, 1743, when young George was but eleven years of age, he did much to counsel his son, who was mature for his years, in the way that he should go."

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

EVERY HOME IN MICHIGAN NEEDS THE PROTECTION OF TELEPHONE SERVICE

When danger lurks at your window . . . when fire threatens loved ones and home . . . when sudden sickness or accident makes medical attention imperative . . . then does one realize most the PRICELESS PROTECTION afforded by telephone service.

The big thaw of Tuesday and Wednesday gives us a foretaste of what Bridge street will be when robbins nest again. The hummocks and holes, the sand piles and maral beds, are enough to drive a tax-paying citizen to the asylum. It presents to the council a problem that they will be compelled to solve soon, and they may as well begin on the job. Some one advocates paving with brick, which an expert has declared will cost $14,000, but probably crushed stone will be the solution of the problem. There is no question about the quality and lasting features of a crushed stone pavement. It has been tried and proven. The village has the stone, the crusher and the road roller, and the council should at once begin operations looking toward the early completion of the work. A crushed stone pavement can be built at less than half the expense of brick and can be kept in repair at much less expense than any other material. We hope the present council will begin the work by opening up operations at the quarry.

Our old friend "Jim" Martindale writes us from Pasadena, Cal., that he has a good position there. In an examination for the place he stood 98 out of a possible 100.

Rebeccah At The Well

We have forgotten just what the difficulty was which the ancient maiden had about getting water at the well, or who ther she got it at all or not or just how many times she went to the well; but if the Jewish damsel was as much of a damsel as are the contractors for the Charlevoix water works well, she should have been banished from the Tribe of Judah and compelled to make bricks with but straw to the utmost limit of the age of her kinsman of the wandering propensities.

Some time ago they told us they had struck rock, and that below it water fit for the gods to drink would appear plenteously. The rock was punctured and yet no water. Then it appeared that an eight inch pipe would not go through a six-inch hole, and the council was asked to to modify the contract as to permit them to continue with six inch pipe. The concession was made and now all hands are waiting for pipe. If any more rock is struck—which may Allah forbid—four inch pipe will unquestionably be called into requisition. Brethren, let us pray for less rock and more sand.

In the meantime, it appears that the council has no tangible security against damage, and the corporation of Charlevoix is on the ragged edge of uncertainty on the water question.

To say that the people are disgusted with this blooming well business is drawing it mildly.

Sixty Years Ago

Our Harbor Survey

Early in the spring of 1872, before Congress adjourned we were shown a communication from Senator Ferry to one of our prominent citizens and in which he stated that he had "induced the Senate Committee on commerce to include the mouth of Pine River among the points to be surveyed with a view to harbor improvements; the bill had passed the Senate and he would look after it in the House." We subsequently learned that the House had passed the bill. The intelligence cheered our citizens into the belief that the General Government had taken the initiatory step toward a prompt opening of the channel. A survey of course was expected last summer, but navigation closed and no engineer made his appearance. This delay lead to the natural inquiry among those interested: "Why has not the provision of Congress been carried into effect?" In order to put this question in a shape to be answered, about one month since, D. C. Nettleton, in behalf of the people of this place and by virtue of his office of Superintendent of the C. H. & R. I. Co., addressed a letter of inquiry to Capt. Jas. W. Cuyler, Capt. of Engineers, U. S. A. stationed at Milwaukee, whose department embraces the harbors of Lakes Michigan and Superior. In answer he stated that "no appropriation had been made for the mouth of Pine River." It is needless for us to say that this caused despondency among those who have looked upon a Government survey as a certainty. By return mail we addressed a letter to Senator Ferry, in which we asked him the following question: "Are the people of Charlevoix correct in supposing that Congress made provisions last winter for the survey of the mouth of Pine River?" On Tuesday last we received the following in reply:

United States Senate Chamber
Washington, D. C., Jan. 23, '73
Willard A. Smith, Charlevoix, Michigan:

Dear Sir:- In reply to your inquiry of the 15th inst., I enclose a copy of River and Harbor Bill passed June 10, 1872, from which it appears that the "mouth of Pine River, Mich.," was included in the appropriations for surveys.

Truly Yours,
T. W. Ferry.

A copy of the bill itself accompanied the letter and which is entitled "River and Harbor Bill (General Nature) No. 134 and "An Act making appropriations for the repair, preservation and completion of certain public work on rivers and harbors, and for other purposes." The clause of the bill which interests us, appropriates "for surveys and examinations with a view to the improvement of rivers and harbors, $150,000." Section 2 reads: "That the Secretary of War is hereby directed to cause examinations or surveys, or both, to be made at the following points, namely: "Here follow the points and among them we find "mouth of Pine River, Michigan". This authority is without question and shows either a mistake or wilful neglect on the part of the Engineer above mentioned. By this mistake or neglect we find ourselves one year behind what we should be in our harbor improvement. We claim the enforcement of the Congressional provision in our behalf and shall expect it at an early day after the opening of navigation. Let us keep the ball rolling.

The people of Charlevoix are waking up to the importance of taking active and energetic measures in the direction of securing assistance from the government for the opening of our harbor. As a survey or examination is first needed, the effort at present is being made in that direction with fair prospect of success, inasmuch as an appropriation has been made for that purpose—some hidden obstacle having been placed in the way of an enforcement of the provision last summer. We should have but to call attention to the neglect to secure a prompt survey. While thousands of dollars are being expended on less important public works, we seem to be ignored. But let us agitate, and the long looked for assistance will surely come.

BANKER TELLS WHAT PAYING OF "BONUS" MEANS

Would Start Factories Supplying The Merchants

What would paying the "bonus" mean, and how can it be paid at this time?

The following letter, signed by M. Gorman, president of the American Bank & Trust Co., of Ardmore, Okla., voluntarily sent to the national organization of The American Legion, asks that question, and answers it as follows, according to a statement issued at the Legion national headquarters in Indianapolis:

"It would mean $680,000 paid out in Carter (Okla.) Co. in sums averaging $506 each, and it would go into every hole and corner of the county. It means $40,000,000 in Oklahoma, distributed in the same way. This money would go into the hands of middle-aged men, most of them with families; many of them in distress on account of the present depression. Farmers, mechanics, clerks and laboring men—out of work—carrying a non-interest bearing government bond due in 1945, with an average value today of $500, but worth in 1945 about $118 when the government figures interest on the loans made on those bonds.

"This money will be put into circulation; not in the stock market, but be spent for actual necessities. It would put the merchant to work; the mines, mills and factories to supply the merchant, and, in my judgment, it will soon find that corner that 'Prosperity' has been hiding around.

"Now where will we get the money? A 'Bonus' certificate is property—a promise to pay a sum of money at a future time. This bond should be taken up by the Federal Reserve Bank and a federal Reserve currency issued to pay for them, this currency to be retired out of the sinking fund that is being built up to pay those certificates off in 1945—their due date. Now we hear the howl 'printing-press money, rubber money, fiat money?' Why, we will lose all our gold if we do this! We will be told about the ruble, the mark, the greenback that were driven by thirty-five cents on the dollar. We will hear from our old Grandma sitting crying quietly, fondling her Confederate money, but they forget to tell us that every penny of greenbacks was paid off at one hundred cents on the dollar.

"The Federal Reserve Banks issue new money against merchandise, live stock, Government bonds and treasury certificates. Why not on Soldiers' certificates when the boys need it worse than they ever will again. There is plenty of gold on hand to margin this currency the required 40 percent."

LAKE MICHIGAN RANKS SECOND IN COMMERCIAL FISHING

Annual Yield Being From 15 To 35 Million Pounds

In ten years the Great Lakes have produced almost half a million tons of commercial fish.

Figures issued by the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries show that during the period 1921-31, the five Great Lakes and including Lake of the Woods, Rainy Lake, and Namakan Lake have yielded a take of 989,473,000 pounds of commercial fish, or 494,736 tons. The report does not include a considerable catch from the Detroit River, St. Clair River and Lake St. Clair.

Since 1918 the largest annual catches have been in 1914 and in 1918, but in other years while the take has been lower, it has been more or less consistent, the catches in the last three years being higher than in the previous ten.

The catch of commercial fish in 1931, the last year reported for all of the Great Lakes the total catch was 95,727,000 pounds. In 1930 it was 94,948,000 pounds and the previous year the report was 85,289,000 pounds. Between 1918 and 1928 it ran from 69,000,000 to 92,000,000.

With fishermen from several states and Canada operating on Lake Erie, the annual catch from that lake has run almost twice as high as from any other of the five great lakes. For ten years fishermen have taken from 19,000,000 to 59,000,000 pounds a year from that lake alone. Lake Michigan has ranked second in importance to the commercial fishing industry, its annual yield being from 15 to 25 million pounds. In point of yield the other three lakes have ranked as follows over a ten year period: Lake Huron third, Lake Superior fourth, Lake Ontario fifth.

In Oklahoma, distributed in the same way. This money would go into the hands of middle-aged men, most of them with families; many of them in distress on account of the present depression. Farmers, mechanics, clerks and laboring men—out of work—carrying a non-interest bearing government bond due in 1945, with an average value today of $500, but worth in 1945 about $118 when the government figures interest on the loans made on those bonds.

BANKER TELLS WHAT PAYING OF "BONUS" MEANS

Would Start Factories Supplying The Merchants

What would paying the "bonus" mean, and how can it be paid at this time?

The following letter, signed by M. Gorman, president of the American Bank & Trust Co., of Ardmore, Okla., voluntarily sent to the national organization of The American Legion, asks that question, and answers it as follows, according to a statement issued at the Legion national headquarters in Indianapolis:

"It would mean $680,000 paid out in Carter (Okla.) Co. in sums averaging $506 each, and it would go into every hole and corner of the county. It means $40,000,000 in Oklahoma, distributed in the same way. This money would go into the hands of middle-aged men, most of them with families; many of them in distress on account of the present depression. Farmers, mechanics, clerks and laboring men—out of work—carrying a non-interest bearing government bond due in 1945, with an average value today of $500, but worth in 1945 about $118 when the government figures interest on the loans made on those bonds.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS TO PRESENT PLAY "DETOURS AHEAD"

The Epworth League will present a play "Detour Ahead" with seven characters, the evening of February 28. Rehearsals have been going on for some time and the actors are enthusiastic.

This is a one-act play requiring about 40 minutes for dramatization. In order to make a full evening of entertainment, there will be other features added to the program. Please include a few well chosen musical numbers and one or two "stunts." It is planned to use all members of the organization if no number or another.

CLUB LEADERS AND OFFICERS WILL ENJOY SUPPER, PROGRAM

At Boyne City Gymnasium On Thursday, February 9th

Great plans are being made for the winter club leaders' training meeting which will be attended by Mr. A. G. Kottman, state club leader, and Miss Sylvia Wixson, assistant club leader. All club leaders, presidents and secretaries of clubs, and club boosters are most cordially invited to enjoy this evening together. The supper will be at 6:00 o'clock and the price will not be over 25c.

After the supper, games and recreation will be enjoyed and then the group will be divided into two sections, one meeting especially interested in the boys' work and the other in the girls' program.

"Be strong and of a good courage, fear not, nor be afraid of them: for the Lord thy God, he it is that doth go with thee; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee." Deut. 31.6. (A marked passage in Abraham Lincoln's Bible.)

Space is too valuable to say much with reference to our attendance last Sunday but it contradicted the prevailing notion that people have ceased to attend church services. We certainly appreciate the gradual increase in attendance since the first of the year. True many were present last Sunday because it was "Polar Bear Sunday" but if the past few Sunday audiences indicate anything we can safely say, if you wish to select your seat come early. I wish to publicly thank Gordon Todd and his Polars for the inspiration they gave us last Sunday.

Next Sunday we have a still more interesting message than last Sunady. Take my word for it and don't miss it.

The ideal weather of last Sunday lured many out to get into the motion picture of our School which will be shown this Thursday evening at the Sunday School banquet. All will be over in time for the Parent Teachers meeting at the school.

A new attendance campaign started last Sunday and will continue about three months. It will be between the boys and girls. Enrollments are exactly even now with a large field to work in. The prize will be a "bike" and picnic dinner. And every one knows who will be responsible—the loser.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED FRIDAY EVENING

d his present flourishing business. Starting with the cultivation of table vegetables and small fruits, the concern, which took the form of a partnership, soon realized the opportunity in greenhouse work, both for the raising of flowers and as an adjunct to their vegetable business in the rearing of plants during the winter for spring setting. This part of the business rapidly came to the front as a profit producer, requiring the erection of three green houses, and it is likely that a fourth will be necessary in the course of time. In this work Mr. Edwards' early training as a gardner on large estates in England stood him in good stead and the success of the present business is largely due to his practical experience and intelligent use of it. It has also meant a tremendous amount of the hardest kind of labor on the part of both Mr. Edwards and his sons. As an example of faithful cooperation in the face of great hardship on the part of an entire family, reaching back into the beginnings of the enterprise on the little farm near Mt. McSauba, the business stands unique in this part of the country.

Members of the family present at the reunion on Friday evening were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Percy Edwards, son Billy and daughters Bernice and Helen; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Edwards and sons, Richard and Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Albert V. Edwards and daughters, Reta and Elaine; Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Edwards and daughter, Margery; Mrs. and Mrs. Fred V. Tyler and daughter, Marion; all of Charlevoix, and Mr. and Mrs. Cameron McNally of Boyne City, Mrs. McNally's sons, Edward and Hudson Robinson and Mr. McNally's son, R. C. McNally.

Hospital Auxiliary Meets

The Charlevoix Hospital Auxiliary met in the Community room on Friday, February 3rd for their annual business meeting. Fifteen were present.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Frank Currier; Vice Pres., Mrs. F. F. McMillan; Sec., Mrs. Henry Partridge; Treas., Mrs. Albert Cook.

Work Committee, Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall, Mrs. E. L. Dawson, Mrs. Angus Fochtman.

Social Committee, Mrs. F. F. McMillan, Mrs. Albert Cook, Mrs. W. E. Parmelee, Mrs. H. E. Carter. Publicity committee, Mrs. H. A. Craig.

Following the business meeting the afternoon was spent in sewing for the hospital.

March 1 Latest Date of Extension Under Present Law

An extension of time until March 1st through an order from the office of the Secretary of State was recently issued allowing the use of 1932 license plates for your automobile, truck, etc.

This will be the last extension for 1932 plates. Beginning with March 1st plates for 1932 will go into the discard permanently. A suggestion from the state department is to the effect that automobile owners purchase their 1933 plates prior to March 1st, and as early as possible.

FAST SCHOONER PURCHASED BY JOHN P. WILSON

Malabar X To Be Entered In Mackinac Race

New York, N. Y., Jan. 24 — News of major importance to Chicago yachtsmen was contained today in the announcement at the National Motor Boat Show here that the famous Albin schooner, Malabar X, winner of last year's race to Bermuda, and one of the outstanding boats of her type in the country, had been purchased by John P. Wilson of Chicago.

Mr. Wilson said that she will be sailed to Chicago early this spring and will be entered in the Mackinac classic which this season will be sailed over a reversed course from Mackinac Island to a finish point off the A Century of Progress grounds.

John Alden, designer and original owner of the Malabar X, and her skipper on her record breaking run to Bermuda last July, will also be her skipper in the Mackinac event, according to Mr. Wilson.

In addition to the usual fleet of Great Lakes boats sailing in the Mackinac race, there are reports circulating at the show here that several other eastern craft may be entered in the Mackinac race. Most of the Detroit fleet of cruising yachts will compete in the Lake Michi-

PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION PLANS FINE PROGRAM

Dr. McCluskey, U. of M. Will Speak; Musical Numbers

The program planned for the Parent Teacher Association meeting, Thursday evening, February 9, according to E. J. Edwards, president, will be one of the most interesting in the activities of the association this year. Dr. McCluskey of the University of Michigan will speak and he is nationally known as a dynamic, entertaining speaker and an authority on child psychology and mental hygiene.

The evening's musical program will include a piano group by Miss Lola Fessenden and several original numbers by members of the High School Theory class. Carl Beattie will play "Florita" a trombone solo of his own composition. Marian Tyler's "Bird Song" written for soprano and flute will be given by Miss Tyler and Grace Belding. "The Cricket" will be sung by its composer, Bernice Meggison.

So much interest is being shown in this approaching meeting of the association that plans will likely be made for its being held in the gym rather than the High School assembly. Announcement in that regard will be made through the school.

to the amount of 5,000. Thus will the Legion push this vital campaign in Charlevoix to put American labor back to work.

Practice for the minstrel show, which is scheduled for a date in the near future, discloses the fact that it's going to be one of the best features the Legion has ever sponsored.

According to the state By-laws you are delinquent if your 1933 dues are not paid up by the 20th of this month. And on March 20th, your privileges as a Legion member—voting in meetings, etc., — are automatically cancelled, if you have not then paid up. And your state and national Legion publications will stop coming to you. That's the worst of it. On the positive side of the argument —well, there is a national contest under way for membership. Only one citation is granted to a district. Let's see if we can't get that national citation for Charlevoix. Dues must be in by February 28th under the ruling of the contest.

POLAR BEARS LOSE AGAIN

Drop Fast Contest As Hill And McCall Star

(By Newman)

Despite good playing on the part of every man, with occasional flashes of real brilliance by two of them, the Polar Bears were finally forced to admit defeat at the hands of the Big Rapids All-Stars last night.

The Polar Bears line-up listed Hill and Ikens at the forward positions, with Brown at center, and Kipke and McCall as guards. The Mr. Hill mentioned was Douglas Hill, of Harbor Springs, who was asked to play with the locals in this game, due to the fact that two regulars were forced to be out of town. The next three men named have been regulars all season. McCall, former high school star, is a newcomer to the independents but he is expected to be of great help to them the balance of the season.

Big Rapids, with some individuals stars who worked nicely as a team got off to a nice start, and had 4 points before Charlevoix started. However, the locals, led by Hill, rallied and were leading 10 to 6, at the first intermission. Each team made ten points in the second frame, and Charlevoix led, 20 to 16, at the half.

The All-Stars commenced to creep up in the third round and had chiselled Charlevoix's margin to one point at the third rest period, with the score at 26 to 25. They made 14 points in the last quarter, holding the Bears to a mere 6. The final score was Big Rapids 39, Charlevoix 32.

Hill led the Polar Bears in scoring with 12 points and also showed up well in other departments of the game. McCall, variously known as Robert, Bob "Cornie" or "Speed" showed that the last appelation is the best suited to him, especially in a basketball game. He was the local defensive star and was seemingly all over the floor at once. In addition he was second in scoring, with 8 points. Only his long shots in the last quarter kept Charlevoix in the fight. Brown and Ikens scored 6 points each. Kipke also played well.

Preliminary

In the preliminary, ten of the second team players were divided into two sides, with the Reds beating the Whites 19 to 17. Curtis and Supernaw for the Reds, and Bergman and Yemmens for the Whites, were the outstanding players. Todd refereed with Wallace and Newman keeping the time and score straight.

High School Game Cancelled

The high school game with East Jordan, which was scheduled for last Friday, has been indefinitely postponed. East Jordan was unable to make the journey on account of the storm. Tomorrow the locals will go to East Jordan for a contest there. They are now beginning to point for condition at tourney ament time, March 2, 3, 4.

Snow Being Removed

Removal of snow from Bridge street has been in progress during the past few days and still continues. Several gangs are engaged in the work. There is a vast amount of snow, not as much as in some of the early years, but enough to keep a number of workmen on the job for some days.

SPORTSMAN'S CLUB MEETS IN REGULAR MONTHLY SESSION

Plans For Coming Year Are Given Encouragment

The regular monthly meeting of the Charlevoix Sportsman's Club was held Monday evening.

Cards were not sent out as reminders as has been customary during the past year and a few of the standbys evidently overlooked the date. This should be kept in mind as it is fixed for the second Monday evening of each month and will be so held unless notice to the contrary is given.

A brief review of the work of the past year was gone over and plans laid for the current year. These plans are of the nature that requires the support of every member of the Club, not only by paying the yearly dues, now due and payable, but by the presence and participation in the monthly meetings.

Work of Club Recognized

Communications read to the members present proved conclusively that the work during the past year relative to the rearing and planting of fish is appreciated and approved and encouragment given for continued efforts along this line during the coming year.

Last year's efforts, as referred to above, have been recognized by government and state officials as highly successful and in consideration of this fact it would be regrettable indeed not to continue to improve and build upon the foundation as well started.

The next meeting, March 13, will be an important one and members should show their cooperation by saving and remembering this date by being present.

MASONS TAKE MEASURE OF I. O. O. F. MONDAY NIGHT

Odd Fellows Still Lead Masons Over Thousand Points

In the cribbage contest, the sixth in a series of games between the local Masonic and Oddfellow fraternities played at the Masonic temple Monday night Masonic players led their opponents by 33 points. The total for the evenings play for the Masons was 23,467 and the Odd Fellows 23,434 points.

At this time the Odd Fellows in the series are leading the Masons by 1034 points with four more games of the series to be contested, making for a lead difficult to overcome, however it can be done and it is probable that the entire four games will be a battle royel.

Leo Carey for the Masons, was high point man Monday night with a score of 961 and Mat Routley for the Odd Fellows with 951 points to his credit.

P.T.A. Meet Postponed

The bad conditions of the roads made it necessary to postpone the P. T. A. meeting last Tuesday night at the Murrey School. Rev. G. R. Parker was to make an address in the place of Mr. C. F. Bush who is in Lansing.

In Hospital

Mrs. Floyd Brown entered the local hospital Tuesday a victim of appendicitis.

Drive To Lansing

Superintendent Gerald F. Rush, Edward Edwards, W. D. Hicken and William Fessenden motored to Lansing Tuesday via the motor route.

LEGION SPEAKERS AT COMMUNITY CLUB MONDAY NIGHT

"The American Legion" To Be The Main Subject

The special interests and activities of the American Legion will be sponsored at a meeting of the Men's Community Club next Monday evening, at a supper in the dining room of the Methodist church. These Club meetings are well understood.

A fine crowd was out at the last meeting, when the matter of school costs, taxation, etc., was considered. At this next meeting it is planned to have several speakers present the ideals of the American Legion and its relation to the Community. Of course Legionnaires and veterans are specially invited. The supper is "men's stuff, served by men."

WORLD MOVEMENT TOUCHES CHARLEVOIX LAST MONDAY

Oxford Group Movement Representative Present

The whole Protestant world is being stirred by the Oxford Group Movement, and one of its representatives was in our city last Monday, when the ministers of the North Traverse Group met for an all day session in the local Methodist church. This movement, founded by an American Lutheran, but taken by him to England, and working out from old Oxford University, has grippped especially established churches of England, but all Protestantism, both in England, America, South Africa, China and elsewhere.

The recent meeting held here the pastor, Rev. W. W. Hurd was given the forenoon, for a comparison of this movement with the great revival started by Wesley. He went into his subject very thoroughly, advanced some important criticisms of the new movement, yet showed how the two movements had many fundamentals in common. He was much complimented for his address, and asked to publish it in the church paper of the denomination.

The Rev. Louis Bradford, of Wooster, Ohio, was present, and was given the afternoon. He has been with the Oxford Group in its work in many of our larger American cities, He conducted a conference and discussion, and followed with one of the "Quiet Hours," for which the group has become famous. He is expected to hold further meetings here as he is to be in Petoskey and vicinity about two weeks.

ONE OF EARLIEST POST OFFICES IN NO. MICHIGAN CLOSED

At Acme, February 15th By Order Postal Bureau

One of the earlie t post offices in northern Michigan, that at Acme, established eighty years ago, was discontinued Wednesday, February 15th, by order of the postal bureau at Washington, D. C.

The claim is made that the Acme office when first established was the only post office between Traverse City and the Straits and this shortly after the post office at Traverse City was opened for public service.

To Olivet Tuesday

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wood and Miss Lola Fessenden motored to Olivet Tuesday where they contemplated remaining over the week end.

LEGION PLANS BENEFIT DANCE

Admission To Be Donations Of Supplies And Money

Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, is planning a benefit dance at the high school gymnasium on Friday evening, February 24th, if the gym can be secured for that date. Definite announcement of time and place has been left until next week, as arrangements could not be completed at this time.

The admission fee for the dance will be some article or articles, either of food or clothing, that can be given to the needy of the community. It is hoped that the use of the gym, music and etc., will be donated so that no expense will be incurred.

Legionnaires of Charlevoix and their friends are also looking forward to Legion night at the Men's Club next Monday night, at the M. E. Church parlors. Also to another stag card party at the Legion Home (the date will be announced later) and to the visit of Department Commander Gilmore at Petoskey, on February 27th.

The Red Cross flour will be stored from now on in that part of the Powers building formerly occupied by Emrey's Men's Shop.

ST. VALENTINES PARTY HELD AT ST. MARY'S HALL

Sponsored By Young Ladies of St. Mary's Church

A St. Valentine's party that was sponsored by the young ladies of St. Mary's Church, and held at the school hall Tuesday night was a delightful affair thoroughly enjoyed by every one.

Hall decorations tastefully arranged added to the attractiveness of the scene, refreshments were superb, all making for one of the finest functions of the winter season at St. Mary's hall.

Bridge honors for the evening's play went to Miss Hilda Brady and pedro honors were carried off by William Wood, while the door prize was awarded to Miss Hilda Brady.

Fourteen tables were engaged in the bridge and pedro games.

FLEA PARTY AT AMERICAN LEGION HOME ENJOYED

Novel And Varied Program Meets With Approval

A novel and interesting affair called a "Flea Party" was sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary at the Legion Home on East Garfield last Saturday evening.

In spite of the weather there was a fair turnout and those present thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

After the "Flea" contest refreshments were served following which dancing was enjoyed interspersed with singing of old time songs with other forms of entertainment for those those not adept in the use of their feet and voice.

And what is the "Flea" part of the party? He present next Saturday evening at the Legion Home at about 8:30 and find out all about this mysterious and interesting entertainment.

Plans are being made to continue these Saturday night affairs for several weeks to come.

"Let opportunity do all the knocking."

DICKENS CLUB HOLD THEIR ANNUAL LUNCHEON MONDAY

Celebrate Birthday Anniversary of Charles Dickens

The annual luncheon celebrating the birthday anniversary of Charles Dickens was held by the Dickens Club Monday at the home of Mrs. Chas. Emrey.

A delicious meal was served on tables daintily decorated with the club colors, blue and yellow. An informal social afternoon followed the luncheon. A short sketch commenting on some of the best known Dickensian characters was read by Mrs. F. H. Wilkinson.

Greetings from a former member, Mrs Carleton Dean, now residing in Baltimore, were extended to the club by Mrs. Clarence Wood.

MACCABEES HOLD CARD PARTY HELD TUESDAY NIGHT

The Maccabees held a card party last Tuesday evening which drew an unusually large crowd, 15 tables being engaged. The meeting was held at the I. O. O. F. Hall.

First prize was won by Edgar Behrens and Angus Phillips walked away with the second prize.

GOVERNOR DECLARES 8-DAY BANK HOLIDAY

CHARLEVOIX ASS'N COMMERCE TO HOLD "FARMER' NIGHT"

At Odd Fellows Hall March 1: Novel Entertainment

The Charlevoix Association of Commerce will hold its annual "Farmers' Night" on the evening of Wednesday, March 1st, at the Odd Fellow Hall.

Ladies of the Rebekah lodge will serve the supper, which is scheduled for 6:30 p. m. The charge for supper will be quite reasonable and an unusual spectic of entertainment is planned for the evening.

These "Farmers' Night" affairs are always good fun and have been well attended in the past. Officers of the Association want our rural friends to feel that they have as much part in affairs of the community, which included the outlying districts as well as the city, as have the city folk and they are to have an equal voice in deliberations of the Association and representation on its committees.

It is especially necessary in times like these that there should be solidarity of action and thought between city dweller and rural resident. In a report community such as this, the interests of both are for the most part, identical and much more can be achieved by cooperation than by working separately.

NUMBER ATTEND K. OF C. BANQUET IN PETOSKEY

Return Trip Made In Blizzard Of Great Severity

A banquet and drive for new members was put on by the Knights of Columbus at Petoskey Sunday night. Some 300 attended the banquet. The following from Charlevoix braved the inclement weather to be present.

Frf. Nesbecker, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foster, and son Bernard, Captain and Mrs. James H. Gallagher, Capt. and Mrs. M. J. Bonner and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gallagher.

The time spent at Petoskey was pleasant, but the return trip by the Charlevoix contingent could have been worse, but as it was there were several annoyances, discomforts and perplexities, with some of the visitors arriving at their homes at 3 o'clock Monday morning. Deep snow and a blizzard were contributing factors in making for disagreeable features and delays in the homeward trip.

Harvesting Ice

Harvesting of the ice crop is on in full blast this week and hundreds of tons are being stored for use during the summer months. The product is of fine quality, not as heavy as has been put up in the past but about the same as cut last year.

LOCAL BANKS ARE SOUND

MOVE COMES AS SURPRISE TO EVERYONE

No banking business in Michigan from February 14 to February 21, both inclusive, according to a proclamation issued by Governor Comstock, promulgated during the early hours of Tuesday the 14th inst.

The cause or reason for the notice on the front door of both the Charlevoix State Savings Bank and Charlevoix County Bank Tuesday, both complying with the unprecedented proclamation, as also will 530 more companies, national, state and private financial institutions in this state. Thus until the proclamation expires or is previously revoked banks are practically non-existent.

Insofar as Charlevoix is concerned the closing of the banks came as a complete surprise, not only to depositors but to officials of each of the two local institutions with the surprise greatest to bank officials.

Great as the surprise was to everyone there, was no demonstration made by the public, no excitement from any source as everyone looked upon the action as one more step created by the long drawn out business depression.

That the banks in Charlevoix are in fine financial condition was evidenced by the financial statements recently published in the Sentinel. That they are financially sound, hence no reason for alarm is the consensus of opinion among depositors, while the general opinion prevails that after February 21, both inclusive, according to a proclamation as issued by Governor Comstock, the banking business will resume its former status in local business life.

The proclamation of the Governor and the orders from the State Banking commission to all incorporated banks to stay closed for eight days is being observed by the Charlevoix State Savings Bank, preventing it and all other incorporated banks from opening to do any banking business in Charlevoix and adjoining counties and so far as our information goes the includes the entire state.

SPEAKER CHOSEN FOR ADDRESS AT THE CO. CONVENTION

Thomas D. Meggison Will Be Keynoter At Meeting

Mr. H. C. Meyer, chairman of the Republican County Committee, informs the Sentinel that Attorney Thomas D. Meggison of Traverse City will deliver the keynote address at the County Republican Convention to be held in Charlevoix Tuesday, February 21 to be held at the Charlevoix County court house.

Mr. Meggison is well and favorably known here and is considered one of the most sane and substantial speakers in the region, therefore delegates to the convention contemplate listening to a masterly address during the session.

LINCOLN'S PHILOSOPHY

"I shall not try to read, much less answer, all the criticisms of me and my associates. Else this office might as well be closed for any other business. . . . I do the very best I know how—the very best I can; and I mean to keep on doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, ten thousand angels swearing I was right would make no difference."

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

On February 12th this nation observed the 124th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, sixteenth president of the United States of America.

Abraham Lincoln lived during the most trying years of this Republic. To him, more than to any other man of his time, credit should be given for the preservation of the freedom of a great people.

He met the problems of his day and generation with stern courage. When all others about him were bending in the storms of fratricidal conflict, he, alone, remained calm and unafraid. His was a single purpose—to perpetuate the Union at any cost.

Although nearly three score years and ten have been marked down in the great Book of Time since he fell a martyr to an assassin's bullet, his fame and influence continues to grow with each passing day. The story of his life has been the inspiration of millions of American citizens. His spirit, his personality will never die.

Let it be for us in this hour of travail to remember Abraham Lincoln for his sorely virtues for his uncompromising course when grave perils threatened the ship of state.

WHAT OUR NAVY NEEDS

Professional pacifists in the United States who like to take the false position that Uncle Same is the real military and naval menace to world peace ought to be interested in the latest comparison of the Navy Department at Washington to the effect that Uncle Sam will have to construct 135 new ships with a total tonnage of 316,530 tons, during the next four years if we are to bring our naval strength up to that allowed in the London naval agreement. And the London figure, it will be remembered, was conceded to be the very lowest which would give the United States a naval defense adequate to its safety.

According to this report which has been prepared for the Naval Affairs Committee of the U. S. Senate, Japan has already provided for all replacements allowed her under the treaty except 5,200 tons of destroyers which cannot be laid down until 1935 and a similar tonnage to be laid down in 1936. Great Britain, the report adds, has maintained a steady naval program of three cruisers, nine destroyers and three submarines a year since the naval agreement was authorized, while Uncle Sam has been falling just as steadily behind John Bull and the Japs in naval strength.

The report declares that the United States needs the following 135 warships to keep up to its treaty strength; three aircraft carriers, 9 cruisers, 39 destroyers and 34 submarines with a total tonnage of 316,530.

Yet our professional pacifists not only are seeking to block necessary naval construction in the United States but by a juggling of figures are helping spread the impression in Europe that Uncle Sam is the big military and naval aggressor of the world.

Isn't it about time the people of America awaken to the real situation? Never in peace times has there been greater unrest in the world. The scuttling of our navy now would be an invitation to the rest of the world to come and get us.

STABILIZING THE ORIENT

It is said that President-elect Roosevelt is convinced that one of the first things needed for world stability is a stabilizing of conditions in the Orient. There can be no quarrel with this position. Undoubtedly the chaotic conditions in the Orient and especially in China, have helped to prolong the world depression. Of course it is easier to talk about stabilizing conditions in the Orient than it is to effect such a salutory change. Yet doubtless something can be done in spite of the fact that the League of Nations has fallen down miserably on the job.

The one thing to be kept in mind is that the Oriental problem will not be finally settled unless the wishes of Japan are taken into account. This is not an argument for the Japanese position in Oriental affairs, it is a calm statement of fact. Japan is the one big modern power in the Orient and an attempt to settle the problems of the Far East without placating Japan would be about as big a job as settling a problem in Central America in a manner contrary to the wishes of the United States.

Perhaps we do not agree with the action that Japan has taken in Manchuria but this is beside the question. The fact is that the Japs are there and cannot be dislodged against their will without the application of force.

So far as the United States is concerned, if we wanted to oppose the Japanese position we would have to take into account the prospect that sooner or later we must face an armed conflict with Japan, and probably face it without chance of much assistance from other nations who are now professing to be friends of downtrodden China. This prospect is one which would not be entirely pleasing to the people of the United States.

But there is the possibility of working out an agreement which would satisfy Japan, protect American and European commercial interests in the Orient and still not be detrimental to the long time interests of the Chinese. Those persons who now seem to fear that Japan will ultimately dominate the entire continent of Asia are indulging in the contemplation of specters which are not apt to materialize. The interests of Japan and Russia are perpetually opposed in the Orient and some time Russia will again take her place in the family of nations; when she does so she will act as a check to Japanese ambitions.

HITLER TAKES THE WHEEL

Adolf Hitler, the former Austrian house painter, has become the head of the German government. His ascendancy has not brought the crash in the world's securities markets which might have happened a year ago. Wall street took but a passing interest in the affair and the following day on the Stock Exchange was the quietest of the year.

More than one reason has been assigned for this. It is said that the world has had so many shocks it can now contemplate almost anything without getting excited. It is declared that the Hitler bogey is not so fearful as it was a year ago and that he will be more conservative than was expected, because of his accession to power. Then the optimists assert that our financial markets have steadied so much during the year that they are almost shock proof. Let us hope there is at least a little truth in this last contention.

Anyhow Hitler now has his chance to demonstrate. He may become another Mussolini and then again he may not. If he is successful he will get the plaudits of the world and if he fails he will soon be forgotten. He will now find his road much more difficult than it has been heretofore. As a leader of the minority he could criticize without stint and promise everything. But now the time of promising has passed and he must begin to perform. Can he make good on the extravagant promises and satisfy the people who have elevated him to power? If so, all well and good; if not he will have the sad experience of many politicians who have gone on before.

TO HELP AGRICULTURE

The United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics "said a mouthful" the other day in its annual Farm Outlook report when it declared that improved demand for farm products waits on the recovery of industry, and especially the heavy basic industries in the United States. In other words, until the millions of idle men in our country are once more employed in the steel mills and other industries including the mines, the railroads, automobile factories, and so on, there will be no recovery on the farms.

When the fact comes to be more generally realized in the United States we will have more action and less theorizing and then we will be on the way to recovery. Most of our agricultural products are consumed in America. The way to increase farm purchasing therefore is to start the wheels going as soon as possible. When the average American worker is employed he spends his money on substantial food, on beef, pork, butter, eggs, poultry and other agricultural products. So long as this American worker is not employed at good wages we are not going to have a return of prosperity.

Just now many of our industries are sadly crippled because other nations—Japan is a good example—due to depreciated currency are dumping their manufactured products in the United States and causing American labor to suffer. The internationalist's remedy is to encourage more importations on the theory that this will sell our farm products abroad. The fallacy of this theory is self evident. The average Oriental cooks rice on a cup of tea and a few handsful of rice a day. How important is his food to the American farmer when compared with what the American worker will consume if steadily employed? The answer to this question is so plain that even an internationalist ought to be able to get it.

Just as wild is the theory of the inflationist who thinks that because some of these foreign nations have debased their currency and now pay their workers with tin money, that Uncle Sam could help himself by doing the same thing. The final result would spell ruin to all Americans whether they live in the city or the country, whether they work in the factory or on the farm.

The next thing to be done is to shut out this flood of foreign goods which has been made possible by the use of cheap money abroad and the further impoverishing of the working classes. When this is done we will be on the road to recovery and can look to the future with more confidence. International bargaining and inflation will not do the work. What is needed is a little straight American thinking.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

WHERE A VANISHED CAPITOL STOOD
WILLIAMSBURG, VIRGINIA

A short run down Duke of Gloucester Street in this Land of Eld will bring the traveler to the site of a vanished Capitol. Here Washington once became too embarrassed to reply to a vote of honor accorded by the House of Burgesses. One member with a courteous bow assured young Washington that his great courage was exceeded only by his modesty. The Capitol is being rebuilt upon its original foundation.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

A few days ago the directors of the United States Steel Company reduced the quarterly dividend on the preferred stock of the company from $1.75 to fifty cents, putting the stock on an annual $2 basis instead of the seven dollar basis which had been the rate for payments since the organization of the company. This indicates the present low condition of the steel business in the United States, a condition due in great part to our present general economic plight, but not altogether so. A great deal of steel is being brought to our shores and is coming from European countries which are now able to put it here at a price defying competition because of the depreciated currency in the manufacturing country.

In a hearing before House Ways and Means Committee at Washington recently, James A. Farrell, former president of the U. S. Steel Company, stated in no uncertain terms what is the matter with a great many of our industries. He declared that the legislation now before Congress to increase duties against foreign countries which have cheapened their currencies was the most important thing before Congress and added that the adoption of protection against this foreign menace would put Uncle Sam in a much improved condition to negotiate when the matter of foreign debt adjustment comes up. Mr. Farrell is a business man of standing and judgment and his opinion carries weight wherever he is known.

But it is not only the steel industry which is suffering from this foreign drive made possible by the depreciated currencies abroad. A great many of our other manufacturing industries are feeling the pinch, too. Some of them are now virtually paralyzed because the goods which they manufacture can be laid down in America by the Japanese and the Europeans at a price which would not represent the bare labor cost in America. If we are to get back on the road to prosperity soon, if the meat, the eggs, butter and wheat produced on American farms is to have a real market, our factory wheels must commence turning once more. This cannot be until our industries are protected from the goods produced in nations where there has been a depreciation of currency which grinds down the labor market still further and permits the production of goods at unheard of prices.

That the people of the country are beginning to realize this menace is evidenced by the gradual change of sentiment in Congress. Two bills have been introduced to give American industry and labor protection against the cheap money menace, one by Congressman Hill, Democrat, Washington, and the other by Representative Crowther, Republican, New York. Speaker Garner announced rather nonchalantly the other day that his majority in Congress would block the consideration of such legislation during this session. A caucus was called of the Democrats in the House to get an agreement to cut off consideration of such legislation. But Speaker Garner and his friends could not put it over. They found that there is a great deal of sentiment in the Democratic ranks for the protection of American industry against the tin money of Europe and the Orient and that a revolt was brewing. If the plan to shut off consideration o this legislation is to be made effective it will have to have more powerful pressure brot tear on it than can be applied by Mr. Garner.

There is little argument as to the merits of the legislation promised in the bills to protect us from cheap currency production abroad. The results are visible on every hand. Go into any department store or ten cent store and note the labels on the goods, as to where these are manufactured. And then try to swallow the bunk of the professional free trader and his brother the New York importer that our tariff is so high that foreign nations can no longer trade with us.

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual—National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare

As is usual at this time of year, business sentiment is unsettled. Reports from various parts of the country point to a change for the better in industrial activity, always an encouraging sign. Financial observers seem to be a trifle more optimistic. Even the high percentage of commercial failures impresses many as having a favorable side — elimination of weak units in the industrial machine is essential to getting it going again at full speed.

At the recent retailers' convention, it was forecast that sales would drop 20 per cent during the first quarter of 1933 with improvement in the second quarter. A majority of retail authorities believe that prices are gradually being stabilized.

To many, one of the good events of 1932 was a decline in the cost of living or 9.4 per cent. This, too, has its other side—the continued decline in commodity costs is one of the most stubborn influences in prolonging depression. Another barrier to industrial rehabilitation is the growing fear of heavier taxation and the possibility of a general sales tax that will further damage purchasing power. The state of the public finances continues to be unhappy, with the deficit hovering around the $1,200,000,000 mark. Federal receipts are below expectations, due principally to the lost potency of the income tax.

Consumption of electricity, like car loadings and bank clearings, always plays an important part in the making of business barometers. It is, therefore, cheering to know that since July sales of power have been constantly increasing and in greater proportion than the normal seasonal increase. The December advance marked a greater percentage gain than did the increase in the same month of 1930—a year of extraordinary electric consumption.

Latest reports on major industries published:

Lumber—New business continues to exceed production, and in Southern pine district is 13 per cent ahead of last year.

Steel: Fell off after moderate expansion; consensus of opinion looks to improvement in next few months.

Wool: Sales close to normal so far this year.

Oil: The drop in crude from 65c to 38c a barrel, in the face of proration agreements, and because of overproduction, is one of the most discouraging of recent events.

Shoes, Silk and Automobiles show definite improvement.

Employment declined .4 per cent in December, with four out of seventeen major industrial groups marking increase. White collar workers constitute 28 per cent of those out of work. Even slightest change upward in purchasing power should be immediately reflected in employment statistics, as stocks of finished goods of all kinds are now at an irreducible minimum and only demand is needed to make factories hum.

While farm conditions show little change, a good sign is that the fundamental supply and demand situation in regard to wheat is steadily improving, thus warranting the opinion that price improvement will come in the future. There have been some farm price setbacks, with cattle and hides holding tenaciously to the upward trend. Foreign demand for cotton has been moderately good.

Of national interest is the fact that forced farm sales totaled 9.5 per cent of all farms in the country during the five years ending March 1, 1932. Tax delinquencies were responsible for 3.5 per cent of these.

A rise in prices—probably temporary—recently occurred in Bolivia, with but little or no change in the other South American countries. Basic British industries are reported to be more active. For the first time in 30 years the Nationalist Government in China has succeeded in balancing its budget. Rumania showed a large favorable foreign trade balance for the first nine months of 1932. Canadian business continues low.

S. M. Rose is at Horton's Bay building a dock.

The weather the past three days has probably provided a bridge for the Beaver Island mail.

The Ferry Seed Co. last year shipped 88,000 bushels of peas from their Charlevoix warehouse. Mr. Comber has already contracted for 5,000 acres of peas, and expects to get 1,000 acres more, besides a good acreage of beans.

The first zero weather recorded for Charlevoix fell upon us Sunday night, and has continued up to the present writing with blizzard accompaniment most of the time. Yesterday thermometers registered from five to ten below zero. But advices from other localities in this latitude and below, give accounts of weather beside which ours is but a balmy May day.

And now boys, get together again. Don't let this little local jostle disturb your rest. Bury your hatchets and use your knives for cutting other things than each other's political gullets.

Gird your loins and prepare for other battles and other victories. We cannot all win, and three jacks takes three seven spots. Cover the blind ante up again and perhaps you may get the aces next time. Pshaw! What is the use of talking about killing off this man or that man? Life is too short. Get together boys!

At the last meeting of the Shiftless Shipmasters Society the president produced a box of excellent cigars sent to the Society by J. F. Maloney, clerk of the Steamer City of Charlevoix. In a letter accompanying the gift, Mr. Maloney states that he has frequently noticed the poor quality of tobacco furnished the members of the Society, and has been made sea-sick by inhaling its fumes at he headquarters of the Society. Touched by these remembrances, and impelled by a knowledge of probable conditions here, Mr. Maloney sent the Havanas. The Society by a rising vote, returned thanks to Mr. Maloney. Capt. Pete Campbell is to be away two weeks, and quite a heated argument arose when Capt. Pete c aimed the right to take his share of the cigars with him. But the skipper of the Beaver was turned down. The custodian was then instructed to keep the cigars in the safe, until Capt. Pete was out of town. In view of the fact that Capt. Wilbur and Capt. Pete have been dabbling in the dirty pool of politics lately, Capt. Billy Duncan entered a protest against such conduct in the future. The Captain of the Illinois said he did not wish to be understood as criticising party measures, but he objected to members of the society exposing their ignorance and thus bringing the society into disrepute. Capt. Pete Campbell who leaves town today, was voted a certificate of character with limitations.

Origin and Growth of the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix

As in the case of the M. E. Church, the first steps taken toward Baptist organization here were taken at Barnard. On the 7th of June, 1878, a few of that persuasion met at the home of Mrs. A. J. Mudge, at that place, and, under the leadership of Rev. A. M. Parmenter, effected an organization with the following members: Mrs. Mary Mudge, H. D. Stevens, Mrs. H. D. Stevens, Thomas Chamberlain, Mrs. Catherine Chamberlain, Mrs. Eliza Gregory, James O'Brien, Mrs. Emily J. Bell and Melville Wheaton.

Several meetings followed. Rev. A. M. Parmenter having been chosen as pastor. The records relate that the first baptism was effected, the compact being sealed in the Ingleside building. The first deacons elected were M. F. Norton, H. D. Stevens and Philip M. Dorman. At a meeting in July, Bro. George W. Bell was licensed to preach.

On the 16th of August, the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix took her place among sister churches a "Council of Recognition" having been held that day. Several clergymen from various parts of the state were present.

The church, though few in numbers, prospered spiritually, and under the faithful ministrations of the pastor, the blessing of God attended their labors and deliberations. The meetings were held in halls, but already the society looked forward to having a house of worship.

In 1884 Rev. A. M. Parmenter severed his pastoral connection with the church, although he continued to lead the meetings and preach from time to time. The society had greatly increased in membership, and the meetings were attended with good spiritual results.

In March 1886, the site of the present church edifice was purchased and in the same month a call was extended to Rev. W. G. Clark, of Cheboygan, which was accepted and that gentleman at once entered upon his duties. During 1887 a building fund was started, and a building committee appointed.

In August 1888, the corner stone of the present beautiful structure was laid by the pastor, assisted by Rev. Samuel Brooks, of Kalamazoo; Rev. Dr. Grenell, of Detroit.

The building was pushed forward to completion. On December 23rd, 1888, services were held in the church for the first time.

At the annual session of the Grand Traverse Baptist Association held June 19-20, 1889, the following report was made of the Charlevoix Church:

The church is in a healthy spiritual condition, and the outlook for the coming year much brighter than the one just closing. In the work of building our house of worship, and in doing good work in the Lord's vineyard.

FACTS ON THE LEGION'S FIGHT FOR DISABLED VETERAN

disabled. They have included experts in social work, experts in claims handling, and medical experts in surgery and afflictions such as tuberculosis and mental disabilities.

Presents Witnesses

The Legion never merely said that these are the conclusions of a million veterans. For each conclusion presented by the Legion to Congress over the years, we have brought forward able and informed witnesses prepared to submit the underlying reasons, the necessity, the justice for the conclusions which the veterans had reached in their deliberation. The mass of testimony thus rendered has been commented upon at length by the government's own experts, and then all of this evidence has been reviewed with great care by congressional committees before their own conclusions were finally reached and approved by both houses of Congress.

No one can successfully question the industry, the intelligence and the high sense of duty with which members of Congress have endeavored to solve the difficult and countless problems involved in World War veterans' relief. Anyone who dares challenge this devotion of our legislators, by this fact alone exhibits a lack of knowledge.

The lives of many thousands of veterans have been saved by the provision of the World war Veteran's Act. Lately Congress has intened for several weeks to men backed by large fortunes, who have continually attacked Federal expenditures on account of veterans. These men are actuated by a purpose—which is to reduce federal benefits to veterans.

Opponents Yardstick

Their yardstick is money. They have presented no arguments to show that Federal expenditures under existing law are wrong or improper. They have ignored completely the obvious fact that care must be provided disabled men. They have neglected to state that such action would increase city, county and state expenditures. They have failed to say that city, county and state taxes have increased much more rapidly than federal taxes. They have failed to say that city, county and state taxes are frequently owed by people unable to pay them. They never refer to the fact that the federal taxes are paid by people who can afford them, that men do not pay federal income taxes unless they have incomes of sufficient size to warrant such payments.

Call It Economy

Yet in the name of economy these representatives of wealthy interests ask that Congress transfer a large proportion of the veterans' cost from the wealthy income taxpayers of this country, to the backs of the distressed and needy local property taxpayers. In making their proposals to cut veterans' benefits the organized groups of this ilk

In the teachings of Christ He speaks of the Kingdom as yet to come and foretold the activities that were to bring it about. He thus revealed the way to ultimately realize His ideals in human history and upon earth. A Kingdom that is nigh is unrealized; in the process of realization it is still in the future: not come, Jesus does not cast doubt upon the fact that the universe is under the government of God. But He sees anarchy instead of order, a Kingdom not recognized, not yielded to, unrealized as to its benefits and glories. He expressed His thoughts in the words of Matthew: "when he saw the multitude, he was moved with compassion for them, because they were distressed and scattered, as sheep not having a shepherd." Next Sunday, "Existing Anarchy".

Some one said in effect that "It was not news if a dog bite a man, but if a man bite a dog that was news." For women to urge their husbands, sons or fathers to attend church service is just commonplace. But when the men suddenly challenge the women to a contest in church attendance who would not glance up from their jigsaw puzzle. Get this: the men whose wives and daughters are members of the Mary Brewster Circle have thrown down the gauntlet to the ladies of that circle and the manner in which it was snatched indicates some real activity from that quarter.

Beginning Sunday, February 26, a friendly rivalry in church attendance will be conducted among the circles. Three Sundays will be known as Circle Sundays and they will appear in this order: Beginning Feb. 26 as Mary Brewster Sunday and South Side Sunday.

The Sunday School banquet held Tuesday night in honor of Mrs. Rife's class of girls was a success in point of attendance, eats, noise and entertainment. Quoting Mrs. Roosevelt

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the president elect has been quoted as saying "the average girl of today faces the problem of learning very young how much she can drink of such things as whisker and gin and sticking to the proper quantity."

Many letters of protest have gone to Mrs. Roosevelt from Women's Clubs and other organizations as well as individual adults and young people ,and according to the daily press she has admitted she was foolish to make the statement.

In a recent interview she states she is a dry but is dissatisfied with prohibition because it has not been successful. She urges everyone to cooperate in solving the problems repeal will bring forth.

STAR OF "SIX HOURS TO LIVE" HAS DUAL PERSONALITY

Contemplates Travel When He Retires From Screen

No matter what character he may be portraying on the screen, Warner Baxter possesses the rare faculty of walking right into the heart of his role. He is one of the few male stars who can, seemingly without effort, adapt his mental outlook to that of the character he is delineating.

"An actor may feel and live the role he is playing before the camera," says this popular player, "but it is imperative that he come out of character immediately the scene is finished.

"Unless he has the capacity for returning to his normal self, he is likely to develop temperament and possibly a nervous breakdown may follow."

Baxter's creed is: "Never become discouraged; sell yourself and you cannot fail to succeed."

Baxter never attempts to cram his beliefs down the throats of his friends. He tells them what he thinks and they may take it or leave it. Experience, he says, has taught him that the world is much the way one takes it—or makes it.

When asked what he intends to do when he is done with pictures, Baxter did not hesitate in his reply.

"I have it all figured out," he said, "I'm going to my camp in the San Jacinto mountains for a long rest; then I shall start out and see the world. I love travel, but have enjoyed little chance to get far from Hollywood since I began in motion pictures.

"I want to see Europe and see it right. I want to go into the country as well as the cities on the other side of the Atlantic. I hope to be able to browse here and there and not be interrupted in my holiday."

Baxter's latest motion picture appearance is in "Six Hours To Live," the new Fox drama with John Boles and Miriam Jordan, coming on Saturday and Sunday to the Palace Theater.

FACTS ON THE LEGION'S FIGHT FOR DISABLED VETERAN

People Are Duped By Propaganda of "Big Business"

The American Legion sees in the attempt to reduce benefits to disabled World War veterans, the desire to overturn the basic theories of veterans' relief which have existed since the foundation of our country. Summed up, it is a declaration that all previous Congresses, back to the Revolutionary war have been wrong in their legislative theories. Congress has been told in effect it did not know what it was doing. The organized opponents want to remove the veteran from the position of honor he has held in American life and history since Colonial days and place him in exactly the same position before the national government as the private citizen who rendered no military assistance to his government in time of national peril.

Opponents Mislead

The opponents say, in effect, that the government owes no more obligation to the aged and helpless soldier, who returned unwounded from the trenches where he fought for the defense of all the people, than it does to the war profiteer who massed a fortune while the soldier was fighting at the risk of his life, undergoing hardships and dangers of all kinds and foregoing the financial opportunities which the profiteers knew so well how to capitalize.

These organized groups, the National Economy League and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States would place the two men—doughboy and profiteer on a parity so far as the obligation of our Federal government is concerned. They say that when each of them became disabled and destitute the firm, that each should go to the poorhouse and become the beneficiaries of the charity of their own local communities.

Legion, Congress Cooperate

For thirteen years the American Legion has cooperated with Congress in a joint effort to solve the difficult and distressing post-war problems of veterans' relief, on account of those who incurred death or disability as a result of service in the armed forces during the World War.

For Congress, this has been only one of the many important national problems demanding solution, but for the Legion it has been our primary interest and our first duty. Under these circumstances Legion cooperation has been welcomed by Congress, and they have endeavored at all times to work in close harmony with the committees of the House of Representatives and the Senate.

The Legion has always kept in mind the interest of the nation as well as of the veterans —for we realize that the welfare of the veterans and welfare of the nation are indissolubly bound together.

The Legion has brought these problems to Congress each year. Our expert witnesses have testified for months before committees. These witnesses have come from every state in the Union. Their numbers have run into the hundreds. They have endeavored to give to Congress their collective experiences, gathered at

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY REPORTS LOSSES

At Annual Meeting of Stockholders February 9

Ratio of net earnings of the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. for 1932, to the cost of plant and other assets, was 2.60 per cent, compared with 3.62 per cent the previous year. The company failed by $636,500 to earn the dividends of $2.50 per share paid on its stock during the year, according to the report of the company's operations for 1932 presented by Burch Foraker, president, at the annual meeting of the stockholders held Thursday, February 9.

Report Shows Loss

The report also shows a net loss of 105,495 telephones during the year, excluding purchases, sales and transfers. Installations totaled 150,560 and disconnections were 256,055. At the end of the year the company had 527,710 telephones in service. Exchange messages declined nearly 11 per cent, and toll messages more than 22.5 per cent.

LEGION PLANS BENEFIT DANCE

Fight Looms To Protect The Average Small Taxpayer

By F. V. Tyler

Remember the benefit dance at the gym on Friday evening of this week. Admission fee will be in the form of donated supplies that may be given to the needy. Another stag card party at the Legion home is scheduled for Tuesday evening, February 28th. The regular session of the post will be called at 7:30 with the card party following at 8:30.

Fight Looms

The Legion has a knock-down and drag 'em out fight looming ahead of it to combat the activities of the so-called American Veterans' Association, which seems to be the joint progeny of the National Economy League and the United States Chamber of Commerce, both zealous representatives and mouthpieces of the class who have swollen incomes that are sensitive to taxation. Just what sort of veterans are members of this organization it is hard to say, but they are making an impassioned appeal to the government not to give them any more of the people's money. They admit that their members accepted a substantial loan on their adjusted compensation certificates, but—apparently — they have been made to see the light and will virtuously turn down any further profers of government money. If you want to read the advertisement (full page) you will find it in Collier's Weekly for February 25th.

Collection of Falsehoods

A more ingenuous collection of falsehoods was never compiled before in any one place unless we except the published memoirs of Baron Munchausen. The advertisement is a shining example of the old adage that "figures never lie but liars sometimes figure." When you read all this plausible and insidious propaganda, just remember this one fact—that only one penny of the money of 97 per cent of the taxpayers has ever gone to help the veteran, disabled or otherwise, through the agency of the national government. Nearly every cent has come from taxes on the swollen incomes of the "plutes" on the many fortunes made during the World War out of exorbitant and illegitimate profits acquired while the boys overseas were receiving a dollar a day for enduring the tortures of hell in the trenches or marking time in a training camp while their silk-shirted brethren pulled down their twenty dollars a day in the munitions factories. Hundreds—yes thousands of the boys who never got across are paupers today due to their voluntary service of their country. The man wounded in battle was patched up on the spot and many times never suffered any ill effects afterwards. The man not wounded, in thousands of instances, sowed the seeds of devastating disease in the war that did not develop until months and sometimes years after his service was terminated. Shall we help the first and let the latter shift for himself? You have recently had a case right in this town of a man who served through the first terrible months of the war in the Canadian forces—one of the men who really won the war, for the war was won when the Germans were first stopped on their way to the channel ports by the heroic lit-

DELEGATES TO CONVENTION

AT GRAND RAPIDS ELECTED HERE TUESDAY

Republican delegates gathered at the Court House Tuesday and elected five delegates to attend the State Convention called for February 28th at Grand Rapids. Five alternates were also selected and resolutions endorsed favoring the nomination of Howard C. Lawrence for chairman of the Republican State Central Committee; Webster H. Pierce for Superintendent of Public Instruction; Grover C. Dillman for State Highway Director and George M. Clark and John Melbonic for Justices of the Supreme Court.

Judge J. M. Harris substituted for Hon. T. D. Meggison, who, due to illness was unable to be present and address the convention. Mr. Harris delivered an unusually good address which was well received.

Mr. H. C. Myers, Chairman of the Republican County Committee presided over the session and Mrs. Agnes Lorch as Secretary.

Delegates to State Convention are:

Dr. F. F. McMillan, Charlevoix; J. J. Porter, East Jordan; J. M. Harris, Boyne City and Douglas A. Tibbits, Boyne City.

Alternates: Mrs. R. B. Armstrong, Charlevoix; Gerald F. Bush, Charlevoix; Samuel C. Rogers, East Jordan; Day Scott Boyne City; Frank Wangeman, Boyne City.

Special Quartet Music

Special music has been arranged and will be rendered by a quartet composed of Mrs. R. Lee O'Brien, soprano; Mrs. H. L. Monlieth, contralto; Lawrence Foley, tenor and W. G. McClune as baritone, respectively to be held at Christ Episcopal Church Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Mrs. H. B. Lee of Petoskey will preside at the organ for the quartette and Mrs. O'Brien during the regular service. Several persons from Petoskey will attend, according to present plans.

Returns From Visit

Mrs. John Kelderhouse, who for the past four months has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Lydia Hayes, in New York City returned to Charlevoix a few days ago.

Mrs. Maggie Sharrow, a visitor at Ypsilanti for about six weeks, returned home Tuesday.

PROGRAM ENJOYED AT ST. MARY'S HALL TEUSDAY NIGHT

Eleven Tables Engaged in Pedro and Bridge Games

The usual weekly program wascarried out at St. Mary's School Hall Tuesday night with the regular good attendance and of course the enjoyment was fully up to the precedent set by preceding like functions.

Members of the committee in charge of the event were: Mr. George LaBlanche, Leo Allard, Captain James Gallagher and Francis Gallagher.

Mrs. Charles Hibbard was proclaimed victor in the pedro contest, Mr. Joseph M. Foster won a like position at bridge and Dan Martin captured the door award.

Eleven tables were enjoyed in the bridge and pedro games, while non-players were entertained with music or other interesting ways.

DETOUR AHEAD" TO BE GIVEN NEXT TUESDAY EVENING

Also "Via Air" and Three Musical Numbers on Program

Following is the cast for the play "Detour Ahead":

Linda Ramsey, Virginia Nickerson.
Grandpa Ramsey, Clarence Arnold.
Chuck Allen, Wm. Brown.
Jim Mourchead, Harold Newman.
Mrs. Mourchead, Virginia Taylor.
Mrs. Stevens, Dorothy Staley.
Mr. Stevens, Howard Davenport.

The scene is laid on the Ramsey farm, which is in danger of a mortgage foreclosure by a tight neighbor. What happens to the farm and the effect upon the Ramsey's and their friends is brought forth in the play

This play will be the concluding number to an interesting program of entertainment which will be presented next Tuesday evening at 8:00 p. m. at the M. E. Church.

There will be no admission fee at the door, but a collection will be taken during the program. The general public is invited to attend.

The opening number will be a flute solo by Miss Marian Tyler. Next will be a one act play entitled "Via Air". This play has Dorothy Pedersen and Alan Hartwell in the leading parts. There will be, as part of this play, a number of radio voices coming from a nearby station which was erected under Ty Kirby's supervision. The humorous incidents arising must be heard and witnessed to be appreciated to the fullest.

Following these two numbers will be vocal music by the high school girls' trio, composed of the Misses Bernice Meggison, Charlotte Bricker and Grace Bolling. The offertory solo will be rendered by Miss Ernestine Chew.

The play "Detour Ahead" will round out an evening of fine entertainment.

THE INN TO OPEN THE LATTER PART OF JUNE

Under Management of M H Turner and Associates

The Pere Marquette Railway Company announces that its summer hotel, The Inn, at Charlevoix the Beautiful, will open the latter part of June for the 1933 summer season.

The operation of The Inn, Charlevoix's largest and finest hotel was for over a quarter of a century under the direction of the late A. I. Creamer and to perpetuate the high standard of service to its select clientele, inaugurated and maintained by Mr. Creamer, the hotel and vast acreage of playground and other properties will be under the management of M. H. Turner and Associates.

Returning to Charlevoix in early May with Mr. Turner, after the close of the season at the Highland Pines Inn, Southern Pines, North Carolina, will be Associates William E. Flynn, Dan C. Walsh, Lee McDonald, Leon M. York and James T. Flynn—all members of last summer's managing force.

Democratic Delegates

Mr. T. L. Pierce of Boyne Falls, Lee Powers, Captain M. J. Bonner and R. F. Sloan Sr., have been selected to represent Charlevoix at the Democratic State Convention, scheduled for Grand Rapids February 24th.

MASONS ENJOY FINE PROGRAM

Building Ass'n Celebrates Payment Of Mortgage

Tuesday night members of the Masonic Building Association, their wives, etc, to the number of two hundred met at the Masonic Temple primarily for the purpose of celebrating the final payment of the mortgage indebtedness against the Masonic Temple, burning of the mortgage papers in connection with the financial transaction.

In connection with the principal feature of the evening, following a specially prepared excellent dinner, a set program of addresses and music was carried out as follows:

Invocation, Rev. G. Russell Parker.

Song, "America," Dr. F. H. Wilkinson.

Introduction of Master of Ceremonies, A. L. Fitch, by W. H. Miller, President of Building Association.

Violin Solo, Mrs. Dan Soule.

Reminiscences, S. M. Rose.

The Blue Lodge, W. M., Mr. Lance Neff.

R. A. M., H. A. Craig.

O. E. S., Past W. M., Mrs. W. H. Miller.

Burning of mortgage, W. H. Miller.

Address: Louis E. Anderson.

The address of Mr. Anderson most interesting as well as instructive. This to some considerable extent gave his listeners some idea of the new Masonic home located at Alma, and what benefits were derived by fraternal members living at the home and their dependents.

Impromptu talks, made by local people also proved most interesting, to this Mr. D. S. Dayton, now living at San Diego, California, for many years a resident of Charlevoix and one of the prime factors in the movement to erect a Masonic Temple in Charlevoix as well as one of its most ardent supporters from the inception of the plan until the present time, was ably represented by his daughter Miss Minnie S. Payton.

That the mortgage indebtedness has been a source of annoyance for a term of years to members of the association is well known, therefore the full and complete payment of the obligation is appreciated as being a source of rejoicing generally.

"THE COST OF MILK TOO HIGH IN CHARLEVOIX"

According to Following Letter From "A Citizen"

Charlevoix Michigan
February 20, '33
Charlevoix Sentinel:

"Cost of Milk In Charlevoix"

The price of the per quart charged for milk in Charlevoix is entirely too high and out of line with the cost of the same product in other cities. Following are the retail prices per quart charged for milk in nearby and distant cities. Petoskey 8c, Boyne City 6c to 7c, East Jordan 8c, Traverse City 5 to 6c, Lansing 7c, Detroit 3 to 7c. It is evident the price locally is not fixed by competition, as in the case of other commodities.

It has been suggested that a lowering of price would throw a burden upon the city that is now borne by the milkmen. If true, this practice is economically unsound, unjust to the milkmen and unfair to tax the consumer to carry on such a practice. Undoubtedly the prohibitive price is preventing many large families from consuming their necessary requirements. A lowering of price should be mutually beneficial.

In the opinion of the writer the methods of producing and merchandising employed locally are costly and inefficient, however as citizens and consumers we are only concerned with the fact that milk is selling at too high a cost in Charlevoix.

I have taken this question up with the city council in session and the majority of that body are in accord with my opinions, but they would like to see the milkmen adjust this condition themselves. That is fair enough. Now are the milkmen willing to cooperate with the citizens and reduce their retail price of milk to where it will compare favorably with the prices charged in other cities throughout the state?

There is always two sides to a proposition, therefore the Sentinel suggests further information be handed in for publication by parties interested, be they either producers or consumers of the product mentioned.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR JOHN MYERS THIS AFTERNOON

At The Residence With Rev W. W. Hurd Officiating

Funeral services will be held this afternoon for Mr. John Myers at his late residence on State Street at 2 o'clock, with Rev. W. W. Hurd pastor of M. E. Church officiating.

Mr. Myers has resided here for the past fifteen years to which place he came from Ironton where he lived from his birth, August 3, 1853.

During a term of years he has been more or less an invalid but until comparatively a recent date he was able to attend to his usual duties

He is survived by his wife to whom he was united in marriage November 1, 1917 and whose maiden name was Miss Nellie Coldwell. There were no children, but several more distant relatives live in Charlevoix and Ironton.

3 MEN CROSS ICE IN SAFETY

Reach St. James After A Long Adventurous Trip

Mr. Harl C. Schneider, William Gibson, and James Stone, who failed to arrive at St. James Sunday, with repairs for the crippled mail plane, at the time expected were located Monday night at Garden Island by members of the St. James Coast guard station safe and sound.

The three members of the party left cross village Sunday forenoon with their equipment for the plane but soon after the start encountered mountains of ice and impassible cracks obstructing their route, such as made for frequent long detours. At night time, after traveling upward of fifty miles on the ice, they were many miles from their destination and were forced to spend the night at Skillagalee lighthouse. Monday they landed safely at Garden Island, where they were located by coast guardsmen who were searching for the missing men.

It is reported that the men encountered many difficulties and had several dangerous experiences in their trip and that the horse used for hauling the load of equipment broke thru the ice several times between Cross village and Garden Island.

There was considerable speculation relative to the safety of the men from the time they were due and friends generally were relieved when they received the report that the men were safe after undertaking this hazardous trip.

Engaged in Ice Business

Mr. D. J. Eckinger is engaged in the ice business this week and operating on a large scale with a force of workmen. In this work he has contracted to fill the Booth Fisheries Company, J. J. Hallett, Belvedere Club, The Inn and Charlevoix Club, all heavy users of the congealed product. The ice of course will be taken from lake Charlevoix the same as in past years.

The Lady Maccabees will hold a card party next Tuesday evening at the I. O. O. F. Hall with the time set for 7:00 o'clock sharp.

"Detour Ahead!"—See the home talent play next Tuesday evening at the M. E. Church.

C.H.S. QUINT BEATS HARBOR

Plays East Jordan Tomorrow; Tournament Next Week

The local high school basketball organization journeyed last week into Emmet County and defeated the leading team there, namely; Harbor Springs, which holds two victories over Petoskey.

The final score was 23 to 18. "Big Bud" Potter showed the way to the other Red and White boys by scoring 8 points, but every man who played scored at least once. The local boys also won the preliminary game.

Tomorrow evening the Charlevoix team goes to East Jordan for the next game of the regular season. This game is important in deciding second place in the Top of Michigan Class C Conference. Boyne City which is undefeated in conference competition, is now in second place, with East Jordan in third. An East Jordan victory would reverse this standing.

The District Tournaments in this entire state will be played next week on Tuesday, Friday and Saturday, March 2, 3, 4. The meeting place for this district will be at Boyne City. Five Class C teams and seven Class B teams are expected to compete.

In Charlevoix, in Class C, will be forced to defeat at least two of the following teams in order to win first place: Boyne City, East Jordan, Harbor Springs, and Mancelona in Class B there will be Pellston, Mackinaw City, Alba, Boyne Falls, Ellsworth, Central Lake, and Bellaire.

Polar Bear Games

The Polar Bears have scheduled another home and home series with the Harbor Springs Merrymen. The last game each won a game apiece during the present season. Next Monday they play at Harbor, and Wednesday they play on the local floor.

"FARMERS' NIGHT" MEETING OF ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE

Supper Hour Is Set For 7:00 At I. O. O. F. Hall

Supper hour for the "Farmer's Night" meeting of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce has been changed from 6:30 to 7:00 p. m. to permit the rural residents plenty of time to get into town after the day's chores.

It is earnestly hoped that there will be a large attendance of farmers and business men and their wives and sweethearts. This is going to be a very interesting meeting, with a form of entertainment unusual at Association meetings. R. C. Mellencamp, county agricultural agent, is cooperating to make the affair a success and the chief speaker of the evening will be C. L. Nash of the economics department of Michigan State College. His subject, however, will not, as we understand, be an agricultural one.

The supper and meeting will be held at the Odd Fellow hall and the supper charge will be a nominal amount. If you are lucky, you may take home a present and someone is sure to get the grand prize. Remember the date—Wednesday evening, March 1st.

LAST PHASES OF DEPRESSION

A number of students of economics recently have pointed out the fact that the closing of every depression we have been accompanied by demands for inflation. Recovery from the depression, they add, has come, in each instance, after the government and the people had taken a firm stand for sound money and had defeated inflation.

If growing demand for inflation marks the final stages of depression then we have undoubtedly arrived at that time in our present era of difficulty. Inflation is one of the much discussed topics of the hour and bids fair to be one of the big issues of the next administration.

Already there are around a half hundred bills in Congress providing for some form of inflation. Some of these contemplate cutting down the gold content of the dollar, others the free and unlimited coinage of silver and still others inflation by speeding up the printing presses in turning out of currency.

If history is to repeat itself, therefore, we will pull out of this depression only after all schemes for monetary inflation have been defeated. Whether this can be brought about remains to be seen. Enthusiastic inflationists some time ago expressed the belief that some kind of inflation would be written into law by the "old" Congress. But there is little chance of this for the reason that President Hoover would veto any such measure.

It is then up to the incoming administration. Just what it will do remains to be seen. Both parties in their platforms last year declared for sound money, and there is no reason as yet to believe that the incoming President is not in line with the majority of his party on the subject. But his cabinet appointments and his first message to the new Congress which is to be called into special session, will be awaited with interest.

As to the necessity for defeating inflationary movements if we are to get out of the depression there can be little doubt. Controlled inflation, if inflation can be controlled, would be of little avail. We already have enough money in the country for commercial purposes but some method must be devised for its release into circulation. Controlled inflation would not help. It has not helped in Great Britain where it was predicted that abandoning of the gold standard would raise prices and help industry. And uncontrolled inflation means ruin—ruin first to the creditors and then to those in debt. The example of Germany along this line ought to be eloquent and convincing proof of this fact.

Mr. Francis H. Sisson, president of the American Bankers Association, recently summed up the situation when in part he said:

"I believe that the government at Washington has largely within its grasp the possibilities of making business confidence a plain, everyday practical working reality. A program of real economy in government expenditures and a sound plan of taxation revision to produce adequate revenues to balance the budget and yet relieve productive economic activity from its repressive weight would be a mighty power for restoring confidence."

FRENCH TOURIST INDUSTRY SLACKENS

One of the principal industries of France which has suffered a decided slump during the past year has been the tourist trade. Less than a million alien visitors went into France during the year 1932, according to official reports, and the number was nearly 600,000 less than the year before. The biggest drop of tourists to France was from Great Britain, which nation sent about 350,000 fewer visitors across the channel in 1932 than in 1931.

No doubt one of the principal reasons for the falling off of the British tourists was the "buy British" campaign which has been waged relentlessly all over the tight little island for about two years. The British people are not only asked to buy British-made goods, but are being told to do their traveling inside the British Empire and so keep their money at home. This campaign, coupled with the tightness of money due to hard times has brought about a great falling off in the number of British going to France.

But this is only part of the story. Americans going to France last year numbered 143,000, a decline of 82,000. There has been a steady decline in the number of American tourists going to Europe ever since the stock market debacle of 1929. The "Buy American" campaign is just now getting well under way, and the chances are that there will be an even greater decline in the number of American tourists going to Europe during the present year.

European governments, especially Great Britain and France, seem to have assumed the attitude that there is no room for argument on the debt question, that Uncle Sam will have to cancel and there is nothing he can do about it. Well, the American tourist trade is one thing to be taken into consideration. Already there is talk around Washington to the effect that a prohibitive fee should be charged by our government for passports to defaulting nations. It is easy to see where France might lose more than the annual debt installments by cancellation.

STRIKE AT THE DEPRESSION

From where does your bread and butter come? From your own work.

From where does your work come? From the need for your services by some other individual or company.

We have all been complaining about business being bad because our labor or products are not in sufficient demand. The chances are that those or us who complain loudest, have done the most to create unemployment.

There are millions of Americans who have money to spend—and they aren't spending it. They are waiting for prosperity to come back, for an "act of God" to drop dollars in their laps for a good fairy to shower them with gold, for a "cure-all" law to be passed.

Those things won't happen. Prosperity will return in proportion as our initiative, courage and determination revive.

Millions of our homes need improvement. Millions of heating plants should be overhauled, millions of pieces of household equipment can be replaced, millions of buildings should be repainted and repaired. Improvements of this nature can be made at a lower cost now than at any time in decades.

Those spending money would get more for their investment than in many years. The laboring man gets a job. The storekeeper sells his wares and orders more. Factories begin to operate and orders go in for raw materials, transportation revives and the business circle is complete.

Visualize the result that would follow the doing of needed and necessary work by millions of people who could afford it in 10,000 towns and cities in this country.

THE MANDATE OF JAPAN

The threatened withdrawal from the League of Nations by Japan will serve to explode another World War fable, if it comes to pass. It will be remembered that at the close of the war, and under the Versailles treaty, the allied nations divided the various territorial possessions won from Germany by a series of mandates. The allies were still committed to the idea that they had waged the war solely for the high and mighty purpose of saving the world for democracy. So often did they repeat this slogan that they may finally have come to believe it themselves.

At any rate, having waged the war so "unselfishly" they did not regard it as fitting that they should gobble up this territory under the time-honored Jacksonian slogan that "to the victor belong the spoils." So the system of mandates, through the League of Nations, was cooked up. By this system the nations receiving German territory did not get it in fee simple, so to speak, but took the territory as a mandate to be governed solely in the "interest of humanity" —not for "selfish profit." Generous impulses around Versailles got so thick that even Uncle Sam was offered a mandate—one for Armenia, doubtless on the theory that it was full of potential trouble and barren of profitable exploitation. Fortunately the United States Senate was too wise to fall into the trap and a lot of trouble was avoided.

Japan got a mandate from the League to rule some of the German islands in the Pacific. But now it develops that if Japan leaves the League she may refuse to give up the mandate on these islands. Evidently the Japs possessed a sense of humor during the Versailles deliberations of mandates, and have not yet lost it.

But if Japan withdraws from the League and refuses to return these mandated islands to the League, then what will happen? Will the league insist that the islands be returned, or will it ignore the whole matter and still further lower its prestige in world affairs? The answer is easy. The League will do whatever Great Britain and France want to do.

REDUCE WASTE AND SUFFERING

The American people customarily burn up about $500,000,000 worth of property each year. About 10,000 human lives are included. This is a tragic burden on every community. Each fire adds to the toll in lost jobs, lost business opportunities, human sorrow and suffering.

In depressed times, when jobs are at a premium and taxation at a maximum, and when the nation sorely needs every business, we still burn up about $500,000,000 worth of property annually. During the first ten months of 1932, fire loss was approximately $5,000,000 greater than in 1931, a year in which the waste was practically the same as in the preceding three or four years.

If fire waste works a great hardship in normal times, what is its effect in an era of depression? There can be no question but that the destruction of homes, factories and places of business is not only an obstacle in the way of recovery, but an abetter of more hard times. The indirect cost of fire is always the most important. A factory burns—men are thrown out of work, hardship, distress and poverty result.

Fire prevention is both an obligation and a duty that the citizen owes to himself, to his community and to the nation. Nearly every fire is caused by carelessness—because someone neglected to give the little time and the little money that would have been necessary to eliminate a hazard. Do your bit in the cause of fire prevention and save human suffering.

TRAILS WE CROSS

A TEMPLE OF JUSTICE OF YESTERYEAR

Once upon a time the official jurisdiction of this old court house in Winchester, Virginia reached into far Western wilds, the central city of which is now called Chicago. There is no record within its walls how near that any sheriff had the hardihood to venture that far on official business.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Frank P. Litschert

Although the public naturally knows little about it, there can be no doubt that the preliminary negotiations for the readjustment of allied war debts to the United States are being put under way. Whether a satisfactory agreement can be reached, one which will be approved by Congress, remains to be seen. We are now only in the preliminary stages of the negotiations and doubtless a great many stories will be heard on the subject in the next few weeks, a great many of which will not prove to be founded on fact.

The preliminary "feeling out" process got off to a bad start owing to a blunt statement of Mr. Chamberlain, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, to the effect that there was nothing to barter about. He took the unusual stand that cancellation would be as much to the advantage of the creditor as of the debtor. This might be true so far as other nations are concerned but the American people will have to be shown. When Mr. Smith owes Mr. Brown a hundred dollars and tries to convince Brown that it is as much to his advantage as it is to Smith's to cancel the debt, there is apt to be some difficulty.

Mr. Chamberlain intimated strongly that it was therefore up to Uncle Sam to make the sacrifice, as Great Britain had nothing to offer in the way of a promise to return to the gold standard or any trade agreements for debt cancellation. The effect of the British statesman's remarks on public opinion in the United States was such that it nullified a great deal of the good feeling toward Great Britain which had been engendered by the British debt payment last December. The British, evidently, were too quick to see the mistake of Mr. Chamberlain's psychology. As a result, the old method of covering up a mistake was resorted to, and we were told that Mr. Chamberlain's remarks were not to be taken seriously in the United States, that they were for home consumption only, calculated to appease the sovereign voters of Great Britain. But at the same time the lid was clamped on explosive utterances in Great Britain and since then, so far as debt criticism is concerned, John Bull has maintained an attitude of golden silence. The statement made by Mr. Snowden, it will be noted, was a great deal more conciliatory than that of Mr. Chamberlain.

Next came the report that Great Britain was going to offer us a "lump sum" payment representing about ten per cent of the present size of the debt. This ninety per cent reduction would about equal the reduction given Germany in the matter of reparations and would about equal the reduction given Germany in the matter of reparations and would help to bring about Uncle Sam's saying for the war an idea which is decidedly popular in Europe. Later it was said that this lump sum might be raised to seventeen per cent of the total but that it would represent a payment from all the allies, not from Great Britain alone.

Evidently these reports are something in the nature of diplomatic "feelers." The real poker playing will come later. The new administration, following the custom of previous debt conferences, has expressed the determination of dealing with each debtor separately. The debtor nations of course want to deal with us en bloc so that they can put the entire odium for any possible failure to adjust the European debt question solely on the shoulders of Uncle Sam.

A lot of water will go over the wheel before the debt question is finally adjusted. All sorts of proposals will be made and withdrawn, and the stock markets of the world probably will go up and down, with the various reports coming out of the conference, either naturally or otherwise. But it is not to be forgotten that after all Congress has the last word, and it is not going to be an easy one, unless there is a decided change of sentiment on Capitol Hill during the coming months.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare

Under present business conditions, no news is apt to be good news. While business is showing no particular improvement, the decline has apparently been interrupted and a measure of stability reached. It is hoped that political moves during the next few months will have a helpful effect on business in the future.

Last summer the country underwent a time of financial liquidation with strengthening of our financial structure. This was followed by a similar period of commodity liquidation, which seems now coming to an end. The next step will doubtless be further commercial liquidation and readjustment to put many of our industries on a basis to show earnings in normal times.

Since 1929 there has been a decline in foreign markets for American agricultural products but last year the decline showed a tendency to slacken. It is believed that once the problems of disturbed monetary systems and trade barriers are partially settled, the trend will be reversed and larger quantities of our farm products will reach foreign lands.

Domestic demand for products is naturally awaiting industrial recovery. Even a slight change for the better in business, generally, should cause marked improvement in farm markets.

Potential bank credit is the equivalent of the money existing in the country. At the moment, this credit supply is unusually large. Member banks of the Federal Reserve have $600,000,000 of excess reserves, and it is stated that these banks could expand their credits by $9,000,000,000 without borrowing from the Federal Treasury. Interest rates on money are at unprecedented low levels.

Latest reports on major industries show:

Motion Picture — A new alignment of the motion picture industry is forecast, with Rockefeller interests a large factor. The industry's principal difficulty is in real estate carrying charges on theaters built during boom years.

Textiles—Future has hopeful appearance, with cloth demand steady.

Oil—Refiners breaking even despite low gasoline prices.

Cigarettes—December showed gain in consumption, as compared with decline in most other months of 1932.

Meat Packing—Outlook is good for moderate profit during coming fiscal year.

Automobile—Sales continue to improve, with January well over a year ago. It is interesting to note that price reductions have resulted from improved efficiency, and not by reductions in dealer margins or in quality.

In an effort to check rapidly diminishing passenger revenues, the railroads of the country are planning various classes of rate reductions designed to bring back lost business. February 1, western roads made marked passenger fare cut. The seasonal decline in freight car loadings is showing a tendency to moderate, as compared with the same period a year ago.

With an estimated $1,500,000,000 at stake in the form of mortgaged debt in nine states, midwest farmers are sticking resolutely to their campaign against foreclosure sales. In a growing number of instances, groups of farmers have prevented open auctions of properties and bought them in at extremely low figures. Various public officials are tending to aid in preventing foreclosures.

The exodus from the city to the farm—in direct opposition to the trend of a few years ago —has swelled the farm population to 32,000,000, close to the 1910 peak. Some farm communities object, as new school facilities and relief funds thus become necessary. However, a compensating factor is that a wider market for farms is provided.

A decidedly better feeling is noticeable in Australia, with government and private finances improved. Chinese industries are active, and a better year is forecast. Wholesale prices rising in Japan. Improvement in several industries is noticed in France, with the crop situation promising. Favorable factors in Norway are improved shipping, better crop returns an dfirmer prices.

The bridge Street sewer is nearly completed. This week will probably wind up the job.

W. W. Tracy, superintendent of the D. M. Ferry Co., growing department, having resigned, L. B. Coulter, well known here, of this department has supervision over all crop matters and his field is from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

W. W. Thayer, foreman of the Detroit hatchery, is here to set up and put in operation the new hatchery here. The jars and a few other appurtenances are here but Mr. Thayer is delayed in his work by the non-arrival of the pump and tanks. He expects, however, to have the plant ready for trout eggs from Northville within a week.

Nothing can be said about E. W. Coulter, the Republican candidate for president. He is an honest man, a man of good judgment, a clean man, a gentleman, and a man who cannot be lead or influenced for wrong by any man or set of men.

Considerable friction has existed on Clinton street over the recent order of the council—a protest of some strength having gone to the council. It was settled Friday evening in favor of the sewer by the school board voting to sign the petition.

Republican Village Caucus

The Republican village caucus last night was one of the largest political gatherings in the history of Charlevoix and it did its work well.

Lisle Shanahan presided and F. G. Hines was elected secretary.

Lisle Shanahan presided and F. G. Hines was elected secretary.

The contest for president was between E. W. Coulter and Dr. LeFevre. Mr. Coulter was re-nominated on the first ballot. W. H. McCartney was renominated for clerk by a good majority over L. E. Benton. The contest for treasurer was between F. E. Wood, and A. L. Fitch, Mr. Wood winning out. For trustees, Ralph Washburn, R. W. Miller and O. E. Wilbur were selected, the naming of O. E. Wilbur being a renomination. J. L. Price was nominated for assessor.

The ticket commends itself to the people. It is in every way a good one. Mr. Coulter has served on the council and has made an enviable record as a public servant. No citizen ever served the public more faithfully or with greater ability.

Mr. McCartney "is always there, as we frequently hear said in reference to the clerk's office. He has given his entire time to his public duties, and the council endorsed him heartily.

Mr. Wood is too well known to require any comment here. "Frank" was not a candidate until yesterday morning, and the avidity with which the people selected him was a decided compliment.

Jay Price, for assessor, is all right. It is the general opinion that Mr. Price has been a mos-el treasurer in all respects and this nomination, which by common consent is understood to go with supervisor, is practically a promotion. Jay deserves it.

For trustees we have excellent men. Capt. Wilbur has served for two years on the council, and no man ever performed a duty better. R. W. Miller is a pioneer and a leading business man. His ability and public spirit are too well known to require any words of commendation here. It is an excellent selection. Ralph Washburn will go to the council a representative of the "young man" element. He is in every respect worthy of the honor and will make a good trustee.

N. R. Washburn, H. J. McMillen and A. H. Buttars were named as village committee for ensuing year.

The ladies of the Congregational church desire to express their appreciation of the kindness of the proprietors of the skating rink, in granting them the entire use of the rink for their social last Friday evening and also their kindness in arranging everything for their convenience. We desire to add that we enjoyed the gift very much and are sure that the large company that filled the rink did. We are glad to know that the rink is being conducted in so creditable a manner and that the young people of the town have a place that they can go to for recreation where the society they meet is good and where their parents can accompany them and enjoy the free air uncontaminated by injurious language.

Steamer for Pine Lake—We learn from reliable authority that Capt. L. Newson, late of the steamer Queen of the Lakes backed by three other parties, has gone to Green Bay for the purpose of purchasing a side wheel steamer, to be put on Pine Lake, after next October, during navigation. Just think of it!

Retrospective and Prospective

The dullest part of the year for us of the north is now holding us in its monotonous embrace. Our only occupation and recreation is to exist, and help others to do likewise. We look back upon the last season of navigation and mark the upbuilding and improvement of our village during that period which in extent exceeds that of any two preceding seasons. Where we one year ago saw stumps and brush piles, we now behold inhabited dwellings and prosperous places of business. We see the improvement at the mouth of our river and the belfry of our beautiful school building meets our eye as we glance southward from our office window. The increase of general trade in our village indicates a great increase in the population of the country surrounding us. Increase of population represents increase of capital and labor and we behold with satisfaction what these agencies have done in clearing up the forests and improving the soil. What we one year ago considered far in the future years is already almost within the limits of our county —the railroad. The retrospect is satisfactory and encouraging. The prospect promises no less. With the opening of navigation we hope to see the improvement renewed with vigor and present indications tend in that direction. The trade of the village is to be increased by one or more general stores. The river improvement will be renewed with greater strength and promise of success than ever before, and will cast its exhilarating influence over every other enterprise in the region without doubt our Academy Building will be completed before July 1st. The lumbering business of Charlevoix will be renewed with activity, and undoubtedly increased greatly As stated in another column, a fast side-wheel steamer will make regular trips on Pine Lake and after October next, during navigation, will place us practically nearer railroad communication than was Traverse City last winter. Our annual stride the summer of 1883 will over-reach any former one; and January 1884 will find us nearer the locomotive, an accessible harbor and a village corporation than most of our readers now imagine. Thus, in the melting away of midwinter, we look into the past with a satisfied ambition and peer into the future with eagerness and good cheer. Next winter will find the railroad only a comfortable half days drive from our village.

YOUR FIGHT UNFAIR, TEXAS UNIT OF U. S. CHAMBER DECLARES

"WHEREAS the Perrytex Chamber of Commerce is a member of, and has contributed to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, and

"WHEREAS it has come to our attention that said chamber of commerce of the United States of America has taken a decided stand against pending veterans legislation, including pension to Spanish-American War Veterans, Disability Compensation to World War Veterans for service connected injuries; Disability Allowance to World War veterans for service connected period not established, Retired Emergency Officers of the World war, insurance benefits, bought and paid for out of the World war veterans' pay; administration expense for veterans of all wars; hospitalization of the veterans of all wars; and said organization has gone to the extent of passing a resolution at its Twentieth Annual meeting at San Francisco, California, May 20, 1932, memorializing Congress to abolish the Disability Allowance Law as passed and amended July 3, 1926, whereby disabled veterans suffering from a disability to the extent of 25 per cent long have the benefit of small disability allowance payments, even though they are unable to trace their disability to service connection.

"WHEREAS, we feel that such disability allowance law as now provided is fair and proper, especially to the thousands of ex-service men who are unable to prove disabilities incurred by service in the World War, making such proof from hospital records, many of which do not and could not reflect the true conditions at the health of the exservice man at date of his discharge.

"WHEREAS, we feel that such stand is improper, unfair and contrary to the better judgment of the rank and file of the American people. That such propaganda as put out by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, and the so-called Economy League, is taking an unfair and arbitrary advantage of the men and women who rendered service to their country in the crisis of the war, many and the most of whom served for one dollar per day, out of which was paid their insurance, Liberty Bond payments and other deductible items. We feel that the stand taken by the United States Chamber of Commerce and the so-called Economy League is un-American, and unreservedly disapprove of such a step, which, in its final analysis is propaganda put out by capital, a large portion of which was created and made during the period of the World war, and as a direct result of the war. That to encourage and approve of such an attitude, as sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, and the so-called Economy League is unpatriotic and a repudiation of the principles for which our boys fought and died, and a sacrilegious shirking of a responsibility and duty, which is justly owing to ex-service men and women and their dependents.

"THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, by the Perrytex Chamber of Commerce, that we are heartily in accord with such disability allowance and other necessary legislation and to our sincere desire to see it continued in its present status. The community, as does every county or community, has many of the character stock in our midst or just and proper aims for partial government aid. In the absence of such it would involve itself into a real tax of state, county and community solution for financial assistance. We further feel that under the law as at present stands that the burden is properly placed and it can be by orderly manner by such party and proper application for the Federal government, and

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Perrytex Chamber of Commerce go on record that legislation and financial aid to Veterans of the World War and their dependents is a duty of the federal government and should it fail or refuse to benefit from such duty and render such service and aid that we realize the best done and responsibilities of such aid will become that of the state county and municipalities of the United States. It is our opinion that the only class who will receive any material financial benefits by the elimination or abolition of federal aid as it now stands will be those who pay the higher amount of income tax, and it is at their the higher income tax payers institution, capital and propaganda that a public sentiment is trying to be created towards the elimination of Federal aid and thereby they think lighter income tax payers' proposal to this manner and that it will mean the wrecking of the lives of thousands of disabled veterans and their dependents, and the financial ruin of many state and county tax, to relieve the burden of some tax payers because the various states and communities will be forced to care for their disabled, using the A. "What was it that raised Washington to such heights of glory? It was his great talents, constantly guided and guarded by religion." —Henry Cabot Lodge.

Next Sunday is "Mary Brewster Sunday" at the Congregational Church. The Mary Brewster Circle is the youngest circle in point of organization. Most of its members are from our younger married people. We welcome them as our guests next Sunday morning.

The sermon next Sunday morning will be a fitting sequel to the one of last week. We tried to set forth the strife and hostility toward the Kingdom of God as Jesus understood the Kingdom. Next Sunday we will deal with the method of restoration and establishment of the Kingdom. The subject for the sermon will be, "The Redemptive Processes—The Cross."

We have no rented pews or reserved ones. If you wish to choose your seats we urge you to come early.

A very happy and pleasing occasion took place at the Congregational Manse last Thursday night. Mr. Lysle C. Braman, one of our popular local young men, and Edith Ray Cooper, a young lady from Petoskey but well known locally, were united in marriage. Several young people from Petoskey and Charlevoix were present. Frances Smith of Petoskey acted as bride's maid and Lloyd Brown of Charlevoix acted as best man. The young couple will make their home in Charlevoix as the groom is employed here.

Funeral services were held for Master Glenn Rose Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Rose, Monday afternoon. The service was held in the home of the grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Curtis on Petoskey avenue. The little lad was laid to rest in the city vault. Rev. G. R. Parker officiated.

Snow Disappearing

Bright warm sunshine prevailed throughout the day Saturday and as a result snow rapidly disappeared. Sunday the weather was moderate, so much so that a moderate rain storm prevailed in the afternoon and early evening that reduced the snow depth materially. Monday was some cooler, turning to cold in the early evening, continuing through the night with a good stiff breeze, with a like condition Tuesday. During the night the wind subsided and the temperature Wednesday was several degrees higher and with a light breeze from the south, snow began to disappear during the early morning hours.

CITIZENS MILITARY TRAINING CAMPS TO OPEN IN JULY

Blanks May Be Procured From Dr. F. H. Wilkinson

Dates for the 1933 Citizens' Military Training Camps were announced Saturday by Phelps Newberry, civilian aide to the Secretary of War.

The infantry training Camp at Fort Brady will open July 5th and continue until August 3rd; Camp Custer, August 1st to August 30th. Camp Custer will be commanded by Colonel Russell C. Langdon, the Commanding Officer at Fort Wayne. Fort Brady will be under the command of Major M. Crawford. The training camp for cavalry will be at Fort Sheridan, Illinois from August 1st to August 30th. The artillery training camp will be at Camp LeCoy, Wisconsin from July 7th to August 25th.

"Popularity of these training camps with both parents and boys," said Mr. Newberry, in announcing the dates, "is attested to by the increasing number of applications received each year. Last year, we received over 200 per cent of our quota. The first of these camps were held in 1921 with a total of 10,000 young men trained . . . ered of 20 days. A total of 38,000 enrolled in the camp for 1932. The quota for Michigan in 1933 is 1,600."

"These camps are open to young men from 17 to 21 but most of the attendants are between the ages of 17 and 21. Enrollment of young men from high schools and colleges is particularly encouraged as it is the desire to have the type of material qualified to become officers. In this connection there is no obligation whatever on the part of those attending Citizens' Military Training Camps to see service in the Army either now or at a later date. Less than 2 per cent of those attending these training camps ever enter the service. However should it ever be necessary in time of war for these young men to join the service along with the other youth of the Nation, they would be better prepared to meet the conditions that they would encounter."

"Although these camps are designated as military training camps; they are really good citizenship training camps. The great at stress is placed on correct living, correct eating, physical training and the principals of our government."

"Wholesome entertainment properly supervised by officers from the regular Army and the Reserve is provided. Social functions under the supervision of women of standing are also conducted. These camps furnish young men the most wholesome introduction to the outside world that can be given them."

"The accommodations of the camps are always filled long before the opening dates of the camps, and young men who desire to attend should apply at once as each year many thousands of applications have to be refused, because of the inability to enroll more applications than the quota provides for. Those who apply too late are obliged to wait another year."

Any boy who desires to enroll should get his application in at once as the allotment will soon be filled. So many boys unable to find work for the summer are anxious to go. In Dickinson County, in the Upper Peninsula, the allotment was forty and already fifty-four applications have been filed. Marquette County, with an allotment of twenty, has received thirty-five applications.

Application blanks may be procured from Dr. F. H. Wilkinson, Charlevoix, Mich.

INTEREST BEING AROUSED IN SHEEP CLUB WORK

Ironton Sheep Club Has Already Been Organized

It is hoped that our 4-H Club program can be enlarged this year to include Sheep Clubs. This project fits in very nicely with the farm program being carried on on many Charlevoix County farms. A very small beginning was made last year but a number of two or three members in each project, we hope to have at least 20 or 25 for the year 1933. The expense will be very small and the development of a good flock takes place rather rapidly.

Start March First

The projects start the 1st of March with a bred ewe. A club member from that date will accurately keep record of all feed and other costs that enter into the sheep business. The boy will soon have an ewe and lamb or lambs, with which to work for the next five or six months. The sheep and lamb will then be shown at the Summer Achievement Day which will be of great help to the boys and girls in the care of their flocks. Within the next two or three weeks it is hoped that we will have three or four clubs organized. Any boy or girl in the county between the ages of 10 and 20 is cordially invited to join this project. Wherever possible we would like to have several clubs scattered throughout the county so that the club members will not need to go outside of their own community. If you have a boy or girl who is interested, kindly notify your County agent who will be glad to see you and endeavor to interest other boys and girls in the same community. Remember the club should be organized by the 1st of March.

HOME UTILIZATION OF WOOL BECOMING MORE POPULAR

How To Wash And Card Wool Important Factor

Many inquiries have come to my attention during the last month or so regardign washing and carding of wool. With wool at such a cheap price many farm women are endeavoring to use their wool to good advantage in making quilts and blankets.

The washing of wool must be done properly if best results are to be obtained. Especially, when it comes to temperature one must be very careful. If you are interested in having some specific directions for the washing of wool, your county agent has a supply on hand, that he will be very glad to send you upon request.

An effort is being made to secure a representative from the Michigan State College to meet with several clubs of farm women throughout the county to demonstrate the carding of wool. Within the next two weeks it is hoped that some definite announcement may be made.

"Lions That Work"

Lions that work in motion pictures have their doubles, even as human actors. But it would take a person familiar with lions, as well as a keen observer, to note when such doubling takes place in "Central Park," a First National picture featuring Joan Blondell and Wallace Ford which is coming to the Palace Theater Saturday and Sunday.

Jackie, a Selig Zoo lion, does most of the skillful work. But Jackie is so tame he just could not act ferocious for a scene in which a lion leaps into a dance floor at the Central Park Casino and scatters the dancers in every direction. So Tamar, a "bad" actor was substituted for this particular scene.

Tamar could only be trusted to rush from one cage to another, but he does it in such a ferocious manner that a real panic occurred during the taking of the scene.

"Central Park" is a dramatic thriller with its background the famous New York playground. It is spiced with delightful romance and many humorous incidents. There is a

CROWD ENJOYS BENEFIT DANCE

Over 250 Present; Cash, Food And Clothing Donated

The Benefit Dance held in the gymnasium last Friday evening under the auspices of the American Legion proved to be an occasion long to be remembered by those present.

The admission was in the form of cash donations, food, clothing, or what have you, all of which was turned over to the Legion Welfare Committee for distribution to the needy.

The crowd began to arrive early in the evening before the musicians made their appearance and continued to arrive until around midnight. The music was good and plenty of it and those musicians who donated their services deserve a great deal of praise for they certainly did their share to make the evening an enjoyable one.

The floor was crowded for every dance with the dancers ranging in age from seven to seventy, and all enjoyed it immensely, both by those who participated and those who came to watch.

When the "gate receipts" were checked over it was found that some had raided the cellar, others the attic, and still others found odd pieces of silver. And one bundle of clothing gave evidence that someone raided the laundry. There were fifty some quarts of fruit, ... and vegetables, other numerous packages containing potatoes, onions, cabbages, etc. Even soap, both in salt pork, bacon, and to someone goes the prize for thoughtfulness for they donated a safety razor. About $5.00 in cash was also received. It took a truck the next morning to haul the proction with the Red Cross is a great aid in doing this efficiently. And he also appreciates the condition in which the clothing donated was in it being clean, pressed and in good condition.

All in all it was an occasion long to be remembered and it was a severe blow to old man depression as well as a benefit to many in straightened circumstances from the beyond a question of a doubt that even in times like these there are ways possible to get a great deal of enjoyment out of life.

Plans are under way to have another Benefit Dance some time in March, and it has been suggested that in the event they meet with the approval of the public that they be made a regular monthly affair, with all organizations and societies of the city cooperating by respecting the date on which it is held and supporting it by their attendance. The proceeds if this proceedure was followed would go a long way to relieve the welfare work in this community.

Members of the American Legion are especially grateful and appreciative to all who by their cooperation made this event a success and consider it a great encouragement in their efforts to be of service to the community.

Breaks Arm

Mrs. Elma H. Cook had the misfortune to break her arm when she slipped and fell on the ice as she was walking to church last Sunday morning. She also received some minor injuries, the most serious of which was in her back. Mrs. Cook is recovering nicely from the several injuries sustained.

In view of the fact that rumors are being circulated to the effect that I have made promises of city positions to certain individuals based on my election as mayor of Charlevoix I am taking this method of notifying electors that I have made no promises or pledges either as to positions or preferment during this campaign, and neither will I make any promise of like tenor.

If nominated and elected it will be my consistent endeavor to cooperate with the several members of the common council wholly in the interest of the public and best welfare of Charlevoix.

Should my reputation as a pioneer resident and business representative of Charlevoix merit your support I will be pleased and will appreciate your effort in my behalf, but as hereinstated I have not, neither will I offer any position as a reward for support.

Any position in Charlevoix, if I am elected mayor will be filled by persons efficient and capable to perform the duties appertaining to each particular position, with the main object in mind of conducting a business administration, economical and in the full interest of Charlevoix, its taxpayers and the public generally.

MASONS TAKE 7TH GAME FROM ODD FELLOWS

Monday night Masonic cribbage players were playing a stronger game than their Odd Fellow opponents and finished the 7th game of the series with a lead of 430 points, thereby reducing the total lead held by the Odd Fellows from 1034 to 604, the latter amount being the present total lead held by the Odd Fellows, with three games to be played before the series of 10 games are finished.

A special schedule is set for Monday night, March 6 at which time the Masonic temple will be the scene for the play with all attendants having high pitch, one set of players auxious to reduce the I. O. O. F. lead, the other to increase the same to the highest possible, therefore the interest three games will take on the appearance of a "battle royal" for supremacy.

Thirteen tables were engaged in the contest, held at I.O.O.F. hall Monday night. In this game of the series the F. & A. M. players scored a total of 22715, and I.O.O.F. 22280 points. The Masons also won high point individual score, this being captured by H. R. Fowler, with 964 points. High point honors for the ladies' prizes were to Arthur L. Fitch with 929 points to his credit.

RADIO LISTENERS ATTENTION CALLED TO RARE TREAT

Radio listeners should tune in March 4 "Inaugural Night" at 7:30 E.S.T. on station WOR.

The Bamburger Little Symphony, Philip James, conductor, will present two songs with orchestra by Annabel Comfort.

Margaret Speaks, niece of Oley Speaks, noted composer and herself one of the foremost stars of the air today will sing two songs of Miss Comfort.

Miss Comfort has recently completed the orchestrations, and needs no introduction to Charlevoix. She is having many radio performances at this time.

Philip James, conductor of this orchestra, is the winner of the $5,000 prize contest that NBC offered last year.

Captain and Mrs. M. J. Bonner, visitors at Grand Rapids and Detroit for some days returned home Tuesday. The captain also attended the recent Democratic convention as a delegate, held at Grand Rapids Friday.

"DETOUR AHEAD" DRAWS PRAISE OF LARGE CROWD

Epworth Leaguers Program Is Very Satisfactory

The entertainment put on at the M. E. Church Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Epworth League went off in a very satisfactory manner and the large audience, which overflowed from the main floor to the balcony, seemed greatly pleased with every number.

A song by the congregation opened the program, as Miss Marian Tyler was unable to appear to render her flute solo.

The home-made play "Via Air" was next on the program. Alma Hartwell and Dorothy Pederson had a front stage conversation about a radio and in between speeches a program was broadcasted from the side room over Ty Kirby's broadcasting apparatus which was installed for the occasion. The speakers were Iva Howe, Marian Tuby, Ike Bossler and Harold Newman. Mr. Kirby handled the technical detail of the broadcasting in person.

The high school girls' trio Bernice Meggison, Charlotte Hicken and Grace Belding, accompanied by Miss Atkinson at the piano, rendered some greatly appreciated vocal musical numbers. A piano solo by Ernestine Chew was greatly applauded.

"Detour Ahead" was a story about a farm with a mortgage on it. The owner, played by Clarence Arnold, was in danger of losing it to a scheming neighbor, played by Harold Newman. The heart interest was furnished when the owner's granddaughter, played by Virginia Nickerson, and the County Farm Agent, played by Bill Brown, found they were in love. Together they find a way to save the farm. Virginia Taylor as the good hearted neighbor woman, and Howard Davenport and Dorothy Staley, as the rich man and his antique hunting wife, rounded out the cast. The latter three all did their bit toward helping forestall the schemes of the hard hearted neighbor.

Mothers and Daughters

Banquet will be held Tuesday, March 28 at the Congregational Church.

Mr. Oscar Stroud, Miss Frances Marshall and William M. Brown went to Grand Rapids last week where they will combine business with pleasure for a few days. Mr. Brown returns Saturday.

USE CAUTION VOTERS URGED

To Avoid The Throwing Out Of Their Ballots at Election

At every election, either primary or general, a percentage of ballots, due to errors on the part of electors, are rejected by the election board, some for one reason, some for another reason, therefore it behooves the voter to mark his ballot carefully and with precision as to each candidate for whom he desires to support by his vote.

On your ballot you will find a [ ] placed before the name of each candidate to be voted for. When you have made up your mind as to the candidate you want to vote for, mark an X in the square thus [x] in front of your candidates name, not above, not below, nor on either side. That is all that is required aside from folding your ballot before you leave the voting booth.

Avoid making marks other than the crosses mentioned. A distinguishing mark will invalidate your ballot and the same will be rejected by the board.

UNION SERVICE OF PROTESTANT WOMEN HERE FRIDAY

World's Day of Prayer Will Be Observed For First Time

For the first time in this city the annual World's Day of Prayer will be observed here, from 2:30 to 4:00 o'clock Friday, in the Baptist Church.

This is promoted jointly by the Council of Women for Home Missions, the Federation of Women's Boards of Foreign Missions of North America, and the National Council of Federated Church Women.

This event has come to have wide observance throughout the country and is to be observed in all our neighboring cities

This year the Call to Prayer was written by Mrs. Roth Muskrat Bronson, an American Indian, while the program of worship was arranged by a Chinese woman, in old China, Mrs. C. Chen.

Although the full details of the program are not quite ready at this notice, Mrs. W. H Rauch will give the Call to Worship, and Mrs. G. R. Parker an address on Prayer, Its Need Today. Mrs. W. W. Hurd will conduct the program service. Other features may be added. All church women from every church are invited, especially, of course, the various Missionary Societies, or their equivalent, in the various churches. The program, as received from headquarters, is very beautiful, and worshipful.

Mrs. Clinton Cooper Injured

Mrs. Clinton Cooper was severely burned about her face and hands Wednesday, by gas escaping from the furnace when she opened the door to place some garbage on the fire. Flames ignited the receptacle held by Mrs. Cooper, thus causing the injury to her hands, while the rush of gas escaping from the furnace door resulted in the face burns, making for most painful injuries.

Attorney B. H. Halstead of Petoskey, well known in the state and specially prominent in Northern Michigan received the nomination as one of the two members on the state board of agriculture, by delegates at the Democratic State Convention held in Grand Rapids last Friday.

A semi-public, semi-secret, meeting of citizens met at the council room Tuesday night, apparently for the purpose of discussing the financial program relative to the school situation, past, present and future—mostly future.

Those sponsoring the meeting requested members of the Board of Education to be present, and gave the impression both previous to and at the meeting that the avowed purpose of the session was to give the Board any assistance necessary, moral, mental or otherwise.

In some respects the meeting far exceeded expectations, particularly as to the matter of attendance, as many came unannounced and uninvited and perchance unwanted. Some general hostility, with the knowledge of being "in the know," others entered with a spirit of being interested in civic matters pertaining to their pocketbook, while still others came with some trepidation, wondering if they were entering "where angels feared to tread."

The meeting came to order and the purpose stated as hereinbefore mentioned. Following which a varied discussion was the order of the day. Numerous questions were asked and various problems propounded to the Board of Education, all of which the representative members present proceeded to answer and in some instances followed the solicitations with still more difficult problems that were unanswerable at the present time.

If any citizen or citizens came to the meeting laboring under the impression that the mental capacity of the various members of the school board were unduly taxed in the comprehension of the problems confronting them, they may have been somewhat chagrined at the ready and thorough knowledge, in relative of considerable study and thought, displayed by the members thereof.

However, and although, numerous questions were asked and answered, solutions and suggestions offered and condemned, and some few hours thus consumed, the crux of the entire problem, the SOURCE of finance, the practicality of their receipt, and in what amounts, still remained in the background unsolved.

This was obvious and to be expected, as the answers to these questions entirely depend on the future economic and legislative developments. And evidence presented showed conclusively that the Board of Education was thoroughly conversant with all phases of the situation, had given it much study and thought, and were ready and capable of handling the situation insofar as it is within their power.

The line of arguments presented by some of the citizens gave the impression that one important factor was being overlooked and that is, under present conditions, it is imperative that we fit our educational program to our finances and not our finances to our educational program, as has been the custom in past years. Times have changed and we must change with the times.

The meeting brought forth varied comments from those present, both favorable and otherwise. The complimentary remarks being with regard to the clear and informative resume given by members of the Board of Education in the questions asked. And the most common criticism was an expression of regret that the meeting was not held in the gymnasium, the public invited, and those who are paying for our educational program given an opportunity to learn something of where their money goes and the problems confronting those in charge of our public schools.

There was also some expression of the opinion that the citizens received more "enlightenment" and understanding from the session than did the members of the Board of Education who were already thoroughly conversant with all phases of the situation.

And in connection it might be suggested that those who would support and assist our Board of Education under the present trying conditions can accomplish much more by doing so in their daily private conversations than by "public service" in public.

PARTICIPATED IN SILVER MEDAL CONTEST LAST SUNDAY

Betty Dean, Clair Tillotson, Celia McCartney, Betty Ross and Lee Smith at the Congregational Church.

Lillian Meggison, Lynn Kerr Marie Van Zant, Olive Wyers and Edna Richardson at the Church of God.

Medals were awarded to Celia McCartney for her recitation of "Sail On" by Joaquin Miller and to Olive Wyers for her recitation entitled "Blasted."

These contests are conducted by the Women's Christian Temperance Union with the objective of interesting the participants and their audience in the temperance cause.

Added Convenience

C.H.S. BEATS EAST JORDAN

Locals Draw Bye In 1st Round Of The Tournament

The local school basketball quintet finished the regular conference schedule in second place by defeating East Jordan 15 to 11 last Friday on the East Jordan floor.

They have defeated every team in the conference except Boyne City, to whom they lost. Their record shows five games won and two lost in the Class C conference in stepping outside of their own class, the locals split once in four Class B games.

In the drawing for places in the tournament to be held at Boyne City the week, Boyne City and East Jordan were the only teams to draw games in the first round. Charlevoix drew a bye in the upper bracket and will play the winner of the Boyne City — East Jordan game on Friday evening at 8:00. In the lower bracket Alden, Bay and Barber Springs both drew byes. They will play same time Friday. The winners of the two Friday games will meet for the Class C championship on Saturday evening, 8:30. The first and second place winners in each class will go in the Regional Tournament at Petoskey next week.

Polar Bears Beat Harbor

The Polar Bears defeated the Harbor Springs Merchants on the local floor last evening. Mc-Maull played a fine game. He is now playing better than when he was a high school star, and much superior to what he did when footing around with the Polar Bears. The score was 31 to 20.

The clubs were tuned out in the overtime period in a score of 18 to 16 after they were tied at all at the end of regular play.

Tournament Here

The local management backed by some of the business men of the community, will sponsor an independent tournament to be held here on Mar. 14, 15, 16. Invitations have been sent out to 32 teams but just all can be expected to accept.

Small gate admissions will be given to the individual members of the visiting teams, and silver medals to the second place team members. Amateur rules will be followed. More information on this subject later.

ANOTHER CARD PARTY HELD AT ST. MARY'S HALL

Once each week for some time past whist, pedro and other forms of entertainment have drawn good crowds to St. Mary's School hall. Another of these functions was held Tuesday night, which in attendance interest and enjoyment, according to reports, takes first place in the memory of regular attendants at previous functions put on by the social organization.

The committee in charge was composed of Ben Yettaw, Bob Madill and Lon Allard who carried on faithfully and most satisfactory in their official capacity.

Mrs. Henry Boehn a guest from Petoskey was awarded honors at whist, and Mrs. Earl Miller held a like position at pedro.

Fifteen tables were engaged during the evening, and several other forms of entertainment were greatly enjoyed by the whist and pedro players.

HOOVER ON DEBT PROPAGANDA

President Hoover rendered a real service to the nation during his address to the National Republican Club at New York on February 13 when he called attention to the amount of misleading European propaganda looking toward cancellation of the so-called war debts. In part the President said.

"I trust the American people will not be misled or influenced by the ceaseless stream of foreign propaganda that cancellation of war debts would give this international relief or remedy. That is not true."

Proof of the debtors' capacity to pay, the President said, is attested by the fact "that in most cases the payments to us amount to less than one-third of the military expenditures of each country."

In exchange for any proposed American sacrifices the President said Europe not only should open up markets to American imports, but also should give assurances of cooperation "that will positively result in monetary stability and restoration of world prosperity."

A great many propagandists, most of them European, but unfortunately some of them American, in their efforts to bring about cancellation, have sought to create the impression in the United States that practically all of the world's troubles are due to the European debt owed to Uncle Sam. President Hoover pointed out how the lack of international confidence, and the cheapening of the money standards in many nations had started an economic warfare which is in a big part responsible for the continuation of the depression. Cancelling the debts would not remedy the situation and President Hoover did well to make this fact so clear.

DON'T CUT NAVAL INSURANCE

The proposed five per cent cut in federal expenditures, according to Secretary of the Navy Adams, if applied to his department, would reduce the number of American warships in commission to 66 per cent of the active British vessels and considerably less than the Japanese. The cut would make it necessary, the Secretar, added, to keep the entire fleet on the Pacific coast, slow down the work on naval construction and modernization, thus throwing 4,500 men out of employment, stop naval enlistments, reduce the personnel of the navy by 9,000 men, and reduce the Marine Corps by 1,150 men.

At the present time, Mr. Adams declared, the navy is 20,000 short of the number of men necessary to properly man our ships in commission. The further cut of more than 10,000 men, he added, would seriously cripple our national defense, seriously injure the morale of the unemployed.

The American people are certainly in favor of governmental economy, but they are not in favor of it at the expense of national safety. Now when everyone is being advised to cut down personal expenditures until the family budget is balanced, nobody is suggesting that this be done by curtailing the family life insurance. Yet economizing at the expense of the United States navy is accomplishing it through cutting down the amount of insurance which the nation carries. There are many places where waste could be eliminated without touching this important arm of our national defense.

The world is now in a serious state of unrest. Surface conditions are much worse than they were early in 1914 when the world seemed at peace and there was no universal depression and despair. And yet the great war descended upon the earth later in that year. Surely the prospects of peace are no more assured than they were in February, 1914. The Orient is a flame and Uncle Sam is in real danger of trouble there, if he does not watch his step. Certainly it is not a good time to weaken the navy further. On the other hand, it should be built up and strengthened in those troublesome times.

THEY CALL US CIVILIZED

In a booklet published recently by an insurance company entitled, "They Call Us Civilized" which is an invaluable addition to the literature of safety. It shows vividly, through tables and descriptions and illustrations, the horror and the magnitude of our annual toll of automobile fatalities and injuries.

It is true that just as automobile deaths decreased as compared with 1931—but there is little cause for pride in that. Gasoline consumption and automobile registrations likewise decreased. And—here is the main thing—in 1932 deaths and non-fatal injuries actually increased per accident. In other words, there were fewer accidents, due largely to the fact that there was less driving; but each accident, when it occurred, was more likely to have serious consequences than in any other year.

The most difficult phase of the entire problem is public lethargy and indifference. As the booklet points out, the world shuddered at the sinking of the Titanic, costing 1,517 lives, the San Francisco earthquake, costing 500 lives, and the wreck of the Shenandoah, costing 14 lives. Yet last year, the automobile, driven by the reckless, the incompetent and the unthinking, cost 29,000 lives, and in 15 years it has cost 325,000. Automobile deaths are a greater disaster than any of those which have been blazoned in headlines throughout the world—and they cause hardly a ripple.

NOTHING FOR CHARITY

When our government was considering resumption of specie payment after the Civil War Sherman is credited with saying that the only way to resume is to resume. That applies now. Everywhere the prevalent thought seems to be, What can I do to cut down? Whom can I fire? and so on.

Commenting on the statement that "investment and employment are cheaper than charity," F. V. Keesling, attorney of San Francisco, says: "Unless there be continuous investment and employment, there will be nothing for charity.

"There is an unfortunate attitude among the people. For instance, at the golf links the other day one of the members decried the fact that there were several men employed in planting trees. When he was told that it seemed to be a highly desirable thing under the conditions, so long as the club could afford it, a clearer vision gave him a proper reaction."

You can't pile up public debts, increase taxes, discourage industry and create unemployment, without destroying the capital and earning power of the nation.

This destructive process has been going on for three years. No good fairy is coming out of the clouds and create employment. The people are going to have to create it for themselves. The good fairy will be their own desire to do something.

Every day that those of us who can afford to, delay in furnishing employment for needed and necessary work, our national wealth is reduced, taxes are increased for charitable enterprises and the day draws nearer when there will be nothing left to give for charity, and government itself will face bankruptcy through inability to collect taxes. There are millions of individuals and industries whose premises are sadly in need of repairs. The time to do that work is now. Delay is expensive "economizing."

FARMERS AND THE TARIFF

Congressmen and senators, especially those from the agricultural states of the Middle West are being deluged with letters from their constituents, urging that something be done for the relief of agriculture, and many of them adding that there will be open revolt and chaos if things are permitted to go as they are much longer. Some of the letters are said to carry an air of pathetic hopelessness while others are filled with suggestions of what ought to be done. Most frequent among the suggestions are those relating to inflation. Many of these farmers and real estate men seem to believe that if the government would only print more money, things would come around all right again.

A number of these letters were printed recently in a metropolitan newspaper and the same edition of this paper carried a statement from William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, to the effect that there are now more than 12,000,000 jobless workers in the United States.

It is passing strange that so few people seem disposed to link together the plight of the farmers and these twelve million idle workmen. The farmers are in their present condition, because of the prices of the commodities which they raise and have to sell are so low, they can no longer pay taxes and interest on mortgages. The price of these commodities is so low because there is no market for them. The reason there is no market for them is that there are twelve million American workers who have no jobs. If work could be found for them they would soon eat up the farm surplus. The price of farm commodities would then go up and the farmers be able to buy the products of the workmen with the result that the vicious circle of deflation be reversed and become a circle of constructive effort.

Despite all these facts there are a great many statesmen who profess to believe that what we ought to do is to lower our tariff barriers still further and so add to the flood of cheap foreign goods which is even now in a great part responsible for the millions of idle workmen in America. That there is such a flood can be gathered by any person who will take the trouble to visit some of our stores and take a brief inventory of the goods on the counter. The foreign invasion has been made possible by the fact that a depreciation of currency in many nations has enabled their manufacturers to surmount our tariff walls which were built when most of the nations of the world still had sound money.

The internationalists who revel in this flood of foreign goods say that we must take it so that the foreign worker can buy the products of our farmer. The answer to this argument is not hard to find. The foreign workers are paid so poorly and in such cheap currency that they would be able to buy little of our agricultural products if so inclined. It is difficult to imagine an Oriental worker who lives on a handful of rice and a cup of tea per day, buying any American ham or porterhouse steak, even if he had the money which he hasn't and never will have if he works twelve hours a day year in and year out.

RISING SUN TAVERN
FREDERICKSBURG, VIRGINIA

Gathering place of patriots as the Revolutionary winds began to blow, and where, before the broad open fireplace Washington, Monroe, Jefferson, Patrick Henry and Doctor Mercer made plans for the freedom of the Colonies. Here Washington stopped on his victorious return after Yorktown. Storied markers to vanishing years are these old taverns which no modern day traveller should miss.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Frederick H. Prince, president of the Chicago Stockyards Company, returning from a trip to Europe some time ago, had some harsh things to say about the part played in our government meddling by professors. The Chicago Tribune, of February 1, quotes Mr. Prince as declaring that these professors of the government-meddling type form one of the "chief curses of the country."

"You have only to think back the last ten years upon the difficulties into which we have been drawn because of the influence of the professors to realize that the sooner we get away from this influence the better we will be."

The professors to whom Mr. Prince referred are not, of course, the earnest and patient men and women who are quietly devoting their lives to science and to the proper training of the young men and women of America. They are the professorial gentlemen who seem to have a yen for running the government or at least telling Congress and the President how it ought to be run. These men, intensely impractical in themselves, (many of them would get lost if turned loose unattended in the business district of a city as large as Kansas City or Seattle) become imbued with the idea that they could not only run the United States better than any other class of citizens could run it, but steer the course of the world better than Providence can do it—some of them in fact even denying the existence of Providence.

Occupying professorial positions endowed by American business men they propose methods for destroying American business, and for placing the welfare of Europe over that of their own country—a system of biting the hand which feeds one, which could hardly be improved on for its efficiency and ingratitude.

That this statement is not exaggerated is evidenced by the fact that most of this political professorial group has during the past decade advocated every internationalist doctrine calculated to benefit Europe at the expense of America and every socialistic scheme calculated to undermine American business stability and individual initiative and enterprise. Free trade, the league of Nations government ownership—these are sufficient to prove the case.

To go back to Mr. Prince. Asked about war debts he said:

"Never mind about Europe. If we take care of our own back yard she'll take care of hers. We aren't so poor and we aren't so miserable, but it's time we were engaging in a big measure of common sense. Chuck out the professors; declare a moratorium on farm and general business debts, and forget about Europe. That will lead us somewhere."

Here is some excellent advice for the professorial group which Mr. Prince criticises so severely. If they will adopt it, the benefit will accrue not only to America at large but to the so-called higher educational institutions of the United States as well.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare

According to R. G. Dun & Company, stability in many branches of industry is more sustained than at any time in the past three years. A survey by Standard Statistics indicates that, while trade outlook for the immediate future is irregular, a number of major lines are strengthening. It is interesting to note that food products are making a much better showing than industry in general.

The belief is widely expressed that a clear-cut legislative program at Washington would probably do more to initiate trade activity than any other single development at the moment. The present congress has created the impression in business that almost anything may happen, thus forcing industry to be extremely cautious.

The Boston News Bureau observes: "All of the factors now at work may make for further shrinkage in purchasing power but it brings into closer readjustment the various factors that will ultimately make for stability. And the more rapidly investment confidence is strengthened the sooner will the processes of financial revival be stimulated."

The index of farm prices reached a new low on January 15th, standing at that time at 51 per cent of the pre-war average. (A year ago the index was at 63 per cent.) Eggs took a drop larger than the seasonal conditions warrant. On the other hand, small advances have been recently registered by apples, horses, wheat and cotton.

Continued severe weather, coupled with damage to crops from other factors, plus a favorable export situation, gives rise to the hope of substantial improvement in wheat prices later on. Qualified observers also foresee the possibility that within the next year domestic consumption of wheat may balance production, thus eliminating the need for foreign markets to absorb our surplus.

It is held that the farm mortgage situation, while bad, gives no cause for the hysteria that has been sweeping over the country in recent weeks. Foreclosures for the present year, if they increase in the same proportion as in 1932, will total about 267,000. This is only 1.3 per cent of the number of farms in the country. Another favorable sign is that insurance companies and banks have been following an extremely liberal policy in the matter of farm mortgages, only foreclosing when no other course is possible. The present acuteness of the situation is, also, mainly sectional.

Great interest is expressed in Roosevelt's plan for providing jobs. It is to be a huge experiment, and is expected to give employment to 200,000 men in the Tennessee Valley alone. It includes: Reforestation, creation of flood control basins, reclamation of fertile bottom land for agricultural use, etc. Mr. Roosevelt believes that the entire project will be self-sustaining, and can be financed through bonds.

Recent reports on major industries show:

Rayon—Leading viscose producers reported booked solid for March. January shipments at new high for that month for several concerns.

Steel—Production increased. Manufacturers feel turn for better has taken place.

Oil—Ability of California oil industry to stave off price collapse this year, in spite of internal strain and breakdown in Midcontinent markets, the source of much comment.

Farm Equipment — Manufacturers realize that special inducements to farmers must be made to maintain present trade position.

Budget increases of about 10 per cent have been registered by Congress. The greatest increase of $130,000,000 was for executive office and independent establishments. Other increases were registered by the departments of agriculture, interior, postoffice, war, commerce, with decreases by the treasury, state, justice and labor. Is this the way economy pledges to the taxpayer are to be kept?

Mexican crop outlook better than last year, as is retail trade. Outlook slightly improved in India. Bolivian and Cuban situations unfavorable. In most countries abroad there has been little change in any direction of late.

With reference to the publication of police court news, the editor of this paper believes that some of that class of matter should be printed and some should not. Parents of wayward boys have enough to bear in the knowledge of these occasions without having their heartstrings pulled by "enterprising" newspapers. We are prompted to say these things by the arrest last Saturday of three boys on the charge of breaking into resort cottages. The least said about it in the newspapers the better. There is trouble enough in the world without making more.

Our friend "Guff" Von Platten of Boyne City, who is wintering in California, is evidently having plenty of fun. The following we take from the Los Angeles Times: "For several days Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Clarkson, of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Von Platten, of Boyne, Mich., have been the guests at Hotel Metrople, of E. E. Chapman, owner of the launch Rical. Yesterday morning the party was fishing having good sport with the albicore, when a huge whale with an unsatisfied curiosity, went within a few yards of the launch. Mrs. Clerkson was in the art of pulling in a large albicore, and the whale took a great interest in the performance, much to the detriment of the woman's nerves, circling about the boat and showing his huge bulk on all sides of them, but the fish was landed, notwithstanding. Members of the party declare that at times forty feet or more of the monster's back protruded from the water like the upturned hull of a vessel, while his head and tail were both invisible. The incident is one to be remembered by the party and also their good luck as they got five albicore and six sharks.

"Tip" Miller and John Gallop expect to make a trip to Beaver Island on Saturday next, starting from Charlevoix on the ice.

The relatives of the late Captain Walter Clifford have applied to the War Department to have the remains of the Captain forwarded here for interment. The Captain considered this his home and it is a cruel system, if army regulations require the body of an officer to be buried on the frontier, except relatives take it upon themselves to claim it. The Captain was a brave, noble hearted soldier, who, by his ability, courage and integrity, rose grade by grade from the bearer of a musket to the rank of Captain, in the United States Army. As an Indian fighter, or diplomat he had not a superior and he was often assigned to difficult matters of Indian diplomacy in recognition of his tact and judgment. He was selected by his commanding officer to receive the surrender of Sitting Bull, and was a prominent figure in the celebrated White River expedition against hostile Sioux in which he suffered greatly from exposure. In 1872 when Indian affairs were under control of the War Department, Captain Clifford was appointed Indian Agent at Fort Bertlndl, in which capacity he served for three years. We have personally seen and read reports of his commanding officers to the War Department compliment ing Captain Clifford for the able administration of Indian officers under him. In the death of this jovial, generous and courteous soldier, the U. S. Army has lost one of its best officers, and the salute which the carbines of the 7th Infantry gave over his grave on the far off plains of Wyoming, find a response at Charlevoix in the many heartfelt expressions of mourning from scores of men, women and little children, whom the Captain delighted to call his friends, and who always joyfully greeted him when his erect figure dropped in among them once a year. He gave the best years of his life to his country's service, and the government should, now that his sword is sheathed forever, forward his remains to his home.

We learn the following from a gentleman who came from Northport on Thursday: Albin Stover, of this township, with his wife and three children, left Norwood on Sunday morning to cross the Bay to Northport in a one-horse conveyance, when about half way across in attempting to cross a crack in the ice, the horse broke thru and was drowned. They were then forced to walk the balance of the way, assisting the children, who were undoubtedly benumbed and facing the keen wind of that extremely cold morning. By the aid of Providence they walked that seven miles with the weather 24 degrees below zero, but when they reached Northport Mr. Stover's hands were so badly frozen that it is thought amputation will be necessary. Mrs. Stover's feet were frozen and the children were more or less injured. The horse belonged to Hugh Miller of this township.

Never in the history of the Sentinel have subscriptions rolled in upon us as they have for the past two weeks. This indicates its growing popularity and increasing strength. The Sentinel has done much for this locality and as expressed by a gentleman of note who visited us last summer, "is the county's right arm." What we have done for the county is attested by many people who have been attracted hither by what some have been pleased to term our "wind." Well, wind is a good thing. It drives the staunch agents of commerce through the rolling billows; it is a strong motive power in the absence of steam and water; and in newspaperdom it is a powerful organ in the absence of brains. ANDREW JACKSON AND THE FRENCH DEBT PROBLEM

With the approach of the conference between British and American representatives on the question of the foreign debt, in the time of President Jackson and how "Old Hickory" handled it Necatiene to say, Jackson's methods were effective and France fitally paid In an interesting article in the current issue of the National Republic on "Jackson and the French Debt," Mr. Gen. M. Bulkley, Jr., states, in part:

"It seems to have been pretty generally overlooked in public discussion of the French world war debt to the United States that 100 years ago the Treasury Department was struggling valiantly to collect an obligation of not quite $8,000,000 from France for depredations on American commerce during the Napoleonic conquests from 1800 to 1811. A correspondence that nearly brought on war.

"After twenty-five years of haggling, the recall of ministers and finally a threat from President Andrew Jackson that he would wage war, the French paid the debt.

"The claims arose when American commerce was ground between the upper and nether millstones of Franco-British aggression. The claims were not pressed for some years because France was in a titanic struggle with England and other countries, culminating disastrously for h at Waterloo. Further, this country soon engaged in war with England, since English aggressions on American commerce had far exceeded those of the French. The effect of flogging England in 1812 served to aid the French greatly, but was not sufficient to bring final victory to French arms, and the desire to engage the British was made independently of the French treaty considerations.

"The French held back the payment of $5,000,000, according to the American interpretation, because of the services rendered by the gallant LaFayette and the American fathers to come to her aid as expected, but the reason given for failure to pay was that Andrew Jackson's opinions of France as expressed in such one or his eight annual messages, and in one special message to Congress, were offensive to that proud nation.

"This attempt to link up matters more or less foreign to each other and separated by many years is paralleled in the recent attempt to make the repayment of war debts dependent upon reparations from Germany and security pledges from the allies to France, whereas when President Wilson agreed to make the loans, no such things were written in to the contract.

"The first step toward repudiation of a debt is a discussion of the merits of it and the lapse of time. While national debts made by one administration are held to be binding on its successors, the changes which politics bring about breed the evils of procrastination and indifference, which are at first pitied, then endured, then embraced. Thus as the French debt of $5,000,000 assumed a venerable age and those who were responsible for it were out of office and many in their graves, the importance of paying steadily diminished. King Louis Phillipe promised Minister Edward Livingston that the French would pay, but for a long time the French Chamber of Deputies would not make the necessary appropriation or go through those formalities which are the very essence of any settlement. Jackson's messages, starting in 1829, had settled the French officialdom, and they took their time."

HOOVER ON DEBT PROPAGANDA

President Hoover rendered a real service to the nation during his address to the National Republican Club at New York on February 15 when he called attention to the amount of misleading European propaganda looking toward cancellation of the so-called war debts. In part the President said.

"I trust the American people will not be misled or influenced by the ceaseless stream of foreign propaganda that cancellation of war debts would give this international relief or remedy. That is not true."

Proof of the debtors' capacity to pay, the President said, is attested by the fact "that in most cases the payments to us amount to less than one-third of the military expenditures of each country."

In exchange for any proposed American sacrifices the President said Europe not only should open up markets to American imports, but also should give assurances of cooperation "that will positively result in monetary stability and restoration of world prosperity."

A great many propagandists, most of them European, but unfortunately some of them American, in their efforts to bring about cancellation, have sought to create the impression in the United States that practically all of the world's troubles are due to the European debt owed to Uncle Sam. President Hoover pointed out how the lack of international confidence, and the cheapening of the money standards in many nations had started an economic warfare which is in a big part responsible for the continuation of the depression. Cancelling the debts would not remedy the situation and President Hoover did well to make this fact so clear.

DON'T CUT NAVAL INSURANCE

The proposed five per cent cut in federal expenditures, according to Secretary of the Navy Adams, if applied to his department, would reduce the number of American warships in commission to 66 per cent of the active British vessels and considerably less than the Japanese. The cut would make it necessary, the Secretary added, to keep the entire fleet on the Pacific coast, slow down the work on naval construction and modernization, thus throwing 4,500 men out of employment, stop navy enlistments, reduce the personnel of the navy by 9,000 men, and reduce the Marine Corps by 1,150 men.

At the present time, Mr. Adams declared, the navy is 20,000 short of the number of men necessary to properly man our ships in commission. The further cut of more than 10,000 men, he added, would seriously cripple our national defense, seriously injure the morale of the unemployed.

The American people are certainly in favor of governmental economy, but they are not in favor of it at the expense of national safety. Now when everyone is being advised to cut down personal expenditures until the family budget is balanced, nobody is suggesting that this be done by curtailing the family life insurance. Yet economizing at the expense of the United States navy is accomplishing it through cutting down the amount of insurance which the nation carries. There are many places where waste could be eliminated without touching this important arm of our national defense.

The world is now in a serious state of unrest. Surface conditions are much worse than they were early in 1914 when the world seemed at peace and there was no universal depression and despair. And yet the great war descended upon the earth later in that year. Surely the prospects of peace are no more assured than they were in February, 1914. The Orient is aflame and Uncle Sam is in real danger of trouble there, if he does not watch his step. Certainly it is not a good time to weaken the navy further. On the other hand, it should be built up and strengthened in these troublesome times.

THEY CALL US CIVILIZED

In a booklet published recently by an insurance company entitled, "They Call Us Civilized" which is an invaluable addition to the literature of safety. It shows vividly, through tables and descriptions and illustrations, the horror and the magnitude of our annual toll of automobile fatalities and injuries.

It is true that last year automobile deaths decreased as compared with 1931—but there is little cause for pride in that. Gasoline consumption and automobile registrations likewise decreased. And—here is the main thing—in 1932 deaths and non-fatal injuries actually increased per accident. In other words, there were fewer accidents, due largely to the fact that there was less driving; but each accident, when it occurred, was more likely to have serious consequences than in any other year.

The most difficult phase of the entire problem is public lethargy and indifference. As the booklet points out, the world shuddered at the sinking of the Titanic, costing 1,517 lives, the San Francisco earthquake, costing 500 lives, and the wreck of the Shenandoah, costing 14 lives. Yet last year, the automobile, driven by the reckless, the incompetent and the unthinking, cost 29,000 lives, and in 15 years it has cost 325,000. Automobile deaths are a greater disaster than any of those which have been blazoned in headlines throughout the world—and they cause hardly a ripple.

NOTHING FOR CHARITY

When our government was considering resumption of specie payment after the Civil War Sherman is credited with saying that the only way to resume is to resume. That applies now. Everywhere the prevalent thought seems to be, What can I do to cut down? Whom can I fire? and so on.

Commenting on the statement that "investment and employment are cheaper than charity," F. V. Keesling, attorney of San Francisco, says: "Unless there be continuous investment and employment, there will be nothing for charity.

"There is an unfortunate attitude among the people. For instance, at the golf links the other day one of the members decried the fact that there were several men employed in planting trees. When he was told that it seemed to be a highly desirable thing under the conditions, so long as the club could afford it, a clearer vision gave him a proper reaction."

You can't pile up public debts, increase taxes, discourage industry and create unemployment, without destroying the capital and earning power of the nation.

This destructive process has been going on for three years. No good fairy is coming out of the clouds and create employment. The people are going to have to create it for themselves. The good fairy will be their own desire to do something.

Every day that those of us who can afford to, delay in furnishing employment for needed and necessary work, our national wealth is reduced, taxes are increased for charitable enterprises and the day draws nearer when there will be nothing left to give for charity, and government itself will face bankruptcy through inability to collect taxes. There are millions of individuals and industries whose premises are sadly in need of repairs. The time to do that work is now. Delay is expensive "economizing."

FARMERS AND THE TARIFF

Congressmen and senators, especially those from the agricultural states of the Middle West are being deluged with letters from their constituents, urging that something be done for the relief of agriculture, and many of them adding that there will be open revolt and chaos if things are permitted to go as they are much longer. Some of the letters are said to carry an air of pathetic hopelessness while others are filled with suggestions of what ought to be done. Most frequent among the suggestions are those relating to inflation. Many of these farmers and real estate men seem to believe that if the government would only print more money, things would come around all right again.

A number of these letters were printed recently in a metropolitan newspaper and the same edition of this paper carried a statement from William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, to the effect that there are now more than 12,000,000 jobless workers in the United States.

It is passing strange that so few people seem disposed to link together the plight of the farmers and these twelve million idle workmen. The farmers are in their present condition, because of the prices of the commodities which they raise and have to sell are so low, they can no longer pay taxes and interest on mortgages. The price of these commodities is so low because there is no market for them. The reason there is no market for them is that there are twelve million American workers who have no jobs. If work could be found for them they would soon eat up the farm surplus. The price of farm commodities would then go up and the farmers be able to buy the products of the workmen with the result that the vicious circle of deflation be reversed and become a circle of constructive effort.

Despite all these facts there are a great many statesmen who profess to believe that what we ought to do is to lower our tariff barriers still further and so add to the flood of cheap foreign goods which is even now in a great part responsible for the millions of idle workmen in America. That there is such a flood can be gathered by any person who will take the trouble to visit some of our stores and take a brief inventory of the goods on the counter. The foreign invasion has been made possible by the fact that a depreciation of currency in many nations has enabled their manufacturers to surmount our tariff walls which were built when most of the nations of the world still had sound money.

The internationalists who revel in this flood of foreign goods say that we must take it so that the foreign worker can buy the products of our farmer. The answer to this argument is not hard to find. The foreign workers are paid so poorly and in such cheap currency that they would be able to buy little of our agricultural products if so inclined. It is difficult to imagine an Oriental worker who lives on a handful of rice and a cup of tea per day, buying any American ham or porterhouse steak, even if he had the money which he hasn't and never will have if he works twelve hours a day year in and year out.

Shrines In American History

By JAMES W. BROOKS

RISING SUN TAVERN
Fredericksburg, Virginia

Gathering place of patriots as the Revolutionary winds began to blow, and where, before the broad open fireplace Washington, Monroe, Jefferson, Patrick Henry and Doctor Mercer made plans for the freedom of the Colonies. Here Washington stopped on his victorious return after Yorktown. Storied mortars to vanishing years are these old taverns which no modern day traveler should miss.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Frederick H. Prince, president of the Chicago Stockyards Company, returning from a trip to Europe some time ago, had some harsh things to say about the part played in our government meddling by professors. The Chicago Tribune, of February 1, quotes Mr. Prince as declaring that these professors of the government-meddling type form one of the "chief curses of the country."

"You have only to think back the last ten years upon the difficulties into which we have been drawn because of the influence of the professors to realize that the sooner we get away from this influence the better we will be."

The professors to whom Mr. Prince referred are not, of course, the earnest and patient men and women who are quietly devoting their lives to science and to the proper training of the young men and women of America. They are the professorial gentlemen who seem to have a yen for running the government or at least telling Congress and the President how it ought to be run. These men, intensely impractical in themselves, (many of them would get lost if turned loose unattended in the business district of a city as large as Kansas City or Seattle) become imbued with the idea that they could not only run the United States better than any other class of citizens could run it, but steer the course of the world better than Providence can do it—some of them in fact even denying the existence of Providence.

Occupying professorial positions endowed by American business men they propose methods for destroying American business, and for placing the welfare of Europe over that of their own country—a system of biting the hand which feeds one, which could hardly be improved on for its efficiency and ingratitude.

That this statement is not exaggerated is evidenced by the fact that most of this political professorial group has during the past decade advocated every internationalist doctrine calculated to benefit Europe at the expense of America and every socialistic scheme calculated to undermine American business stability and individual initiative and enterprise. Free trade, the League of Nations, government ownership—these are sufficient to prove the case.

To go back to Mr. Prince. Asked about war debts he said:

"Never mind about Europe. If we take care of our own back yard she'll take care of hers. We aren't so poor and we aren't so unselfish, but that's time we were engaging in a big measure of common sense. Chuck out the professors; declare a moratorium on farm and general business debts, and forget about Europe. That will lead us somewhere."

Here is some excellent advice for the professorial group which Mr. Prince criticises so severely. If they will adopt it, the benefit will accrue not only to America at large but to the so-called higher educational institutions of the United States as well.

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare

According to R. G. Dun & Company, stability in many branches of industry is more sustained than at any time in the past three years. A survey by Standard Statistics indicates that, while trade outlook for the immediate future is irregular, a number of major lines are strengthening. It is interesting to note that food products are making a much better showing than industry in general.

The belief is widely expressed that a clear-cut legislative program at Washington would probably do more to initiate trade activity than any other single development at the moment. The present congress has created the impression in business that almost anything may happen, thus forcing industry to be extremely cautious.

The Boston News Bureau observes: "All of the factors now at work may make for further shrinkage in purchasing power but it brings into closer readjustment the various factors that will ultimately make for stability. And the more rapidly investment confidence is strengthened the sooner will the processes of financial revival be stimulated."

The index of farm prices reached a new low on January 15th, standing at that time at 51 per cent of the pre-war average. (A year ago the index was at 63 per cent.) Eggs took a drop larger than the seasonal conditions warrant. On the other hand, small advances have been recently registered by apples, horses, wheat and cotton.

Continued severe weather, coupled with damage to crops from other factors, plus a favorable export situation, gives rise to the hope of substantial improvement in wheat prices later on. Qualified observers also foresee the possibility that within the next year domestic consumption of wheat may balance production, thus eliminating the need for foreign markets to absorb our surplus.

It is held that the farm mortgage situation, while bad, gives no cause for the hysteria that has been sweeping over the country in recent weeks. Foreclosures for the present year, if they increase in the same proportion as in 1932, will total about 267,000. This is only 1.3 per cent of the number of farms in the country. Another favorable sign is that insurance companies and banks have been following an extremely liberal policy in the matter of farm mortgages, only foreclosing when no other course is possible. The present acuteness of the situation is, also, mainly sectional.

Great interest is expressed in Roosevelt's plan for providing jobs. It is to be a huge experiment, and is expected to give employment to 200,000 men in the Tennessee Valley alone. It includes: Reforestation, creation of flood control basins, reclamation of fertile bottom land for agricultural use, etc. Mr. Roosevelt believes that the entire project will be self-sustaining, and can be financed through bonds.

Recent reports on major industries show:

Rayon—Leading viscose producers reported book'd solid for March. January shipments at new high for that month for several concerns.

Steel—Production increased. Manufacturers feel turn for better has taken place.

Oil—Ability of California oil industry to stave off price collapse this year, in spite of internal strain and breakdown in Midcontinent markets, the source of much comment.

Farm Equipment — Manufacturers realize that special inducements to farmers must be made to maintain present trade position.

Budget increases of about 10 per cent have been registered by Congress. The greatest increase of $130,000,000 was for executive office and independent establishments. Other increases were registered by the departments of agriculture, interior, postoffice, war, commerce, with decreases by the treasury, state, justice and labor. Is this the way economy pledges to the taxpayer are to be kept?

Mexican crop outlook better than last year, as is retail trade. Outlook slightly improved in India. Bolivian and Cuban situations unfavorable. In most countries abroad there has been little change in any direction of late.

Another consignment of trout eggs is expected soon, and later it is expected whitefish eggs will be put in progress of hatching.

With reference to the publication of police court news, the editor of this paper believes that some of that class of matter should be printed and some should not. Parents of wayward boys have enough to bear in the knowledge of these occasions without having their heartstrings pulled by "enterprising" newspapers. We are prompted to say these things by the arrest last Saturday of three boys on the charge of breaking into resort cottages. The least said about it in the newspapers the better. There is trouble enough in the world without making more.

Our friend "Guff" Von Platten of Boyne City, who is wintering in California, is evidently having plenty of fun. The following we take from the Los Angeles Times: "For several days Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Clarkson, of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Von Platten, of Boyne, Mich., have been the guests at Hotel Metropie, of E. E. Chapman, owner of the launch Rial. Yesterday morning the party was fishing having good sport with the albicore, when a huge whale with an unsatisfied urinosity, went within a few yards of the launch. Mrs. Clarkson was in the art of pulling in a large albicore, and the whale took a great interest in her performance, much to the detriment of the woman's nerves, circling about the boat and showing his huge bulk on all sides of them, but the fish was landed, notwithstanding. Members of the party declare that the whale was a brave, noble diplomat he had not a superior and he was often assigned to difficult matters of Indian diplomacy in recognition of his tact and judgment. He was selected by his commanding officer to receive the surrender of Sitting Bull, and was a prominent figure in the celebrated White River expedition against hostile Sioux in which he suffered greatly from exposure. In 1872 when Indian affairs were under control of the War Department, Captain Clifford was appointed Indian Agent at Fort Berthold, in which capacity he served for three years. We have personally seen and read reports of his commanding officers to the War Department compliment-ing Captain Clifford for the able administration of Indian officers under him. In the death of this jovial, generous and courteous soldier, the U. S. Army has lost one of its best officers, and the salute which the carbines of the 7th Infantry gave over his grave on the far off plains of Wyoming, find a response at Charlevoix in the many heartfelt expressions of mourning from scores of men, women and little children, whom the Captain delighted to call his friends, and who always joyfully greeted him when his erect figure dropped in among them once a year. He gave the best years of his life to his country's service, and the government should, now that his sword is sheathed forever, forward his remains to his home.

The relatives of the late Captain Walter Clifford have applied to the War Department to have the remains of the Captain forwarded here for interment. The Captain considered this his home and it is a cruel system, if army regulations require the body of an officer to be buried on the frontier, except relatives take it upon themselves to claim it. The Captain was a brave, noble hearted soldier, who, by his ability, courage and integrity, rose grade by grade from the bearer of a musket to the rank of Captain, in the United States Army. We learn the following from a gentleman who came from Northport on Thursday: Albin Stover, of this township, with his wife and three children, left Norwood on Sunday morning to cross the Bay to Northport in a one-horse conveyance, when about half way across in attempting to cross a crack in the ice, the horse broke thru and was drowned. They were then forced to walk the balance of the way, assisting the children, who were undoubtedly benumbed and facing the keen wind of that extremely cold morning. By the aid of Providence they walked that seven miles with the weather 24 degrees below zero, but when they reached Northport Mr. Stover's hands were so badly frozen that it is thought amputation will be necessary. Mrs. Stover's feet were frozen and the children were more or less injured. The horse belonged to Hugh Miller of this township.

Never in the history of the Sentinel have subscriptions rolled in upon us as they have for the past two weeks. This indicates its growing popularity and increasing strength. The Sentinel has done much for this locality and as expressed by a gentleman of note who visited us last summer, "in the county's right arm." What we have done for the county is attested by many people who have been attracted hither by what some have been pleased to term our "wind." Well, wind is a good thing. It drives the staunch agents of commerce through the rolling billows; it is a strong motive power in the absence of steam and water; and in newspaperdom it is a powerful organ in the absence of brains. We shall continue to blow. Pass in your names.

Last Sunday thousands of boys, girls and adults enjoyed the new big 16-page comic section of The Chicago Herald and Examiner. It will be repeated again next Sunday and every Sunday thereafter in the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

ANDREW JACKSON AND THE FRENCH DEBT PROBLEM

With the approach of the conference between British and American representatives on the question of the foreign debt, in the time of President Jackson and how "Old Hickory" handled it. Needless to say, Jackson's methods were effective and France dearly paid. In an interesting article in the current issue of the National Republic on "Jackson and the French Debt," Mr. Geo. M. Bailey, Jr., writes, in part:

"It seems to have been greatly generally overlooked in public discussions of the French world war debt to the United States that 160 years ago the Treasury Department was struggling valiantly to collect an obligation of not quite $5,000,000 from France, for depredations on American commerce during the Napoleonic conquests from 1800 to 1815—a circumstance that nearly brought on war.

"After twenty-five years of haggling, the recall of ministers and finally a threat from President Andrew Jackson that he would wage war, the the French paid the debt.

"The claims arose when American commerce was ground between the upper and nether millstones of France-British aggression. The claims were not pressed for some years because France was in a death struggle with England and other countries, culminating disastrously for her at Waterloo. Further, this country was engaged in war with England since English aggressions on American commerce had far exceeded those of the French. The effect of fighting England in 1812 served to aid the French greatly, but was not sufficient to bring final victory to French arms, and the decision to engage Sir Beckah was made independently of the French treaty considerations.

"The French held back the payment of $5,000,000, according to the American interpretation, because of the services rendered by the gallant LaFayette and the American failure to come to her aid as expected, but the reason given for failure to pay was that Andrew Jackson's opinions of France as expressed in each one of his eight annual messages, and in one special message to Congress, were offensive to that proud nation.

"This attempt to link up matters more or less foreign to each other and separated by many years is paralleled in the recent attempt to make the repayment of war debts dependent upon reparations from Germany and security pledges from the allies to France, whereas when President Wilson agreed to make the loans, no such things were written into the contract.

"The first step toward repudiation of a debt is a discussion of the merits of it and the lapse of time. While national debts made by one administration are held to be binding on its successors, the changes which politics bring about breed the evils of procrastination and indifference, which are at first pitied, then endured, then embraced. Thus as the French debt of $5,000,000 assumed a venerable age and those who were responsible for it were out of office and many in their graves, the importance of paying steadily diminished. King Louis Phillipe promised Minister Edward Livingston that the French would pay, but for a long time the French Chamber of Deputies would not make the necessary appropriation or go through those formalities which are the very essence of any settlement. Jackson's messages, starting in 1829, had nettled the French officialdom, and they took their time."

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

TELEPHONE SAVES HOME From Heavy Damage By Fire

A large Michigan home recently was saved from extensive fire damage because aid could be summoned instantly . . . by telephone. Following is an excerpt from the newspaper account of the fire:

"Will Keep His Telephone"

"Mr. T——— said that he had expected to take out his telephone as an economy measure, but this experience has settled the policy of his household, on this question, for all time. Without the use of the telephone, his damage would have been much greater. He complimented the telephone service and the work of the firemen."

Saltonstall is acting in that capacity.
A large group of the Mary Brewster Circle were present last Sunday. There were 53 wives and husbands.
The girls of the S.S. made the boys take their dust last Sunday. They are but a few points apart therefore all must work hard.

We have been emphasizing for several Sundays how important the Kingdom of God was to Jesus. The passion of his life was to establish that Kingdom. Last Sunday we presented the interesting subject of process as used in establishing the Kingdom and showed how the Cross was one process. Next Sunday we will present a second process, The Church.

Beginning the week of April 2nd our church will hold a two weeks mission. The pastor will be speaking

OXER, DANCER, NOW FILM STAR, RAFT ADVANCES

Latest to reach that goal, after following a queer circuitous route, is a young fellow who started out as a boxer, who took up dancing to improve his footwork in the ring, who soon was a better dancer than a boxer, who graduated from the ring to the stage, and from the stage to the movies.

He is George Raft, who skyrocketed to film fame through supporting roles in "Scarface," "Dancers in the Dark", and "Madame Racketeer," and who is playing the featured role in "Night After Night" coming to the Palace Theater Saturday and Sunday with Constance Cummings, Wynne Gibson, Mae West and Alison Skipworth. The picture is from Louis Bromfield's novel "Single Night."

Raft, born in that hard-boiling fighting region of New York City where the "Forties" meet Tenth Avenue, boxed in the featherweight division while in his middle teens. He also played baseball. As soon as dancing became his hobby he turned to it for a living, and became a favorite at all the big New York night clubs, later he visited London and was applauded and personally commended by the Prince of Wales.

Something of the life he led and people he knew is incorporated in the story of "Night After Night," directed by Archie Mayo and founded upon a Bromfield story that is a slice of life from the heart of the "big town." The role played is that of proprietor of a popular little night club and former boxer, pugilist and ball player.

Raft is the one man in the triangle love story of the plot. An unusual type of romance is worked out between the new screen hero and the character played by Miss Cummings; also an equally "different" one with beauteous Mae West of "Diamon Lil" fame.

PILGRIM CIRCLE ENTERTAINED LAST WEDNESDAY

The Pilgrim Circle and other invited guests were entertained last Wednesday afternoon at a Colonial Tea at the B. L. Harrington residence on Clinton Street. Mrs. Harrington and Miss Isabel Hines were hostesses.
Many of the guests wore costumes of long ago, a real colored "Aunty" baked the hot biscuit and fried the scrapple, and a spinning wheel and other furnishings and utensils of the part were much in evidence.
Mrs. Martha Swinton, one of the oldest members of the circle gave two readings which were very much enjoyed and also related some experiences of her childhood in the south, among them, being taught to spin by colored women.
Mrs. Shockley will entertain the Circle March 8th at a business and work meeting.

SECOND 1933 FISHING SEASON OPENED MARCH 1

Spearing Permissible In Non-trout Streams Til Apr. 30

The second of the 1933 fishing seasons opened March 1 with all non-trout streams and lakes not otherwise closed to spearing, were thrown open to spearing for certain species.
In the lower peninsula spearing will be permitted in non-trout streams for certain species until April 30, but will continue to May 15 in the upper peninsula.
According to the Department of Conservation, the only species of fish that may be speared are carp, suckers, redhorse, mullet, dogfish and garpike. Artificial lights may not be used in spearing fish.
Under the law a non-trout stream is considered to be "all streams or portions of streams which do not contain brook, brown, or rainbow trout." If in doubt as to the classification of a stream, consult the conservation officer of the county in which the stream is located. The Conservation Department is advising all those intending to spear fish.
The winter lake spearing season closed at midnight February 28. However, pike, yellow perch, bluegills, sunfish, rock bass and all species of bass other than black bass, and all on-game fish, may be taken with a hook and line in the inland lakes until March 31. The designated "pike" lakes will then be closed for fishing for one month and all other lakes until June 25.
The Conservation Department has ordered all of its field men to give special attention to patrols along the rivers and streams in an effort to hold down the number of violations of the fish laws and the illegal taking of game fish.

13 RECORDS WILL BE CHECKED IN THIS WEEK

Accurate account of Farm Operations Kept for 1932

Charlevoix County has 45 farmers who have kept an accurate account of their farming operations for the year 1932. There is only one other county in the state that has a larger number carrying on this activity than Charlevoix. In the state there are approximately 1,000 farmers who have closed or are closing their 1932 records.
Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week two representatives from the Farm Management Department will personally meet each one of the cooperators to help him in closing his records. In this way the books will be as accurate as possible and will permit a more detailed summary of its various phases. This work differs from the average system being carried on many farms as not alone an account of all receipts and expenditures is kept but in addition the depreciation on the farm equipment and live stock is considered as well as the interest on the investment and family labor. These last named items reflect themselves upon the income as much as receipts and expenditures, and, as a rule, are not considered by most farmers.
A schedule has been made up whereby each cooperator will have an appointment for a certain hour to have his book checked in. Our farm account year starts the 1st of March. This means that anyone desiring to keep farm account records for the year 1933 is cordially invited and urged to send in his name to the County Agent who will be only too glad to show him the system and start him in properly. No matter what the results of the year 1932 it is just as important to keep an unprofitable year as to keep a profitable year to find out what the true situation is for that particular year. Ask anyone who is keeping records as to its value if you are thinking about enrolling in this project.

E. C. Mellenkamp, Co. Agt.

CUTTING WILD LANDS TO WORK IS SOLUTION

Of Northern Michigan's Problem of Unemployment

Bringing back to prosperity the millions of acres of non-agricultural land in northern Michigan, which for 30 years led the nation in timber production, is a matter of forest management and recreational and wild life improvement that must be done by the joint efforts of land owners, and the state and federal governments. Its accomplishment would aid in solving the unemployment riddle, would put land now idle to work producing new values, and is the sensible thing for the industrial and agricultural parts of the state to help do unless they are willing to reasonably give all without support of return, says Dean Samuel T. Dana, of the School of Forestry and Conservation in the University of Michigan.
When the frenzied logging days were over, high pressure promoters sold the land for farming, but decades of effort have shown the unlucky buyers that the cut-over acres of northern Michigan are rarely profitable to farm. Dean Dana states. Delinquent taxes have transferred more than 2,000,000 acres of land from their former owners to the state and which has been adding to its holdings at the rate of 250,000 more a year. Meanwhile the rest of the state has had to aid heavily in school and other government costs in the impoverished sections.

George Wyers, an old and on local resident is making his home with Sheriff Ikens at present and is a temporary arrangement, which, under the orders of the court continues for a thirty day period.

LEGION SPONSORS MINSTREL SHOW

Scheduled For March 17th In The Gymnasium

Finishing touches are being put on the Legion's Minstrel show at the strenuous practice sessions that started Tuesday evening of this week. Practically every night between now and the 17th of March must be devoted to perfecting some part of the program.
The affair, which is scheduled for the evening of Ireland's great day, will be staged at the high school gymnasium. The program includes plenty of songs, some clever skits and an instrumental background that can't be beat. Here is the list of numbers:
Opening Chorus.
Song, "Lucy Long", O. P. North.
"Far Away In The South" C. A. Hamlin.
Song, "Niggah Loves His Possum", T. L. Carey.
Song, "I've Goin' Back To Dixie", F. V. Tyler.
Song, "My Gal Is A High-Born Lady", Rev. G. R. Parker. (Brother Amby).
Song, "Alabama Coon", L. Yettaw.
Song, "Coon, Coon, Coon," A. C. Helding.
Chorus, "Going Down South"
Plantation Scene: Songs: "In The Evening By The Moonlight", "Mississippi", "Dark Town Strutters Ball", "Cake Walk", "Georgia Camp Meeting", "My Gal Is A High Born Lady."
Meeting House: Songs: "Little David", "Hear The Bells", "Golden Slippers", "Way, Way Down South."
The proceeds of this entertainment will be turned into the welfare fund of Leslie T. Shapton Post and it is hoped that on this account the attendance will be more than ordinarily good. An evening of real hilarity is guaranteed.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR CHARLES HEND-RICKSON HELD HERE

Death Comes By Accident On Fishing Tug at Alpena

Mr. Charles Hendrickson, jr. well known Charlevoix citizen was instantly killed last Thursday while operating his fishing tug near Alpena, when he was caught in some of the mechanical equipment used in his fishing operation. Word of the accident and death was immediately transmitted to Charlevoix relatives and friends, who arranged with Glenn S. See to bring the body from Alpena to Charlevoix.
Funeral service was held from the residence of Charles Hendrickson Sr., father of the deceased, Sunday and was attended by Charlevoix friends and several friends from Alpena and Manistee.
He is survived by Mrs. Hendrickson, to whom he was united in marriage in 1917, three children, his parents and several brothers and sisters.
Rev. G. Russell Parker officiated at the service.

FIRE DESTROYS McSAUBA RESIDENCE LAST THURUSDAY

Few Pieces Of Furniture Saved; Origin Unknown

Fire completely destroyed the residence of Dan McSauba Thursday afternoon last and with it a large part of the house furnishings and equipment, making for a heavy loss for Mr. McSauba and family members.
A call was made for help and Charles Marshall with the city chemical truck made the run to the McSauba place, which is located near Mt. McSauba, just outside the city limits, arriving too late to render assistance by way of saving the building. Some few articles were removed from the doomed structure.
Some moderate amount of insurance covered the building and personal effects but as is usual in disasters of like nature, in an amount wholly inadequate to cover the loss sustained.
Mr. McSauba and other family members were away from the home when the fire originated. The financial loss caused by the destructive blaze has not been definitely determined.

ETHAN JOLLIFFE LONG TIME RESIDENT DIED THURSDAY

Illness Extended Over Long Period Of Time

Ethan Jolliffe a pioneer resident of this region, a permanent and long time resident of Banks township, Antrim Co., passed away unexpectedly at his farm home near Atwood Thursday afternoon, his death following an illness extending over a period of one year or more and though his physical condition was considered seriously his death came practically without warning.
He was born August 27, 1859 near Palmira, Wisconsin and five years later, in 1864, came to Michigan with his parents, who settled in Banks township on the farm where the subject of this sketch continued until his death.
Mr Jolliffe was united in marriage with Miss Ida Parsons who survives him as also does two daughters, Mrs. Charles Elison of Ellsworth and Mrs. Raymond Stafford of Norwood, and three sons, William and Wesley of Atwood and Eber Jolliffe of Grand Rapids. Besides these there are thirteen grandchildren, three brothers, Cyrus of Painsville, Ohio; Sidney and John of Portland, Oregon.
In his farming operations he was considered as a successful agriculturist, and known for his honesty in his business transaction and universally recognized for his sterling worth in this region which, taken in connection with his forebearance and example of Christian life makes for a serious loss in the immediate vicinity and his passing a source of regret to many friends and relatives.
Funeral service was held Sunday afternoon at the M. E. Church, Atwood, with Rev. C. J. Kendall officiating.

Mrs. Ira Adams, Mrs. F. A. Kenyon, Miss Minnie Payton and Vincent S. Madison were visitors in Petoskey Monday.

CARRIES ENTIRE CITY BY 231 MAJORITY

INSTRUCTIONS ON LICENSE PLATE LAW RECEIVED

Will Be Effective At Local Office Starting Monday

Instructions finally received at the local branch office of the Secretary of State with regard to the issuance of the one-half fee permit show that it will be possible to drive on 1932 license plates until August 1, 1933 by paying one half the license fee. Except for transferred titles, there will be no extra charge for transfer or re-registration of 1932 plates.
On passenger and commercial vehicles, a permit is issued in the form of a sticker to be placed on the inside lower right hand corner of the windshield. On trailers, the permit is in the nature of a plate to be used in conjunction with the 1932 license plate. On new cars and cars without Michigan 1932 registration, in addition to the permit, 1932 plates have to be issued. On new trailers and trailers not registered in 1932, only the permit plate will be carried—1932 plates will not be necessary. The Department are in hopes that those having small trailers will pay a full year's fee, if possible.
Separate blanks are to be used for the half-fee permit applications. Assigned titles, bear ing 1932 license numbers, must be transferred until July 1, 1933 and two dollars transfer fee collected, unless 1933 plates are purchased and assignment dated after February 28, 1933. It might be mentioned that while the work of taking care of these half-fee permits and recording them is about double that required for the full fee applications, the compensation of the branch office is not a cent greater and the twenty cents per set of plates commission it is to split in two parts like the cost of the plates.
Preparations for sale of half-fee permits will not be complete before Monday, Mar. 13, 1933.

The Congregational Woman's Missionary Society will meet next Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Edward O'Neill

Mrs. W. H. Miller will review —"Holy Prayers in a Horses Ear"—a tale of Japan. After the program the South Side Circle will serve a Lenten Tea.

The primary campaign leading up to the election held last Monday to nominate candidates for city offices was possibly the quietest affair of like nature ever held in Charlevoix. In this regard it was a campaign extraordinary with the general password "quiet" faithfully observed by candidates and their supporters.
To a large number of electors the entire campaign was pregnant with mystery, hence they were unable to analyze the situation or find out what it was all about. They were interested in the campaign, some on one side, some on the other, but all more or less up in the air politically, due in the main for lack of something tangible to support. Nevertheless quietness prevailed, but at the same time considerable effort was expended almost continuously for more than two weeks.
No special claims were made whereby electors had assurance as to the probable winners, hence it developed into a thinking campaign with practically each individual doing her or his own thinking and from the final result it can readily be concluded that by an overwhelming majority reached the conclusion that there should be a change such as would give the city a new chief executive. This is evidenced by the heavy majority vote for Mr. Lou S. See who opposed Mayor Bergeon.
The vote was heavy in each of the three city wards, and in each Mr. See received a substantial majority, making for a total lead as tabulated by the election board of 231 votes, with the majority the largest in the first ward and smallest in the 1st ward with the 2nd ward capturing the center bracket of totals.
That the supporters of Mr. Bergeon considered their candidate as strongly entrenched in the office of mayor that his position was invulnerable and defeat impossible was the impression attempted to be conveyed to the public by those "in the know." In this regard those "in the know" were mistaken and the fact that his position was exceedingly vulnerable was a source of amazement and dismay to such followers and the fact that some of Mr. Bergeon's supporters since the election have been overzealous in his cause and are credited with making harsh, nasty statements relative to some opposing candidates reflects no credit on Mr. Bergeon's cause through their support.
In this they followed their established precedent by running true to form. Fairly defeated, overwhelmingly vanquished they adopted the attitude of blatant mouthed blackguards in an effort to besmirch the character of an opponent. Defeat to them makes an excuse for resorting to vile despicable methods such as the very imps of hell hesitate to use and pause long before adopting.
Tactics of a disreputable nature are not conducive to public good, they destroy good will, disrupt communities, engender enmities between friends, destroy harmony and create a never healing breach in social welfare
Mr. Bergeon has many good, honest, truly conscientious friends who felt honored in supporting him for the nomination, who, regardless of his failure to win the nomination remain staunch and true in their allegiance, who gave their support upon honor. He also had some supporters who failed in political honesty and pursued tricky, nefarious methods to attain their object. He can point with pride to the former and with shame to the latter.
The tabulation of the vote follows:

Candidates	Ward 1	2	3	Tot.	Maj.
L. S. See	94	257	277	628	231
A. Bergeon	64	189	144	397

POLAR BEARS PLAN TOURNAMENT HERE NEXT WEEK

Final Details Are Not Available At This Time

Very little real information can be published at the time in regard to the independent tournament sponsored by the Polar Bears. The main facts of the matter are of course clear, but various details can not be given.
The games will be played in the local gymnasium on March 14, 15, and 16, which will be Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week.
Competent officials will be in charge and amateur rules will be followed.
All the organized teams in Northern Michigan are invited to compete. Some have already sent in their applications with entry fees, but some will wait until the last minute for entering.
Small individual gold football for members of the winning team, and silver for the runners-up, will be the prizes.
The Polar Bears will play, and if it is necessary to have another team to fill a bracket here might be a second local team entered.

BOYNE CITY AND ALBA WIN TOURNAMENT

Dope Bucket Is Nearly Upset By Charlevoix, Harbor

Boyne City won the Class C basketball championship at the district Tournament last week as had been predicted, but Charlevoix nearly upset the dope in the semi-final round.
Boyne won an easy victory over East Jordan in the first game, and then met Charlevoix, who had drawn a bye. Boyne had a comfortable lead of 19 to 11 at the beginning of the last quarter. Charlevoix's players got hot in this round, and ran the score up to 19 to 17 before the final whistle blew. Boyne City was pretty glad when it was over.
Boyne met Harbor Springs in the finals. Harbor had won easily in the other semi-final from Mancelona. Boyne was tired from the Charlevoix game, and Harbor Springs nearly won. The score was 18 to 17. Both of these teams will play in the Regional Tourney at Petoskey this week.
In the Class D Tournament Boyne Falls, Bellaire and Mackinaw City were eliminated in the first round. Central Lake and Ellsworth fell in the semi finals and Alba defeated Pellston in the big game. Alba will go to the Regional tournament.

Blizzard Arrives Here

A blizzard in all that the term implies swept down from the northwest Wednesday afternoon, continued through the night and remains with us this morning. Some snow accompanied the wind, necessitating the plowing of trucks and snowplows in commission in order to remove snow from sidewalks and drifts from highways.
The Lady Maccabees are planning a card party for Tuesday evening, March 14th.

The Rebekahs are sponsoring a Bingo and Dancing party Friday evening of this week.

MEN RESCUED FROM ICE FLOE

Local Fishermen Reached By Coast Guard With Boat

A large number of fishermen, estimated as high as 75 and as low as 50, were caught on Ice floe far from shore on Little Traverse Bay Sunday, when an easterly wind broke off a big ice floe from the main ice field and with the men was driven out to sea if the open space of open water on Lake Michigan.
Some of the fishermen were prepared for any emergency having thoughtfully taken a skiff out on the ice field and it was due to such thoughtfulness that all members of the fishing party were rescued safely from their precarious position.
According to reports Pat Holland was first to observe the predicament of his fellows and attracted their attention to their danger and those in turn conveyed the alarm to fishermen at more distant points.
Several boats were launched at Charlevoix at 208 Clinton Street, now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Jacobs, while more recent years he has made his home with Mrs. Evers. He was held in high regard by his neighbors and the general public.
Rev. G. A. Weaver of Petoskey will officiate at the funeral service.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Eckinger motored to Boyne City Monday where they were guests for the day of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Cole.

FUNERAL SERVICE HELD AT BROOKSIDE CHAPEL TODAY

For Mr. Isaac Mills Who Died Tuesday Afternoon.

Funeral services will be held at Brookside Chapel this afternoon at 2 o'clock for Mr. Isaac Mills who passed away at the home of his daughter Mrs. A. Evers in Hayes township Tuesday.
Mr. Mills was a native of Canada, born at Stratford, Ontario, January 7, 1851. He came to Charlevoix in 1881 and has been a resident in this region for about 52 years, the major part of the time on his farm in Marion township. At one time in early years he resided in Charlevoix at 208 Clinton Street, now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Jacobs, while more recent years he has made his home with Mrs. Evers. He was held in high regard by his neighbors and the general public.
Rev. G. A. Weaver of Petoskey will officiate at the funeral service.
Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Eckinger motored to Boyne City Monday where they were guests for the day of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Cole.
